Dyspepsia.

The celebrated and very clever Dr. Abernethy, of London, once opened his mind to an American who sought his advice in his sufferings from dyspepsia. "I'll be hang d," said he, "if I ever saw a Yankee that didn't bolt his food whole, like a boa constrictor. How the devil do you expect to digest food that you never take the trouble to dissect nor the time to masticate. It's no wonder you lose your teeth and your digestion, for you overload it, nor your saliva, for you expend it on the carpet instead of your food. It's disgusting; it's beastly. You Yankees load your stomachs as a Devonshire man does his cart, as full as it can hold, and as fast as he can pitch it in with a dung fork, and then drive off; and then you complain that such a load of compost is too heavy for you. Dyspepsia, eh? Infernal guzzling, you mean. I'll tell you what, take half the time to eat, that you do to drawl out your words, chew your food half as much as you do your filthy tobacco, and you'll be well in a month.

Leap Year.

Neglected maidens of uncertain age, cheer up. Screw your courage up to the sticking point, make judicious selection from the numerous unprocted masculines who are drifting about without the rudder of duty or anchor of hope, and go for them. Leap year is within a few day's march now; remember that it is the early bird that catches the worm, and start in with the first of the year. Marriageable widows don't need advice; they know how it is themselves, and are severally better acquainted with a man's nature and disposition than he is himself. Woman's greatest study is man, and it doesn't take them a thousand years to learn. Their nice and cultivated habits of observation give them full and due appreciation of the eternal fitness of things, consequently admonitions are useless and suggestions superfluous.

Misappropriating the Letter H.

We have a new Solicitor General—a learned and able man, but who, unluckily has the gift of always misappropriating the letter H. Here is an anecdote of him which I heard a few evenings ago. He was lately engaged in some parliamentary inquiry about the possible danger arising to the public from the manufacture of the aniline dye. A French chemist engaged in the manufacture was being examined through an interpreter. One lawyer asked whether it was not the practice of the witness to mix together various noxious and disgusting substances which he named one by one. The answer was in the affirmative. "You take these things and mix them together?" "Yes, certainly," the witness replies, through the interpreter. "And then," asks the lawyer, "you eat them?"—with the object of showing that a noxious steam is thereby generated, for when he says "you 'eat them," he simply means you heat them." The interpreter is puzzled and begs the learned gentleman to repeat the question. Learned gentleman repeats in rather irritated tone: "And then you 'eat them." "Et donc," translates the interpreter, "vous les mangez." "Oh, mon Dieu," screams the witness, in horrified protest against the hideous idea thus suggested. Everybody laughs but the learned questioner, who grows angry and reddens. Tableau; and explanation. This sort of thing is rather awkward sometimes in English assemblies. There is a well known Dissenting member of the House of Commons, who can never manage his "H," and is much laughed at in consequence. Once, when speaking on some question which affected general codes and morals, he raised his well-meaning but unmusical voice in favor of merciful laws. "We ought," he pleaded, "to have some compassion for hour herring brethen." The House began to laugh. "Hi don't know why gentlemen should laugh when Hi speak of hour herring brethen!" Renewed laughter, and some irreverent members cried "Oh! Oh!" The orator waxed indignant. "Gentlemen may say 'Ho! Ho!'" he began to remonstrate, but his speech was drowned in a torrent of laughter. The same member once brought a bill, i. e., proposed a measure to do something or other. Every measure is indorsed by at least two members. Our friend was asked by the Speaker: "Who introduced the bill?" He answered amid shrieks of the House, "Hi hand the Honorable Helgernon Hegerton," meaning, it may be necessary to explain, "I and the Hon. Algernon Egerton."—London Coerespondence N. Y. Mail.

The Scribbling Mosquitoes.

A French lady who has been traveling in this country writes that in America "there are two kinds of mosquitoes; that which prevents you from sleeping at night, la bete enfine, and that which troubles your repose at all hours, day as well as night. This last mosquito is the reporter. To my mind, and I mean no offence to the liberty of the press, the second is infinitely more disagreeable than the first."

How many men there are who think they are making themselves exceedingly popular when they are only making themselves ridiculous.

Traits in families are inherited, and a flirting mother will have flirting daughters, and selfish fathers have selfish and hard-hearted sons.

The last remark made by a man while separating under the influence of NITRO-GLYCERINE was: "Let me collect myself."

Better be understood by ten than admired by ten thousand.

Not up in Shaving.

A fireman in Troy went into a barber shop to get shaved, and, finding the barber out, he concluded to have a little fun before his return. So he took off his coat, put on a thinner one, and quietly waited for a customer. An old gentleman came in soon. "Have a shave, sir?" said our impromptu barber. The old gentleman took a chair, and our artist began to lather, expecting every moment the barber would appear. Three minutes passed and no barber. Five minutes, no barber. Now the gentleman felt pretty well lathered. Five minutes more, no barber. The old gentleman's face fast disappearing in a small sea of white foam. Five more, still no barber. The fireman is getting desperate and conceives a bright idea. Putting up his brush, he quickly changes his coat again, takes his hat, and is about to quietly slip out behind the gentleman's back, when he turns round and exclaims: "Here sir, ain't you going to shave me?" "No, sir!" promptly replies our sloping friend, "the fact is, we only lather here, sir; they shave four doors below."

As 'Twas told to Us.

The Alameda Encinal is responsible for the following:

Last Monday evening a trio—a limb of the law, a man of physic, and scion of ye birch, sat side by side in the Methodist Church, in this place, engaged in a somewhat mixed discussion of practice, malpractice, and practice in general, pausing ever and anon, in the flow of eloquence or logic to catch the spirit of the juvenile performance. The dialogue between Naomi and Ruth had been announced and the prayerful entreaty of Ruth had arrested the attention of the three. "Where thou goest, I will go. Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God." "How beautiful!" murmured the man of law rolling his eyes hysterically, "one of the charming inspirations of poor Mrs. Hemans." "Mrs Hemans!" returned the astonished disciple of Esculapius, "great Heaven! one of Bryant's choicest gems." There was a momentary pause, a hurried explanation, an undignified snicker, and the trio shortly after departed in solemn procession, wiser though not sadder men.

Think it Might.

The Sacramento Bee says:

Yesterday, in one of the justices courts, a row occurred between two clients in a petty case, and for a couple of minutes they had it rough and tumble in the presence of the Judge. At the conclusion of the unpleasantness he declared that a repetition of the offense would subject the parties to a fine for contempt! That is good.

TWO PICTURES.

An old farm-house, with meadows wide,
And sweet with clover on each side;
A bright-eyed Boy, who looks from out
The door with woodbine twined about,
And wishes with one thought all day,
"Oh! if I could but fly away
From this dull spot the world to see,
How happy, happy, happy,
How happy I should be!"

Amid the city's constant din,
A man who round the world has been,
Who, mid the tumult and the throng,
Is thinking, thinking all day long:
"Oh! could I only trace once more
The field-path to the farm-house door,
The old green meadow could I see,
How happy, happy, happy,
How happy I should be!"

SYNOPSIS OF ARGUMENT:

This is a world of strange chances. Finihan, Emperor of China, raised to his honor by a freak of fortune, realizes the old proverb, "Uneasy rests the head that wears a crown," consequently would sell his office for next to nothing. But the discovery being made that he is an American and no Chinese, heretofore kept secret from the common herd, a rebellion breaks out and the Emperor's crown and head are both in danger from the wrath of the lower orders. Fe-an-pich ton, a beautiful Princess, and Ke-ki-ka-ko, a Mandarin, also are in danger from the vicinage of the multitude; pathetically asks protection of the Emperor, who is powerless to save, although well acquainted with Jim Fisk, Jay Gould, Judge Sawyer, Senator Sargent, and other influential gentlemen. When despairing of succor in any shape, an avenue of escape is opened by the chief conspirator, and all three—Emperor, Princess, and Mandarin, gladly avail themselves of an escapement with Macguire's original Jap to return to their native land.

FE-NI-HAN, Emperor of China, willing to return to the humble walks of life, yet anxious to crush the rebellion and the new City Charter; having no sympathy with Tweed or any other man ..... EDWIN KELLY
KE-KI-KA-KO, Chinese Mandarin, a pleasant fellow, fond of Pictorial Papers ..... S. H. HOLDSWORTH
KO-KO-KI-OO, Captain of Fen-i-han's Guards, a Conspirator, death on all law and order ..... W. BARK
KO-FI-KI-HI, another of the same sort ..... G. ASHTON
KO-FI-HI-KI, a Conspirator with a carpet bag full of useless Police Bills, Charters, etc., always on hand to vote on Rail-road Bills ..... G. ASHTON
HI-FE-KIS, a Conspirator, the man who saw who struck Billy Patterson ..... G. KEMP
CHIN-CHIN-CHOW-DER, a Conspirator, knows all those worth knowing—a knowing fellow ..... GEORGE REYNOLDS
HI-FO-KUM-KI, a Conspirator, does the outside business, attends to the German vote, etc. ..... CHARLES REYNOLDS
BOW-WOU-ER-Y, a Conspirator, one of the B'hoys ..... G. H. FOSTER
E-AN-NICH-TON, Princess in the suite of Fe-ni-han, a nice young woman, anxious to escape from China and its Rebellions to become a female broker in New York ..... LEON Guards, Chinese Shopkeepers, Attendants, etc.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

Kelly and Leon's operetta of "Matrimony" is one of the most amusing they have produced, and the trio from "Atilla" is excellently well sung by Leon, Edwin Kelly and W. Bark. The Reynolds Brothers recieve two or three encores nightly for their "Freedman's Bureau School Boys." The burlesque of "Ching Chow Hi" is acted with immense spirit, and the performances of the great Japanese troupe causes great amusement. The Alhambra is scarcely large enough to hold the hundreds who flock there nightly.

Metropolitan Theatre.

Not to have "seen the hanging" at the Metropolitan Theatre, is to be behind the times. It is shocking but some people enjoy being shocked. E. T. Stetson is a capital actor and he is most ably supported by another capital actor, James M. Hardie, and the well trained company of the Metropolitan Theatre. "Neck and Neck" will be played for a few nights longer.

California Theatre.

"Eileen Oge," now the fine weather has come is running merrily. Those who have not yet seen this play should do so. They may be assured that they will not regret it. There is not a moment's drag in the action, which is hurried on, from the moment the curtain rises until it falls on the happy consumation.

Bella Union.

Leon Samwells and Edwin Montague, are very popular, both in their gymnastic acts, and in the ballet pantomime of "L' Homme Sauvage;" Maggie Knight as the broken hearted milkman and in Irish characters, is very good; Chris Mathews gains great applause for his dances; Eugenia Gerretta's act on the ascending globe is a pleasing feature in the entertainment, and Carrie Armstrong and J. H. Larkin, Miss Josephine, Clara Starr, Fanny Garretson and others appear in a varied programme of songs and dances.

The Oxford.

This place of amusement has a particularly bright star in Jimmy Hall, a boy of about twelve years of age, who performs the most original and grotesque "Essence of Old Virginia" ever seen. He is encored again and again every night. On our first page may be found the names of the performers, who, every evening appear to amuse the patrons of this popular little theatre.

Theatre Comique.

The grand Mask Ball with the original and amusing Johnny Tuers as door-keeper, goes off with great eclat every night. Frank Jones, Mike Quin, Nellie Leonard, Rosa Vincent, Tommy Rosa, Jake Wallace, Harry Howard, Ida Fisk, and others appearing in thirteen different characters. The performance concludes with the screaming act of "The Demon of the Woods."

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillieu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention are on exhibition

Pavilion Skating Rink.

Assemblies at the Pavilion skating rink are on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, in the morning, and Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays in the evening. Professor Lovett, the famous skater, gives an exhibition every evening.

Not Exactly.

The Alta doesn't seem to be able to exactly understand how that hanging at the Metropolitan Theatre is done. It says:

Mr. Stetson seems to run a fearful risk in submitting his neck to the noose, and hanging by the rope after dropping through the trap—but of course he secures himself against danger by having the rope draw on his arms instead of around his neck.

Bah! Such a fall as he has would be sufficient to draw off his arms, or at least dislocate them. That isn't the way it's done. The Alta man may know how it is himself some day, so we shan't explain this hanging.

Prejudiced Man.

A Long Island farmer has sued his wife for divorce, because, after coming to New York and listening to a lecture in favor of free love, she insisted upon stopping every man who passed the house and inviting him to have a talk.

SARCASTIC.—"When a distinguished American dies," said a shrewd and sarcastic observer not long since, "his admiring friends and countrymen immediately resolve to build him a magnificent monument, and then—they don't build it."

Why is an almanac simply advice thrown away? Because it comes in at one year, and goes out at the other.

How We Go to Sleep.

The order in which the muscles lose their power is worth knowing. The muscles which move the legs usually become relaxed before those which maintain the body in an erect position. In relation to the social senses, that of sight is first lost, the eyelids forming a barrier between the retina and the external world; but, independently of eyelids, if they had been removed by the surgeon, or could not be closed by disease, this is still the first sense whose function is abolished. Some animals, as the hare, do not shut their eyes when asleep; and in cases of somnambulism, the eyes remain open, although the sense of sight is temporarily abolished, but their acuteness is much lessened,

Taste is the first to disappear, and then smell; hearing follows, and touch is the most persistent of the senses. So, conversely, a person is most easily awakened by the sense of touch; next in order by sounds, and then by smell.

Washington Pastry.

A sojourner in Washington sends the following:

I am particularly fond of lemon pie, and like cream for dessert. At —— hotel I went on peaceably for a couple of weeks, but always eating lemon pie under a silent protest, for I was a stranger, and did not like to make objections. Finally I called a waiter and said:

"John, I have nothing to say about the ice cream, but what kind of a pie is this?"

"What kind of a pie did you order, sah?"

I ordered a lemon pie, but this appears to be dried apple."

"Dat's a lemon pie, sah. You know dey has a way of mixin dried apples in de lemon pies here, sah, to dat extent it requires a man of ability to 'stinguish 'em apart sah, De lemons am scase, you know, and dey has to 'conomize 'em so as to make one lemon do for sixteen pies"

Brigham Young.

This is the way Elder Cannon, editor of the Deseret News, did up Brigham in a recent speech: "Of Brigham's devotion, credulity and constancy as a Mormon there can be no doubt. He is as sincere in his church as Bishop Simpson is in the Methodist Church, or Judge McKean in his. He is only aware of the fearful mightiness of Democratic sentiment in America from a few troops camped in his vicinity, from the miserable character of the Federal officials who go out there to blackmail him, and from the stream of respectful visitors, for whom he holds a levee every morning and who butter him with praises, while perhaps the same people are inditing letters to the East raising a hue and cry against his empire. He will leave behind him in that State a name never to be rivaled in the future prosperous history of Utah. I dare believe the fame of Brigham Young is as indissolubly bound in the literature and reverence of the Rocky Mountain people, as the names of La Salle, John Winthrop and Hernando Cortez are embedded in other parts of the country."

A FUNERAL PROCESSION COMPOSED OF SLEIGHS.—Yesterday afternoon, says the Virginia City Enterprise of the 27th ult., a large procession passed through C street, in which the only vehicles were sleighs. This was a sight we have never before seen in this city, and one seldom seen in any country we believe. The noiseless manner in which the long line of sleighs glided through the city added greatly to the solemnity of the occasion, and in gazing upon the train the spectator might easily have imagined the whole scene unreal, and all in the procession mere phantoms. Following the vehicles was a considerable body of horsemen, and these—for any sound heard from them—might have passed for a shadowy rear guard. The singularity of such a procession attracted universal attention.

PROBABLE.—Our Major, said an old Mexican volunteer, had very long feet, and also a horse that threw every one but the Major. One evening the Major's servant was out on the parade ground with the horse, and, as usual, was thrown off, when one of the boys spoke up and said: "I know why the horse don't throw the Major." "Why," was asked by a dozen or more. "Well, you see, the Major's got such long feet that the horse thinks he is in shafts."

QUAINT EPITAPH.—The following epitaph is by Moore on an attorney named Shaw:

"Here lies John Shaw,
Attorney at law;
And when he died
The devil cried,
'Give us your paw,
John Shaw.
Attorney at law!'"

THE LANGUAGE OF THE EYES.

To find some universal tongue
That all can understand,
Has long been wished by old and young,
In almost every land.
They never seem to have confessed
What wondrous power lies
In that mute speech, by all possessed,
The Language of the Eyes!

Why cannot people be content
With this dumb voice alone?
Perhaps because it says what's meant,
And all that's meant is shown!
So still use artificial speech,
Which hides and mystifies,
For that which truth and Nature teach,
The Language of the Eyes!

How much the better we should be
If fewer things were said.
If words spun out less easily
In conversation's thread.
How many questions we might spare—
How many vain replies—
Would we but practice everywhere
The Language of the Eyes!

But ah! I fear too oft we feel
Shut up in hollow pride;
And what the eye would sure reveal,
The word intends to hide!
We cannot trust our eyes to speak—
Truth only in them lies—
And falsehood never dares to seek
The Language of the Eyes!

We are not yet so good, alas!
As that we all can say,
Look through these windows, as through glass,
And read our hearts alway;
We yet must suffer speech to fill
The world with sound and lies:
But there will be one true thing still—
The Language of the Eye!

A Mammoth Chicken Pie.

[From the New York Standard, December 14th.]

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., December 13th.—The largest chicken pie ever made in New England, and, indeed, in the world, was put on view at the St. John's (Episcopal) Fair last night, at Washington Hall. An immense crowd had assembled to witness the unveiling. It required over one hundred large sized chickens, fifty pounds of flour and twenty pounds of lard for the crust, a special pan nine feet in diameter to hold it, four stout men to carry it and A. W. Wallace was the only man in the city who had an oven large enough to bake it. It is a whopper and no mistake, and is calculated, after supplying everybody during the Fair, to hold out and do good service through Christmas week and the holidays. Whoever wants a finger in that pie will be pleased to place themselves in nemination at once. Price for the season moderate.

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street now the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of epicures

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

LETTER FROM GUATEMALA.

[FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.]

GAUTEMALA, Central America, Dec. 5, 1871.

DEAR FIGARO:—I write to you according to promise. Here we are in a fine country but most of the population poor. The revolution, together with earthquakes and volcanoes, has injured the country. Gautemala is a city of about 50,000 inhabitants. There are large cities all around. We are going to San Salvador and San Miguel, and on to Costa Rica. We are doing well. The company consists of Painter, Durand, Patto, Zadie Zelmar, Bruno, the Limber Boy; and Taylor Rubenstien. The travelling tour is by stage and ox carts on splendid roads. There are few Americans here. Staple crops are coffee, chocolate, corn, etc. Plenty of fruits such as pineapples, cocoanuts, oranges, lemons, and fruit that I don't know the name of yet. The money here is all silver and gold. I put many of your FIGAROS here in places where they speak English and they were very glad to see them. The climate here is good, water excellent, and liquor bad. Please give my regards to Buckley, Johnny Tuers and all inquiring friends. I will send you another letter soon. Yours Truly, A. P. DURAND.

Figaro's Correspondents.

We give up the greatest portion of our space to-day to letters from our correspondents, in different parts of the world. The present instalment includes letters from Hong Kong, in China, Dallas in Texas, and Guatemala, in Central America. FIGARO, is here, there, and everywhere.

Miss Angelina Squobbles, one of the most fashionable young ladies in San Francisco, says, she does hope that the Young Men's Christian Association will pray as hard as possible for snow, and that consequently it will snow as hard as possible on the plains, so that the Grand Duke instead of going after buffaloes may come here, and enjoy the San Francisco dears' talking. "Please pray; Oh, please do!" is her cry.

LETTER FROM HONGKONG.

[FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.]

HONGKONG, Nov. 11th, 1871.

DEAR FIGARO:—Since I last wrote you we have visited Singapore, Batavia and Calcutta, the former and the latter being decided failures, but the intermediate one paid extremely well, and would have done so for a very much longer time, but that we expected some fresh people by the August steamer, and left a good paying business to catch them at Singapore, but they were not on board, so as a matter of course our visit proved a gigantic failure. After bucking against bad weather and worse houses for two weeks, we once more shipped for Hongkong, having added three fresh people to our company, and calling at Penang and Singapore on the way. We showed in each place for "one night only," and actually the receipts in either place did not amount to a thousand dollars. I do not think anything short of a broadside from a line-of-battle ship or an earthquake would rouse the Singaporeites. Fancy a clever tight-rope performer connected with a circus taking on his benefit night eight dollars! "How high dot vas?" Between Singapore and Hongkong we got caught in one of those gentle zephyrs peculiar to the China Seas, yclept a typhoon, and during the three days that it lasted we had a gay old time, I promise you. I've seen a few ups and downs in my life, but I think this was the "uppist" I ever had. On October 5th we again cast anchor in Hongkong, and opened on the 10th to a capital house. We have played three nights a week since then, and have done a stunning business. I had my farewell benefit last evening, and had a crammer.

I leave the company the first week in December. The balance return to San Francisco.

J. SMALL.

Hopeless Scoundrels.

It is said that the levee in Sutter county was cut by persons who are opposed to tule lands being reclaimed. If this is so, the perpetrators of the act, are irreclaimable villains. If, on the other hand, they were in danger of having their houses swept away and being drowned, they are not.

Sensible Man.

The Alta reporter, speaking of New Year's Day, says, "at the houses we visited good cheer abounded," which means that he visited those houses where he knew there would be a good "spread."

Don't Hang Her.

Mrs. Shay, of Washington, D. C., celebrated New Year's Day by shooting a policeman named Dogle who came to arrest her. She was doubtless insane.

Please Do!

The following appears among the telegraphic despatches:

Chicago, Dec. 31st.—Grand Duke Alexis has declined to go on a long buffalo hunt after leaving here. The Grand Duke will visit Milwaukee, St. Louis, Kansas City, and Leavenworth, as heretofore announced: and from the latter place, will go to Omaha, arriving there on the 10th of January. General Sheridan will receive them, and with proper military escort conduct them to the hunting grounds. On arriving there should snow be found too deep for hunting the party will go through to San Francisco.

Beautiful Sight.

A flock of five thousand hydraulic rams under care of one of the editors of the Alta, left yesterday for the the plains for the purpose of being used to clear away the track. The docile but powerful animals, and their mild-looking, but determined leader, presented a beautiful spectacle as they embarked on the Oakland boat.

A Timely Present.

At this festive season, a dozen of Squarza's exquisitely flavored punches form a most appropriate present. The egg nog punch saves a great deal of trouble, and is compounded with great skill. His famous symposium is at 20 Liedesdorff, and is presided over by A. Bona, his worthy successor. U

LETTER FROM TEXAS.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

DALLAS, Texas, December 16, 1871.

DEAR FIGARO:—Knowing that items concerning old California show people are always acceptable to you and the numerous readers of our favorite FIGARO, I take the first opportunity since leaving the Eldorado of sending you a few.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Circus, which started on its travels about the first of May last, after many ups and downs, changes of management, etc., has at last entered the State of Texas with flying colors under the management of Messrs. Cohn and Palmer, who took control at Junction City, Kansas, where the concern had been obliged to lay up and suspend operations owing to the somewhat questionable conduct of the late proprietor, Dr. G. H. Pratt, who by hook or crook (principally hook) contrived to do the company out of all or a portion of their dues. Everything is now in fine running order and we are doing a fine business. The company retained most of its original members with the exception of the Romelli Family, who quit at Nebraska City, and Geo. Constable, who has joined Noyes' Circus. Several new performers have also been been added, the following being a list of the company as it now stands: The Lee Family, Miss Polly Lee, principal equestrienne; William Vincent, Geo. Burgess, the Stanselle Brothers, A. Lehman, Frank Stanselle, clowns. Since leaving California A. Lehman has doubled himself, having entered the state of matrimony at Junction City with Miss Polly Lee. The intention is to go through Texas into Mexico, then back to California by June. Yours, WM. VINCENT.

Also, a large assortment of Watch Chains, Jewelry, Cameos, Diamonds, Topaz, Amethyst, Coral, Turquoise, Onyx, Pearl and Etruscan Sets, etc., all of which will be sold at the very lowest prices.

Kissing.

Looking at the dictionary for the meaning of the word to kiss, we find it a verb active, "To salute with the lips," "to treat with fondness," "to caress," "to touch gently," as a substantive, "a salute given with the lips," "a common token of affection," "a small piece of confectionery."

In the Aldine Magazine we find a Dictionery of Kisses, in which they are called "the palm of love," "Cupid's seal," "the lover's fee," "the fee of parting," "the first and last of joys," "the homage of the lip," "the hostage of promise," "love's chief sign," "love's language," love's mintage," "love's print," love's tribute," love's rhetoric," "the nectar of Venus," "the pledge of bliss and love," "the seal of bliss," "the melting sip," and, "the stamp of love."

Herrick seems to have been very uncertain in his mind what was a kiss, and yet he did not seem to have a bad notion of the genine article, for in one of his little poems he asks:

Among the fancies tell me this—
What is the thing we call a kiss?
I shall resolve ye what it is;
It is a creature born and bred
Between the lips all cherry red.

And he continues to inquire—

Has it a speaking virtue? Yes.
How speaks it, say? Do you but this—
Part your join'd lips, then speak your kiss,
And this love's sweetest language is.

Has it a body? Ay, and wings
With thousand rare encolorings,
And as it flies it gently sings:
Love honey yields, but never stings."

SYNOPSIS OF ARGUMENT:

This is a world of strange chances. Fishian, Emperor of China, raised to his honor by a freak of fortune, realizes the old proverb, "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown," consequently would sell his office for next to nothing. But the discovery being made that he is an American and no Chinese, heretofore kept secret from the common herd, a rebellion breaks out and the Emperor's crown and head are both in danger from the wrath of the lower orders. Fe-an-pied lon, a Celestial Princess, and Kek-ka-ko, a Mandrin also are in danger from the violence of the multitude; pathetically ask protection of the Emperor, who is powerless to save, although well acquainted with Jim Fisk, Jay Gould, Judge Sawyer, senator Sargent and other influential gentlemen. When despairing of succor in any shape, an avenue of escape is opened by the chief conspirator, and all three—Emperor, Princess, and Mandarin, gleefully avail themselves of an engagement with Macguire's original Jap to return to their native land.

FE-NI-HAN, Emperor of China, willing to return to the humble walks of life, yet anxious to crush the rebellion and [illegible] the new City Charter, having no sympathy with Tweed or any other man.....EDWIN KELLY
KE-KI-KA-KO, Chinese Mandarin, a pleasant fellow, fond of Pictorial Papers.....G. H. HOLDSWORTH
KO-KO-KI-CO, Captain of Fen-i-han's Guards, a Conspirator, death on all law and order.....W. BARK

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

"Neck and Neck" is running well, everyone's curiosity having been excited by the reports of those who have witnessed the banging, the murders and other sensations with which the piece abounds. To-morrow evening, E. T. Stetson whose acting in the role of Walter Wilmarth has been generally admired, will take a benefit, and the many friends he has made during his short stay here will do their best to make it a bumper.

California Theatre.

"Eileen Oge" will be withdrawn after this week; it will be played at the matinee on Saturday. On Monday night, James Carden, a very popular member of the California Theatre company, will take a benefit prior to his departure for Australia, and on Tuesday evening, Madame Venetta will make her first appearance in English tragedy, as Lady Macbeth.

Alhambra Theatre.

A brilliant first part, comprising ballads by S. Holdsworth, Edwin Kelly and others, and concluding with Russell's "Man the Life Boat," with scenic effects, is followed by an attractive interlude in which Leon and Kelly appear and the Reynolds Brothers perform a double song and dance. The extravagant burlesque of "Ching Chow Hi" terminates the evening's amusement and sends the audience home in high good humor.

Bella Union.

In the first part, Mat Kelly, Lon McCarty, Chris Mathews, Tommy Bree, Miss Josephine, May Leroy, Carrie Armstrong, Minnie Fillmore and others present a pleasing melange of comic and sentimental melodies, ending with a walk-around. This is followed by an interlude, in which the vivacious and talented little Miss Maggie Knight appears in character songs and dances; Leon Samwell and Montague in gymnastic feats; Clara Starr and Fanny Garretson in favorite ballads, and others in attractive performances. "L'Homme Sauvage" concludes the entertainment.

Theatre Comique.

The talented Frank Jones, Mike Quinn, Harry Howard, Jake Wallace and Tommy Rosa make a strong team of comedians and give a capital programme of songs, dances and acts. The ladies of the company are popular favorites: Rosa Vincent, Nellie Leonard, Blanche, Eva Wilbs, Miss Hester, Ida Fisk and Miss Amanda, appear in pleasing ballads and attractive dances. The bill for to-night appears on our first page.

The Oxford.

Little Jimmy Hall is decidedly worth seeing; his songs and dances draw great applause nightly. Amelia Dean, Lizzie Harmon, Carlova, the Dutch Leon, and many others appear in a varied programme, concluding with Horatio Nelson's very clever pantomime of "The Dancing Scotchman," which causes roars of laughter.

Pavilion Skating Rink.

Public assemblies every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday mornings, Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday afternoons, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Club assemblies the other mornings, afternoons and evenings of the week. Professors Lovett and Callie Curtis give an exhibition every evening at 9 o'clock.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillieu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention are on exhibition

The Man Without an Advertisement.

Talk about a woman without a baby, a man without a wife, a ship without a rudder, a dog without a tail, a glass without a cocktail in it! What is the lack of each one of these individuals or things to that of a man without an advertisement? He is a hopeless case— "a gone-in community." Talk of his being successful in business! You might as well talk of ascending to the moon on a gressed moonbeam. You never see a man get fat who doesn't advertise. He hasn't money enough to purchase material that fat is composed of. People point at him in the streets and say, "Yon Cassius has a lean and hungry look." He isn't married—of course not. No angel that wears back hair and crinoline would ever think of uniting her fate to that of such a man. It may, however, be consoling to him to reflect that, when he dies, he will be advertised at last, and gratuitously at that.

Killing two Birds with one Stone.

A bereaved and sorrow stricken Missouri husband sent for a minister to come and preach the funeral sermon of his deceased wife, and at the same time unite him to a plump and gushing comforter.

Too Improbable.

In an article on the probable scarcity of water next Summer, the Hartford Post tells the following capital story: "A good many years ago when ice in Summer was a rarity in cities and an unheard of thing in the country, a good deacon of a rural church was charged with having got decidedly fuddled on the 4th of July in New York. He was arraigned for his misconduct. With tears in his eyes he confessed his fault, but pleaded in extenuation that it was a prodigiously hot day, and the lemon and ice in the punch did look so cool and inviting that he couldn't resist the temptation, and he supposed he actually did drink to intoxication. A low-browed brother on a back seat listened attentively but incredulously to the defence, and at its conclusion rose. "I haint no objection," said he, "to a man's getting drunk if he owns up to it and is sorry for it; that's a thing a man's liable to, and p'raps sometimes he can't help it, but when the deacon comes in here and undertakes to excuse himself in such a way as that, talking about seeing ice in July, I go for jerkin' him out for lyin'."

A Pleasing Experiment.

Young men who go to see girls, have adopted a novel method for obtaining kisses. They assert, on the authority of scientific writers, that the concussion produced by a kiss will cause the flame of a gas jet to flicker, and easily induce the girl to experiment in the interests of science. The first kiss or two, the parties watch the flame to see it flicker, but soon become so interested in the experiment as to let it flicker if it wants to.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

BY CORNELIUS DOWD M'FLYNN.

Hurroo! for the time that is comin'
When ladies shall vote like the min;
Och, won't the polls be s-bloomin'
Wid fithers and crinoline thin!
Election day thin I am thinkin'
Will be the great day of the year,
Whin lassies and lads will be dhrinkin'
Together the candidates' beer.

What's the use to wrangle wid Biddy
About who the livin' shall make?
An' sure if 'twill plase her I'm riddy
To give up the hod for her sake,
An' be stayin' all day at the shanty
To 'tind the domestic affairs,
A-bollin' the bafe an' pertaties,
An' mindin' the ripe an' the tairs.

Thin whin elec ion approaches,
An' the lassies are marchin' the shtrate
Wid big bands of music an' torches,
An' Biddy is standin' the trate,
I'll be on the sidewalk hurr.a-in'
For me own darlin' Biddy McFlynn.
Wid a choild in me arms, an' a-drawin'
A cab wid another one in.

An' whin she is makin' her spaches
Before the great min of the land,
Sure, thin I will find her my breeches,
An sit by her side on the shtand.
An' after she's done wid her talkin',
Och, thin how the people will cheer,
An' off to the polls be a-walkin'
An' votin' for Biddy my dear!

An' whin all the votin' is over,
An' Biddy's elected, sure thin
I'll live like a pig in the clover,
Wid Honorable Mrs. McFlynn;
The shanty I'll quickly be leavin'
An' livin' wid illigant taste,
Wid a horse an' a shay for me dhrivin',
An' a nigger to wait on the baste.

It's niver a lie I am shpakin',
But thrue ivery word that I say;
It's mesilf 'twould niver be takin'
The rights of the ladies away.
If a lassie thinkin' it proper,
Should shoulther the mortar an' brick,
Bad luck to the thafe that would shtop her!
I'd black his two eyes purty quick!

The way is for all to kape aisy,
An' give to the ladies their way:
They'll trip up an' vote like a daisy,
No matter what blackguards may say;
An' thin should they office be sakin,'
Or twirlin the pick an' the shpade,
An' for us the livin' be makin',
Who cares, so the livin' is made?

TWO HUNDRED PEOPLE CUT THE PARKS' LEVER.—The Marysville Standard of December 29th says: Two hundred people in disguise, armed with the necessary tools, proceeded to the mouth of Butte slough on Wednesday night at 12 o'clock, when they cut the levee sufficiently to give the water a chance to do the rest of the desired work, and which soon made a cut four or five hundred feet in length. The same party also made a second cut in the Manson meadow. As the water at the levee was from twenty to thirty feet in depth, and was set back a distance of twenty miles, the reader can imagine what an immense flow of water was created. The driver of the Colusa stage reported yesterday, at 10 o'clock, a rise of ten or twelve feet at the stone bridge, and rapidly rising. The immense tules, heretofore kept from overflow by this levee, will be ten feet under water this morning; and it is probable that much stock will be drowned. The parties interested in the levee have kept a night watch along the line of the work since the advent of high water, in anticipation of a raid. There were twelve men on watch when the cutting was done.

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers.

After the Bella Union

Comique and Globe Theatres, patrons who smoke a cigar on their way home should go to the Verandah Cigar Store, corner Washington and Kearny, kept for the last eleven years by Henry Schmidt. Not a Chinese made cigar in the store, but every other brand, from a few cents' cost up to the finest imported Havanas. A fine stock of handsome meer-chaum pipes, cigar-holders and other articles suitable for presents during the coming holidays. Everything at prices to suit the times. W

PRIVATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE

N.E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

The Perils of Critics.

Fitzgerald in the Philadelphia City Item, says:

Those viragos—The Lydia Thompson Blondes, think nothing of cowhiding a critic and we have a lady in this city, who has maimed and buried many a man.

Very few of the theatrical people can stand criticism.

In our thirty-three years experience, with the profession, we have met not one.

They want praise—nothing else—and they want it all the time.

One word, even of suggestion, offends their self-love.

What then, is the critic to do?

Shall he praise indiscriminately?

Justice Forbid!

In the interest of the drama, in the interest of truth, in the interest of art let him do his duty; kindly, but faithfully; until the stage shall have been elevated, purified and made perfect.

[But how about the horse whippings?]

A High Moral Example.

Religious journals should note the high-toned and sensitive desire to do right which even in far off Texas leads a publisher to reject an advertisement which has the smallest scent of unrighteousness. Some one sent Galveston paper an advertisement, "How to make Vinegar." This is the courteous but firm reply which was given: "We can't insert it on account of our agreement not to advertise anything that pertains to intemperance. This is not left optionary with us."

Bachelors Ready.

The Helena Daily Montana Herald, in view of leap year, publishes a list of eligibly old bachelors in Helena, and follows with thirty or forty genuine names of citizens who are in in the main, it says "in a good state of preservation." The daring editor proposes to supplement the list with all "the old maids and marriageable young ladies in Helena."

Snubbed.

At Lynn, Massachusetts, a school teacher asked a little girl who the first man was. She answered that she did not know. The question was then put to the next, an Irish child, who replied loudly: "Adam, ma'am," with apparent satisfaction. "Law!" said the first scholar, "You needn't feel so proud about it; he wasn't an Irishman."

Disinterested.

Somebody asked Bismarck why old King William was so healthy. "Ach well," said the Premier, "Because he drinks no water, and wears red flannel next his skin." It is not true that Bismarck owns all the red flannel in Prussia.

Horrible.

The "black corsair," is the title of Offenbach's last. Muffington asked us "why it was like the sofa in his office?" and explained that it was "black 'orse 'air too." Muffington drops his h's, and we mean to drop his acquaintance.

A correspondent wonders if Judge Kent, who said that "the abominable practice of wearing hair on the upper lip is reprehensible" ever heard of the old Spanish proverb: "A kiss without a moustache is like an egg without salt."

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere. Q

A Pleasant Location.

To the Unfortunate.

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary, No. 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco. Private entrance on Commercial street. Established in 1854, for the treatment of chronic and special complaints. Dr. Gibbon will make no charge unless he effects a cure.

Unprofessional.

Much evil occurs from people not attending to their own regular business but trying to branch out into other lines. The following from the Bulletin proves this:

The first arrest was made by officer Walsh, Friday morning. The officer saw two men pilfering a drunken man along Pacific street, and not liking their general bearing, asked if they knew the man. Of course they did, but were not able to convince the officer, who arrested them. At the prison they were searched and found to be well supplied with burglars' tools After some questioning, they admitted that they had, not many days before, broken into John C. Bell's carpet store, broken into a store on Clay street, and robbed the contribution box of St. Joseph's Church.

Now, here were two burglars of undoubted talent and skill in their profession, descending to the low and disgraceful occupation of rolling a drunk. We have no pity for them. Had they stuck to their regular business they might have pursued it for a long time with profit and pleasure. The idea of a burglar descending to rolling drunks is a most painful one. And in such a burglarizable city as San Francisco! We are ashamed of them for such unprofessional conduct.

A Warning.

An exchange has the following:

Miss Mary A. Bailey, a prominent member of the Methodist church at Choes, N. Y. was prostated with paralysis, the other evening, while on her knees in a prayer meeting.

Now if this "unfortunate Miss Bailey" had happened to have been at a theatre or in a ball room, when she was struck by paralysis how the religious papers would have howled about it "as a judgment on her!" But she wasn't. She was on her knees, confessing herself "a miserable sinner," "utterly unworthy to live," "she who was a miracle of goodness in being allowed to survive," and then it was she was struck by paralysis.

Two Ways.

A Philosopher says. "Have any wounded you with injuries, meet them with patience. Hasty words rankle the wound, kindness dresses it, forgiveness cures it, and oblivion takes away the scar. If this process doesn't succeed, then try the effect of silent contempt, and bung both his eyes, bust his snoot, and kick him from under his hat. The one who gives this recipe isn't a philosopher, but he understands the use of his mauleys.

Venemous Little Beast.

A Missouri paper tells a story of how a swarm of bees settled on a boy's head, and were all removed. It ends it thus:

Strange to relate, the boy only received one sting, and that was caused by his seizing with his teeth, a bee that was trying to make its way into his mouth.

That bee would have been a very weak spirited thing if it hadn't stung back after the little wretch had bitten it.

Granted a new Trial.

An Indiana convict who was hanged three months ago, has just been granted a new trial. He does not appear to take a great deal of interest in it himself, and when the decision of the Court was announced he behaved exactly as if it made no difference at all to him. Some men are very unexcitable.

A Surprise.

Theodore Tilton says he is agreeably surprised at meeting Cluseret on earth instead of Heaven. To which a contemporary replies: "In case Cluseret is so unfortunate as to meet Tilton in Heaven, he will be justified in expressing even greater surprise."

Puzzled.

A little boy embodied his thoughts on the ology in words thus: "I don't see how the devil came to turn out so bad when there was no other devil to put him up to it."

A Timely Present.

At this festive season, a dozen of Squarza's exquisitely flavored punches form a most appropriate present. The egg nog punch saves a great deal of trouble, and is compounded with great skill. His famous symposium is at 2½ Liedesdorff, and is presided over by A. Bona, his worthy successor. U

Sunday-School Songs.

The New York Sun chooses the following stanzas from a recent collection of that literature. "Imagine," says the critic, "the flabby souls and vulgar imaginations which children must have who are brought up on such Sunday-school slop as this:

O boys! be strong in Jesus;
To toil for Him is gain:
And Jesus wrought with Joseph
With chisel, saw and plane.

The lines below are for the comfort of cripples:

The poor cripple has a chance for glory,
As good a chance as you or I;
Christ will listen to his story,
He will hear the cripple's cry.

He always pities poverty,
And scorns not those who have to beg;
His grace for every woe's sufficient—
One can go to Heaven with a wooden leg.

Of these the writer says: "This is indeed consoling, but we are afraid it is not orthodox. Paul says that flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of Heaven. How then can a wooden substitute for flesh and blood inherit it? We suspect that before the author of the above can make his 'calling and election sure,' he will have to show that a man can go to Heaven with a wooden head."

Utterly Disgusted.

The Pueblo (Colorado) Chieftain gives a funny account of a Chicago newspaper man who stopped in the flourishing young city of Greeley, and, being athirst, tried in vain, to get a square drink. "He went up one street and down another, he turned the corners of alleys, he sprang over ditches, he explored sheds and out-houses, but the fluid for which his soul yearned could not be found. He went hap-hazard into one building which he thought might be a saloon and encountered a prayer meeting. In another hall he found a farmers' club. Finally, he received trustworthy information that there was not a drop of liquor in the place. He left, and wrote to his journal that the town of Greeley "was without inhabitants, without resources, and without commerce."

Rather.

The Sioux City Journal has a ball room conundrum founded on the local's own sad experience: "Isn't it a rather disagreeable occurence when a young man's suspenders give way while he dances a schottische with a young lady who never wants to sit down?" No prize is offered to the person who answers this conundrum.

A new clerk in a Wabash dry-goods store recently assured a lady to whom he was endeavoring to sell a set of furs, "that they were the best furs that ever grew on a fur's back."

"Have you blasted hopes?" asked a lady of a green librarian, whose face was much swollen by toothache. "No, ma'am," he replied "but I have a blasted toothache."

Every Saturday has sunk $100,000 in two years.

Hell.

There is something plausible in the doctrine of the Spiritualists that the real torment of the future state consists, not in a fire and brimstone hell, but in still hanging round in spirit form the scenes which one has left and seeing how things go on after one's death. Mustn't it have been hell for Horace Hawes to see his finely laid plans all brought to nought? Mustn't it be very unpleasant, to say the least of it, for Ketchum to see his poor stomach mauled about by so many doctors? Isn't it hell for a miser to see his savings squandered; for a husband to see his wife, who swore she loved him so fondly, flirt at his funeral with young Smith whom he kicked out of his house; for a smart business like spirit to see his late partner miss chance after chance of making a pile; for a mining spirit to see fellows running a drift the wrong way—well we shall all know how it is ourselves some day.

SYNOPSIS OF ARGUMENT:

This is a world of strange chances. Finihan, Emperor of China raised to the honor by a freak of fortune, regrets the old proverb, "Uneasy rests the head that wears a crown," considering would sell his office for next to nothing. But the discovery being made that he is an American and no Chinese, heretofore kept secret from the common herd, a rebellion breaks out and the Emperor's crown and head are both in danger from the wrath of the lower orders. Fe-an-pich tor, a beautiful Princess, and Ke-k-ka-ko, a Mandarin, also are in danger from the violence of the multitude; pathetically asks protection of the Emperor, who is powerless to save, although well acquainted with Jim Fisk, Jay Gould, Judge Sawyer, Senator Sargent, and other influential gentlemen. When despairing of succor in any shape, an avenue of escape is opened by the chief conspirator, and all three—Emperor, Princess, and Mandarin, gladly avail themselves of an engagement with Macguire's original Jap to return to their native land.

FE-NI-HAN, Emperor of China, willing to return to the humble walks of life, yet anxious to crush the rebellion and the new City Charter, having no sympathy with Tweed or any other man [illegible] EDWIN KELLY

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The drama of "Neck and Neck" still continues to draw crowds to the Metropolitan Theatre. E. T. Stetson, whose talent has met with worthy recognition at the hands of the California public, will take his benefit to-night, when we hope they will evince their appreciation of Mr. Stetson's talents in a substantial form by crowding the house.

Alhambra Theatre.

The performance at this place of amusement suits the taste of the public exactly as is proved by the large audience that flock there nightly. The new burlesque of "Ching Chow Hi" is full of fun and first part and interlude are lively and entertaining. There will be a matinee to-morrow.

California Theatre.

"Eileen Oge" will be played this evening and at the matinee to-morrow. As this attractive play must be withdrawn after the present week, those who have not seen it should attend.

Bella Union.

A great programme will be performed at this popular variety theatre to-night, comprising acts, songs, dances, gymnastic feats and pantomime. The extravaganza of "The Nymphs of the Hill" is in preparation.

Theatre Comique.

A varied and entertaining performance is given here. The extravagant burlesque of "The Mask Ball" causes roars of laughter, and the songs, dances and acts are lively and popular.

The Oxford.

Little Jimmy Hall is decidedly worth seeing; his songs and dances draw great applause nightly. Amelia Dean, Lizzie Harmon, Carlova, the Dutch Leon, and many others appear in a varied programme, coinciding with Horatio Nelson's very clever pantomime of "The Dancing Scotchman," which causes roars of laughter.

Pavilion Skating Rink.

Public assemblies every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday mornings, Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday afternoons, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Club assemblies the other mornings, afternoons and evenings of the week. Professors Lovett and Callie Curtis give an exhibition every evening at 9 o'clock.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillieu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention are on exhibition

Tit for Tat.

Medford and New Bedford, although their names rhyme, occasionally don't quite harmonize, as witness the following. The Medford editor perpetrates this:

There was a fair maid of Medford,
Who was "smashed on ——— youth in New Bedford;
But he smelt so of oil,
That his suit it did spoil,
Oleaginous chap of New Bedford.

To which a New Bedford editor responds:

There was a fine lad in New Bedford,
Fell in love with a lady in Medford;
But she smelt so of rum,
He was quite overcome,
This prohibitory youth of New Bedford.

Rings.

There are indications of the formation of a railroad bridge ring and a ring in the Board of Supervisors for the purpose of purchasing the Spring Valley Water Works, on behalf of the city. If these projects come to a head, it will be found that the votes of the people will nullify them on election day.

The only Rings that will be tolerated in San Francisco now, are wedding rings and circus rings—and the season is not very favorable for the latter just at present.

'Tis Over.

Alas! 'tis over, dear. Your careless touch
Can thrill or start no quiet pulse of mine;
The voice whose magic wooed and won so much,
Unheeded may its tenderest spell combine.
The strange dark eyes their wonted glances steal,
But not to melt or fire me any more,
And coldly turning from their mute appeal,
I answer that their pristine light is o'er.

A little sorry and a little vexed,
With just a touch of mirth, a touch of shame,
And at my old entrancement quite perplexed,
I think of how we played our idle game,
I, who to-night can neither laugh nor sigh,
Gave many an honest smile, an honest tear,
To our fair folly, born of vanity,
And dead of—well, we carve no tombstone, dear!

I said, just now, a certain phrase you used,
Trying to wake again the old sweet thrill,
That in the pretty words so much abused,
We vow'd nor time could change, nor tide could chill.
I said it, all alone, with lips that fain
Had trembled in the loving wont of old;
I could not wake the cherished spark again,
The fire is out—the very hearth is cold.

Come, clasp my hand in frank, free guise, my friend,
Let the dead past bury its foolish dead;
Let the dark curtain fall, the pageant end,
And we pass on with calm untroubled tread.
Forgive, forget, each what the other wrought,
See that the path is smooth, the sky is clear,
And so with quiet, unregretful thought,
Own it is well, and all is over, dear!

Yet a strange bitterness is in the words,
A sullen sadness swells to eye and heart,
A moan swells sudden from the stricken chords,
Oh, the fair soulless dream is loth to part!
I would not let a weary anger creep
Round that sweet memory of our long ago.
Weak will! cold love! that clasp'd, yet could not keep.
But there—it is all over. Better so!

A Polite Quaker.

John G. Whittier, writing from Amesbury, 12 Mo. 6, says: "I regret that I am not able to avail myself of your invitation to the dinner to H. I. H. the Grand Duke Alexis. "His Imperial Highness" would have been a great stretch for the mouth of George Fox, who used to write "O King!" that being a form of address nowhere spoken against in the Scriptures. However, Mr. Whittier is in all essentials, an excellent good Quaker, and he may write July or Thursday, if he pleases, or do any other anti-Quaker thing, except saying "Good-bye" to us.

SAD CONCLUSION.—The Contra Costa County Gazette of December 30th has this item:

Our readers all remember the circumstances of the mysterious abduction of James McClellan from his home in Rodeo Valley last March, and the precarious condition in which he lay for weeks afterward, his life apparently hanging upon a thread, and then, as bodily strength was slowly regained, the development of symptoms of insanity, which rendered his removal to the Asylum at Stockton necessary. He remained at the Asylum until about two months since, when it was evident that no restoration could be expected, and he was taken to the residence of his brother-in-law, James McHenry, in Rodeo Valley, near his own home, where, receiving the tender ministrations of his own family and relatives, he lingered until the 17th instant, when death terminated his sufferings.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

BY CORNELIUS DOWD M'FLYNN.

Hurroo! for the time that is comin'
When ladies shall vote like the min;
Och, won't the polls be a-bloomin'
Wid fithers and crinoline thin!
Election day thin I am thinkin'
Will be the great day of the year,
When lassies and lads will be dhrinkin'
Together the candidates' beer.

What's the use to wrangle wid Biddy
About who the livin' shall make?
An' sure if 'twill plase her I'm riddy
To give up the hod for her sake,
An' be stayin' all day at the shanty
To 'tind the domestic affairs,
A-bollin' the bafe an' pertaties,
An' mindin' the rips an' the tairs.

Thin whin elec ion approaches,
An' the lassies are marchin' the shtrate
Wid big bands of music an' torches,
An' Biddy is standin' the trate,
I'll be on the sidewalk hurroain'
For me own darlin' Biddy McFlynn,
Wid a choild in me arms, an' a-drawin'
A cab wid another one in.

An, whin she is makin' her spaches
Before the great min of the land,
Sure, thin I will lind her my breeches,
An sit by her side on the shtand.
An' after she's done wid her talkin',
Och, thin how the people will cheer,
An' off to the polls be a-walkin'
An' votin' for Biddy my dear!

An' whin all the votin' is over,
An' Biddy's elected, sure thin
I'll live like a pig in the clover,
Wid Honorable Mrs. McFlynn;
The shanty I'll quickly be leavin'
An' livin' wid illigant taste,
Wid a horse an' a shay for me dhrivin',
An' a nigger to wait on the baste.

It's niver a lie I am shpakin',
But thrue ivery word that I say;
It's mesilf 'twould niver be takin'
The rights of the ladies away.
If a lassie thinkin' it proper,
Should shoulther the mortar an' brick,
Bad luck to the thafe that would shtop her!
I'd black his two eyes purty quick!

The way is for all to kape aisy,
An' give to the ladies their way:
They'll trip up an' vote like a daisy,
No matter what blackguards may say;
An' thin should they office be sakin,'
Or twirlin the pick an' the shpade,
An' for us the livin' be makin',
Who cares, so the livin' is made?

A Sheet of Water at Yountville.

The Petaluma Crescent and Argus of the 29th, says that a correspondent informs them that "The entire valley is one sheet of water, and travelling dry-shod an impossibility. The morning finds the women with long faces and cross tempers, broom in hand, fighting desperately with the mud and water that threaten to invade their carpets. Barns and cattle pens are filled with mud. Good enough for us, for expecting a dry winter and taking no precautions against such discomforts."

The Benefit of the Rain.

The San Diego Union of Dec. 23d says: The rain which commenced at 9:20 A. M. on the 20th, continued with varying intervals until 9 P. M. last night. Although the quantity indicated by the rain gauge is not large, the time during which the rain was falling and the peculiar manner in which it fell, assures us that it has been highly beneficial to the agricultural and mercantile interests of Southern California.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street above the Alhambra. Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bontun, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

Fatal Accident With Maxim Gas Works.

The San Francisco correspondent of the Sacramento Record says:

The Maxim Gas Company have been steadily pushing their works in this State the past few months, but have been even more unfortunate than the Atmospheric Company, which was blamed for the Printing house, and many other fires. Some months ago the works behind the Cosmopolitan Hotel Saloon burned up. Since then ot the residence of George H. Howard, San Mateo, and John F. Doyle Menlo Park, and other domestic gas works of the Maxim Company, have burned up. The retort of the works used in lighting the business blocks of San Rafael took fire about a month ago. On the 10th of December the worst accident, however occured at the Maxim Gas Works at Watsonville. The Pajaronian says that the first fire was smothered out and the leaks temporarily stopped with rags. While the mechanic in charge, Charles Blair, was making good the damages, the fire broke out again. The retort making the gas is in the brick building, with a fire-proof door, and by the force of the explosion this door was closed and Blair shut in. His agonized scream for help was heard and the door forced open, when he was found terribly burned about the face and hands. His hair was burned snug to his head, and the skin from his right hand peeled entirely off, taking the finger-nails at the same time. * * * R. J. Williams was also badly, though not seriously burned; and several others outside, when the rush first took place, had their hair and eyebrows singed. Poor Blair lingered in great suffering until the night of the 27th, when he died. His mother was sent for from San Francisco a week ago, and, with great difficulty, the roads being washed out, reached him two or three days before he breathed his last.

We have heard a good deal lately about Maxim Gas accidents, though there has been an apparent disposition in journalistic and telegraphic quarters to suppress them. We could by a little exercise of memory make quite an addition to this list of accidents t hough, on this coast, we believe, there has yet been only one fatal result. Indeed, we do not believe that there are many Maxim machines that have been in use four months, not even the Mills Institute one, that have not burnt up, burnt out or gone out.

Theatres Destroyed In 1871.

The last year has been a remarkably misfortunate one in regard to the destruction of theatres by fire. The Adelphi Theatre, Boston, was burned February 4th; loss sixty-five thousand dollars. On April 1st, Griswold's Opera House, Troy, N. Y., was destroyed; loss, seventy-two thousand dollars. The Academy of Music, Bloomington, Ill., was burned Sept. 9 h; loss twenty-five thousand dollars. And then, on the 9th of October, at one fell swoop, the fire wip d out of existence seven theaters at Chicago, viz.: Crosby's Opera House, McVicker's Theatre, Dearborn Theatre, German Theatre, Hooley's Theatre, Farwell Hall, and Aiken's Museum. We have not at hand the estimates of losses by the destruction of these establishment, by the great fire, nor of Sanford's Opera House, Philadelphia, which was burned on the 16th of October. On the 9th of Dec. Wall's Opera House, Washington, D. C., was burned down. Loss, $30,000 partly covered by insurance. In the last month of the year 1870, three theatres were burned, The Varieties Theatre, New Orleans, was burned Dec. 1st. 1870, Winter Garden Theatre, Cincinnati, Dec. 7th, and Broom's Variety Theatre, Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 28th. Thus, within the space of eleven months, fourteen theatrical establishments were destroyed by fire.

It is hardly possible to estimate the amount of losses sustained by all concerned in consequence of these conflagrations The managers' business broken up, wardrobes, theatrical fixtures, properties, music, etc., consumed to ashes; actors thrown out of employment. These are losses not easily counted or mended. The only consoling feature of these latter calamities is the fact that they were not accompanied by the loss of human life, such as has made theatrical burnings as dreadful in some instances.

An old Dutchman, who some years ago was elected as a member of the Canadian Legislature, said, in his broken-English style: "Ven I vent to the Lechislature I tought I would find dem all Solomons dere, but I soon found dere vas some as pick fools dere as I vas."

There are two reasons why some people don't mind their own business. One is, that they haven't any business, and the other is, they haven't any mind.

THE STAGE DOOR.

I stood by the door at the noontide hour,
With a bundle of dog's-eared paper:
For over a play of undoubted pow'r
I had wasted the nightly taper.
And I wanted the manager once for all
To reject the thing or accept it.
I had shown it to managers great and small,
And had carried it home and kept it.

I fell into love while I saunterd there
(As a poor devil author dangles)
With a pretty princess, who looked so fair
On the stage, in her tights and spangles.
'Twas love at first sight for each and both,
But my life was a strife so lonely
That I thought it a sin to p'ight my troth
For love and for true love only.

I stood by day and I stood by night,
When the weather was not the clearest—
As an author who struggles to see the light:
As a lover who seeks his dearest.
But my life to-day is an altered life
(So my rhyme has a tinge of reason)—
For the pretty princess is my own dear wife,
And my drama ran all the season.

SYNOPSIS OF ARGUMENT:

This is a world of strange chances. Finihan, Emperor of China, raised to his honor by a freak of fortune, reverses the old proverb, "Uneasy rests the head that wears a crown," consequently would sell his office for next to nothing. But the discovery being made that he is an American and no Chinese, his subjects, from the multitude.. pathetically ask protection from the violence of the Emperor, who is powerless to save, although well acquainted with Jim Fisk, Jay Gould, Judge Sawyer, Senator Sargent, and other influential gentlemen.. When despairing of succor in any shape, an avenue of escape is opened by the chief Executioner, and the three Princesses, and Mandarins, gladly avail themselves of an engagement with Maguire's original Jap to return to their native land.

FE-NI-HAN, Emperor of China, willing to return to the humble walks of life, yet anxious to crush the rebellion and the new City Charter: having no sympathy with Tweed or any other man ... EDWIN KELLY
KE-KI-KA-KO, Chinese Mandarin, a pleasant fellow, fond of Pictorial Papers ... S. H. HOLDSWORTH
KO-KO-RI-OO, Captain of Fen-i-han's Guards, a Conspirator, death on all law and order ... W. BARK

Fatal Accident With Maxim Gas Works.

The San Francisco correspondent of the Sacramento Record says:

The Maxim Gas Company have been steadily pushing their works in this State the past few months, but have been even more unfortunate than the Atmospheric Company, which was blamed for the Printing house, and many other fires. Some months ago the works behind the Cosmopolitan Hotel Saloon burned up. Since then of the residence of George H. Howard, San Mateo, and John F. Doyle Menlo Park, and other domestic gas works of the Maxim Company, have burned up. The retort of the works used in lighting the business blocks of San Rafael took fire about a month ago. On the 10th of December the worst accident, however occured at the Maxim Gas Works at Watsonville. The Pajaronian says that the first fire was smothered out and the leaks temporarily stopped with rags. While the mechanic in charge, Charles Blair, was making good the damages, the fire broke out again. The retort making the gas is in the brick building, with a fire-proof door, and by the force of the explosion this door was closed and Blair shut in. His agonized scream for help was heard and the door forced open, when he was found terribly burned about the face and hands. His hair was burned snug to his head, and the skin from his right hand peeled entirely off, taking the finger-nails at the same time. * * * R. J. Williams was also badly, though not seriously burned; and several others outside, when the rush first took place, had their hair and eyebrows singed. Poor Blair lingered in great suffering until the night of the 27th, when he died. His mother was sent for from San Francisco a week ago, and, with great difficulty, the roads being washed out, reached him two or three days before he breathed his last.

We have heard a good deal lately about Maxim Gas accidents, though there has been an apparent disposition in journalistic and telegraphic quarters to suppress them. We could by a little exercise of memory make quite an addition to this list of accidents though, on this coast, we believe, there has yet been only one fatal result. Indeed, we do not believe that there are many Maxim machines that have been in use four months, not even the Mills Institute one, that have not burnt up, burnt out or gone out.

Theatres Destroyed In 1871.

The last year has been a remarkably misfortunate one in regard to the destruction of theatres by fire. The Adelphi Theatre, Boston, was burned February 4th; loss sixty-five thousand dollars. On April 1st, Griswold's Opera House, Troy, N. Y., was destroyed; loss, seventy-two thousand dollars. The Academy of Music, Bloomington, Ill., was burned Sept. 9th; loss twenty-five thousand dollars. And then, on the 9th of October, at one fell swoop, the fire-fiend put out of existence seven theatres at Chicago, viz.: Crosby's Opera House, McVicker's Theatre, Dearborn Theatre, German Theatre, Hooley's Theatre, Farwell Hall, and Aiken's Museum. We have not at hand the estimates of losses by the destruction of these establishment, by the great fire, nor of Sanford's Opera House, Philadelphia, which was burned on the 16th of October. On the 9th of Dec. Wall's Opera House, Washington, D. C., was burned down. Loss, $30,000 partly covered by insurance. In the last month of the year 1870, three theatres were burned, The Variétes Theatre, New Orleans, was burned Dec. 1st. 1870, Winter Garden Theatre, Cincinnati, Dec. 7th, and Broom's Variety Theatre, Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 28th. Thus, within the space of eleven months, fourteen theatrical establishments were destroyed by fire.

It is hardly possible to estimate the amount of losses sustained by all concerned in consequence of these conflagrations The managers' business broken up, wardrobes, theatrical fixtures, properties, music, etc., consumed to ashes; actors thrown out of employment. These are losses not easily counted or mended. The only consoling feature of these latter calamities is the fact that they were not accompanied by the loss of human life, such as has made theatrical burnings as dreadful in some instances.

An old Dutchman, who some years ago was elected as a member of the Canadian Legislature, said, in his broken-English style: "Ven I vent to the Lechislature I tought I would find dem all Solomons dere, but I soon found dere vas some as pick fools dere as I vas."

There are two reasons why some people don't mind their own business. One is, that they haven't any business, and the other is, they haven't any mind.

THE STAGE DOOR.

I stood by the door at the noontide hour,
With a bundle of dog's-eared paper,
For over a play of undoubted pow'r
I had wasted the nightly taper.
And I wanted the manager once for all
To reject the thing or accept it.
I had shown it to managers great and small,
And had carried it home and kept it.

I fell into love while I sauntered there
(As a poor devil author dangles)
With a pretty princess, who looked so fair
On the stage, in her tights and spangles.
'Twas love at first sight for each and both,
But my life was a strife so lonely
That I thought it a sin to plight my troth
For love and for true love only.

I stood by day and I stood by night,
When the weather was not the clearest—
As an author who struggles to see the light;
As a lover who seeks his dearest.
But my life to-day is an altered life
(So my rhyme has a tinge of reason)—
For the pretty princess is my own dear wife,
And my drama ran all the season.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

To-night E T. Stetson will appear in the tragedy of Richard III. He has achieved a reputation for his impersonation of the crook-back tyrant, and many were anxious to see it. He will be ably supported by Miss Henrietta Osborne as Queen Elizabeth. James M. Hardy as Richmond, Miss Fanny Young as Lady Anne; and the rest of the company. To morrow evening "The Lady of Lyons," will be played. "The Red Pocket Book," is in preparation.

Alhambra Theatre.

To-night after a good first part in which Edwin Kelly will sing "Under the Snow," and the entire company, "Man the Lifeboat:" an interlude will be given in which the Reynolds Brothers will appear in some of their most admired acts and Kelly and Leon's burlesque of "La Rose de St. Fleur" will be presented by Leon, Edwin Kelly, Miss Gibson, S. H. Holdsworth, and Robinson. After this the most sensational of all sensation dramas, entitled "A Dime Novel" will be presented and it is expected to create a sensation. Leon will appear as Laura Sherwood, Edwin Kelly as Mr. Skinner, the villain of the play, and the other hundred or so characters will be filled by members of the company and a host of supernumeraries.

California Theatre.

Mr. Carden will take a benefit to-night prior to his departure for Australia. A very varied entertainment will be given. The performance will commence with the play of "David Garrick," followed by the Screen Scene from "The School for Scandal," and the Haymaker's Scene from "Eileen Oge." Charles Vivian, who has volunteered for the occasion, will present some of his most popular character songs; Miss Lotta McCarthy will appear in song and dance; the Misses Stanley in a clog dance: "The Twelve;" Miss Georgie Loomis in song and dance, and Mrs. Julia Melville in an aria. Mr. Carden leaves to-morrow. To-morrow evening Miss Anette Ince will commence an engagement in "Ingomar" and on the following evening will appear in "As You Like It." On Thursday, Signor Bianchi will take a benefit, and on Friday Madame Venetta will make her appearance as Lady Macbeth.

Bella Union.

The new programme at this house is a very good one. In the first part the "Wandering Refugee," by Miss Maggie Brewer; the duet, "The Murmuring Sea," by Josephine and Carrie Armstrong, a pretty ballad by Fanny Garretson, and other performances were much applauded on Saturday and Sunday evenings. In the interlude Carrie Chapman's lively fancy dance was generally admired; Little Maggie Knight sang a travesty of Hamlet in costume in capital style; Chris Mathews brought down the house in a song and dance; and Carrie Chapman, Leon Samwells, J. H. Larkin and Ed. Montague presented the pantomimic sketch of "Don Juan," in a manner that kept the dience in roars of laughter; Miss Clara Starr sang a new and original comic song entitled "Prudence Small" setting forth a Yankee woman's opinion of San Francisco in a very clever manner and made a great hit. Carrie Armstrong and J. H. Larkin received three encores for their new Dutch parody "Fader geist du heim," and the extravaganza of "The Nymphs of the Rill," terminated the evening's entertainment.

The Oxford.

Jimmy Hall, the original little dancer, Lizzie Harmon, the favorite vocalist, Carlova, the Dutch Leon, Horatio Nelson, the talented pantomimist, Hughey Morton, Fanny Webster, Sally Thayer, and many others, appear under the able management of Miss Amelia Dean in an attractive programme concluding with "The Dancing Scotchman."

Theatre Comique.

The proprietor of this place of amusement has got together a strong company. Frank Jones is a very original and versatile performer. Mike Quinn is a favorite in banjo solos, and Irish specialties. Jake Wallace, Harry Howard, T. Ross, Eva Silva, Rosa Vincent, Nellie Leonard, and many others, give a good entertainment nightly.

Billy Emerson.

This universal favorite (whom the Chronicle sent off to play an engagement in London) will return on Wednesday night to San Francisco, where thousands will welcome him back to the stage.

The Lacmlin Sisters.

These talented performers on the piano, who have gained the commendation of the critics of Boston, and other musical cities passed Carlin on the 6 h an route for this city.

Pete Lee.

This popular ethiopian comedian and end man, who has been engaged by Maguire and Emerson for the Alhambra will arrive to-night.

Pavilion Skating Rink.

Public assemblies every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday mornings, Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday afternoons, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Club assemblies the other mornings, afternoons and evenings of the week. Professors Lovett and Callie Curtis give an exhibition every evening at 9 o'clock.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillieu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention are on exhibition

The private rooms for dinner and supper parties, are the admiration of all who have seen them. V

LETTER FROM AUSTRALIA.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

MELBOURNE, Nov 19, 1871.

DEAR FIGARO:—Since my last communication affairs in the theatrical world have been very lively. The Zavistowski Sisters at the Royal and Mrs. Gladstane at the Opera have given us plenty of novelty. The "Z" trio as they are euphoniously termed, have in a pecuniary sense done very well at least for the management, but they have occasioned great disappointment, as we have had stock artistes far and away their superiors both as vocalists, dancers, and burlesquists. They do not come up to public expectation. They had nothing new to present. "Ixion," "Cinderella," "Field of the Cloth of Gold," "Pocahontas," and "Paris" have all been performed in this city and in a far superior manner. Miss Christine also appeared in "The French Spy," and "The Wept of the Wish ton Wish," and performed very creditably, but suffered greatly in being brought in comparison with Mme. Celeste, who has played the same parts in Melbourne. I do not think they will advise other burlesque artists to venture here, for thank heavens burlesque, as the drivel of the present day is termed, is entirely played out. The Sisters are now performing at Sandhurst with but indifferent success.

MRS. MARY GLADSTANE.

This really talented lady is now fulfilling one of the most brilliant engagements ever known in this town and is universally acknowledged to be the creme de la creme of her profession, her talents are certainly great and varied. Tragedy, sensation drama, comedy and farce, are all within her range, "from grave to gay from lively to severe." She has I really believe played more original parts during the time she has honored this hemisphere with her presence than any other artist I can remember. Mrs. Gladstane is now performing at the

PRINCESS OPERA HOUSE

which was opened on the 9th of September last, under the spirited and plucky management of Mr. L. M. Bayliss, who has got together the best company seen in Melbourne since the palmy days of Barry Sullivan. He opened with the comedy "New Men, and old Acres," and followed it in quick succession with "Lost in London," Foiled a new local drama by Mr. Walker Cooper "Nine Points of the Law" Oliver Twist in which Mrs. Gladstane played Nancy, with terrific earnestness. "Not Guilty" has been the attraction all this week, and to-night, Andrew Halliday's play "The Great City," is to be produced. The season will close in a fortnight with a complementary benefit tendered to the manager, (Mr. Bayliss) by the company. There cannot be any doubt but that this season has been a most successful one; deservedly so for the management have spared neither time, trouble or expense in procuring the best company, the best scenery and appointments that money could purchase. Mr. Bayliss' career of management in this city will always be marked with a red letter in the theatrical annals of his acts.

MR. GEORGE COPPIN

is, I fancy, rather disappointed with what he considered the trump card of the season—I mean the Zavistowski Combination. Our old friend is generally one to keep his own counsels, but still one can learn a thing or two now and then. There is this much certain, that the colonies are now under many obligations to him in the cause of the drama. His speculations in the palmy days of the colony were immense, and the risks at times something astonishing. More than once he has been possessed of an ample fortune, but his bane of theatrical speculation compelled him to risk it, and, he lost it. He will shortly—so it is said, retire from management, but will as a last effort, produce at Christmas a really gorgeous pantomime, in which will be introduced a panorama of a voyage from San Francisco to Melbourne.

THE BARBER.

I know a barber who in town doth dwell— S
Take care!—
He has a lot to things to sell
For hair; forbear!
Buy them not,
Though he counsel thee.

For he will charge thee four-and-six,
(Take care!)
For a bottle of wash, worth less than six,
Beware, Beware!
Of his pomade pot,
'Tis a fallacy.

And when thou goest to get a "crop"
Don't swear,
If he say thy hair is thin atop,
Somewhere, somewhere;
Believe him not,
He is frigt'ning thee.

And if to take thee by thy nose
He dare,
Whilst sitting, in ungraceful pose,
On chair, on chair;
Resent it not,
He is shaving thee.

And he has dyes of every hue;
Take care
Lest russet locks be turn'd to blue,
Or fair, or fair
To some hue not
Such as pleases thee.

He has bears' grease in pots for thee
(A snare),
If on thy face no whiskers be,
Don't care, don't care;
Hogs' lard will not
Make a man of thee.

A Bee Romance.

In a Missouri paper we read a romance of which Mr. Haynes and his little son are jointly the heroes. As the story runs they were in a field, when a swarm of bees alighted upon the boy, covering him from head to foot; they hung upon his ears, chin and nose in great bunches, and clung in thick clusters to every part of his body. Mr. Haynes, realizing the dangerous situation in which his child was placed, commanded him to stand quite still. This the brave little fellow did, until the bees had all settled. Mr. Haynes then took a stick, gently lifted the boy's hat from his head, and placed it upon a neighboring bush, when the entire swarm left their extraordinary resting-place and took to the hat and bush. Strange to relate, the boy only received one sting, and that was caused by his seizing with his teeth a bee that was trying to make its way into his mouth.

Extreme Cold in New York.

The New York Herald of December 23d says: If our Russian guests had happened to have been in the city yesterday, they must have been satisfied with the Siberian and Kamschatka-like character of the weather. It was decidedly the champion "cold snap" of the season, and if that venerable old graybeard, the "oldest inhabitant," can point to a severer day, let him "trot it out." The average temperature in the city yesterday was thirty-two degrees below that of the same day last year.

Never since Monday, the 8th day of January, 1866, when the thermometer stood fifteen degrees below zero in this city, has there been so cold a day as yesterday. At six o'clock in the morning the thermometer stood at one degree below zero, and at six in the evening at seven degrees above.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street adov the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of epicures

An Indian Turning White.

A correspondent of the Gilroy Advocate, writing from Clear Lake, tells the following:

Some time since, I read a notice of a white man turning negro from a surgical operation having been performed on him by transplanting a piece of skin from a negro into the white man, where an ugly ulcer had just been extracted. But having the "last say," I can beat that story. In this neighborhood here lives an Indian. You may think there is nothing strange in that fact, nor would there be, but the Indian is turning white. I am not telling a sensational story, but an absolute truth, and if any of your readers doubt the truth of it they can be convinced by making a visit here and looking upon this remarkable phenomenon. The change of color has been going on for the last five years and is without the aid of operation or incision. It began upon one of the hands as a small white speck and has continued to grow and spread, dispelling the dark and swarthy skin and giving place to that of beautiful whiteness equal to the complexion of a lady, until now it is in large spots all over the body. His hands are about half and half, and show a perfect color for a pinto man. I would have supposed it to be some leprous disease but that the cuticle looks to be in perfect health, and the Indian is as strong and healthy as he ever was. I would be greatly pleased to know the cause of this singular freak of Nature, maybe you can edify me and explain its mystery. The Indian is well known to many hereabouts and has been for sixteen or eighteen years.

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the Stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco. HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. James Fisk, Jr.

James Fisk, jr., is dead, and we say with all sincerity we could have better spared a better man. He was unscrupulous in getting money, but he spent it with a free hand, he encouraged music, the arts and the drama. It is a pity when a man in full health and vigor is cut down. James Fisk knew how to enjoy himself and spread an atmosphere of enjoyment round him. He was shot down by a cowardly assassin worthy of his name, "Stokes." "Stokes" is just the name for an assassin, just as Fisk was a good name for the prince of good fellows, whose sudden taking off all the members of the dramatic profession will mourn. "Fisk!" It reminds us of champagne. Like a bottle of good wine he has sparkled, effervesced, and vanished.

One for Page.

M. Garnier Page scored one a short time ago while talking with some friends;

"Yes!" he cried, "yes, if I had remained in Paris during the Commune, the atrocities which we all deplore would never have been committed." "Why then, did you not remain there?" asked a friend.

"Because they would have shot me!" replied Pages.

Barnum's Big Hyena On a Tear.

Barnum possesses a keen inventive genius for advertising his shows, and no recent exhibition of his talent in this respect has been more successful than the big hyena scare, which he has been perpetrating during a week or two recently in New York, where his circus and menagerie are Wintering and giving exhibitions. First he got Bergh to visit the concern, and took care that the simple-minded, benevolent old party, should notice a hideous big hyena, which was firmly fastened down by a strong chain through the bottom of its cage, so that his ugly nose was kept very near the door all the time. Of course Bergh protested against this confinement as cruelty, and wanted the chain taken off. That was just what P. T. wanted First there was the advertisement of Bergh's visit; next there came a score more of advertisements, in the shape of protests against taking off the chain; stories of the terrible and incredible strength and ferocity of the untameable monster, and speculations as to the fearful havoc he would make if he got his liberty—as he certainly would if the cage alone were depended upon for holding him. Then the hyena's chain was taken off for the crowning sensation. Of course the beast scorned the puny strength of a cage. First he gnawed a partition, probably hoping to find some plump, toothsome monkeys, or other little delicacies, but he was disappointed to discover instead, a small but healthy tiger, which decidedly objected to being eaten up. In about five minutes, when the fur settled, sufficiently for a glimpse to be got of the interior of the cage, it was found that Mr. Hyena, had retired, in good order, and with undiminished appetite, however, to his own quarters, and commenced operations on the other end. This also he went through, but had a scarcely more cheering interview with a leopard in that compartment than he had before enjoyed with the tiger. He now became wearied of the monotony of restriction to his cage, and tearing apart the large iron bars, skipped out on the saw-dust for a war dance with all surrounding nature. The impression prevailing among bystanders at this point, was that they hadn't lost any hyena, and didn't care about finding any. Naturally, there is some confusion in the stories concerning the hyena's operations from this point. His course was traced by its results, rather than carefully reported by disinterested spectators. From a careful compilation of all the published accounts, however, we have come to the conclusion, that the ravenous fiend ate up a pony or two, a few cages of monkeys, some camels, a few bisons, and sacred cows, a leopard, an elephant and some score or more of miscellaneous animals of smaller size and less importance. Finally he became surfeited, which does not seem improbable in view of the extent of his repast, and allowed himself to be lassoed by a "Digger Indian"—(that looks fishy)—and reconducted to his cage, where he was securely chained down and left to enjoy the pleasures of a quiet digestion and the memories of a somewhat exciting evening's sport. Now, it is said, Barnum meditates suit, against Bergh for the amount of damage incurred by obedience to his order to "let the oppressed go free." This would be a magnificent climax, after all this splendid advertisement to make Bergh pay for it.

Very Naturaal.

Some oysters are a very dark color, and connoisseurs prefer these. The other evening, Winant of the Pacific Oyster House opened an oyster of this description and a customer refused it, saying "it looked mortified." Winant explained that it was natural to suppose an oyster was mortified at being opened.

The Aerial Suspension.

We took the New York Mercury to task last week for its unprofessional conduct in publishing an explanation of a stage trick. It seems that Professor Silvester, also protested. The Mercury of December 24th has the following in this connection:

We gave an account last week of the mesmeric performance by Professor Silvester, the magician, upon Miss Angelique Schott, in which the lady leaned her elbow upon a post and was mysteriously suspended in the air. We gave as a solution of the apparent phenomenon that the young lady was encased in a jointed iron frame-work, which her dress concealed, and that steel blades passed down her limbs, which were necessarily somewhat padded in order to conceal the projection which the blades might make in silk tights. In speaking of the application of a handkerchief to the young lady's nose, apparently containing ether, we presumed that ether was spilled in the auditorium, in order to create the smell of the drug which existed there. The solution of the trick, which we learned from several individuals in the variety profession, is pronounced erroneous by the Professor. He does not, however, vouchsafe a true explanation. As regards the spilling of ether in the auditorium, as we did not see the operation, we can only infer it. As a Mercury representative, we were hailed in the lobby of the the theatre by the Professor at the close of his performance one evening, and invited into the private barroom of the establishment. The Professor wore a fur cap, and treated drinks with magnificence. He announced himself as owner of the Charing Cross Theatre in London and the Walnut-street Theatre in Kansas City, and exhibited telegrams from various managers, offering terms of wondrous magnitude. He charged us with injuring his business by the publition. We merely wished to enlighten our readers. The young lady was seated on a stool near the stove. She confined her grief to our incidental mention of her pads. "You said I wore pads, sir! I never put on such things in the whole course of my life, sir!" She looked pretty on the stage, but she was six times as pretty off it.

A Warning To Tipplers.

Florence, the comedian, tells a capital story of a waiter at one of the London taverns who was sadly given to drink. A party of young men determined to reform him and one day read an imaginary paragraph from the paper, relating a terrible accident in which an inebriate, in blowing out a candle, was killed by the flame igniting the fumes of his breath. Jerry pricked up his ears at this, and requested that the paragraph might be read to him again, which was done to the evident horror of the poor man, who immediately went in search of the cook, to borrow a prayer book. Returning with this, he expressed a desire to take solemn oath upon it, bemoaned the fact that he had been a sorry tippler, and was bringing himself to ruin, and then swore; that never again, so long as he lived, would he—attempt to blow out a candle.

A Natural Mistake.

Muffington reading the following in a contemporary, "A Geneva Ill. foundry manufactures seven tons of sad-irons a week," said he didn't know what "sad-irons" were but he supposed they were hand-cuffs.

No Actor

John Brougham is said to relate a good joke. Lester Wallack had been quizzing him and it is known a great deal of rivalry existed between them formerly. Brougham says he had a deram once that Lester Wallack appeared at the gates of Heaven with a beautiful four-in-hand, and demanded admission, St. Paul or Peter, whoever was doorkeepers immediately admitted him when he said his name was Wallack, the next day he (John Brougham) attempted to enter, but the gates were slammed in his face—St. Peter exclaiming "we admit no actors here!" But, says Brougham, you admitted Lester Wallack yesterday. Oh, says St. Peter, "He is no actor!"

A Great Privilege.

The Austrian women have certain legal rights which those in America might be happy to boast. They can refuse to accompany their husbands to any locality which endangers their liberty, life, or health, and unless married to military men, can refuse to be parties to perpetual peregrinations and to settling in foreign countries. The consequence is, "Grass widows" abound in Austria.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

Rain or shine this favorite theatre never lacks patronage. The performance last night was a most excellent one. The Reynolds Brothers presented some of the best acts in their repertoire: Leon, Edwin Kelly, Miss Fanny Gibson and S. Holdsworth, sang the gems of Offenbach's operetta of "La Rose de St. Fleur" delightfully, and presented an amusing travesty of the libretto. The "drama" entitled "A Dime Novel," which concluded the evening's entertainment, is made up of all the sensations ever presented on any stage, which follow one another in rapid succession. Leon was immense as Laura Sherwood, and Edwin Kelly was all that could be desired as Skinner. The rest of the characters were well filled.

California Theatre.

In spite of the rain Mr. Carden's benefit was well attended. The performance went off well. "David Garrick" was well played, and the Screen Scene from the "School for Scandal," with John McCullough, Henry Edwards, James Carden and Miss May Howard in the respective parts of Charles Surface, Sir Peter Teazle, Joseph Surface, and Lady Teazle, was presented in a style that could be equaled in few theatres in the United States. In the musical intermezzo Miss Georgie Loomis did a song and dance, capitally; Mrs Julia Melville sang an aria finely; Vivian, who was heartily welcomed, gave some of his best songs, Lotta McCarthy a song and dance, and the Misses Stanley performed a clog dance which was loudly applauded. To-night Miss Annette Ince will make her first appearance as Parthenia in "Ingomar," John McCullough playing the title role. The evening's entertainment will conclude with a clog dance by the Misses Stanley.

Metropolitan Theatre.

E. T. Stetson gained frequent applause for his rendition of Richard III, last night and fairly brought down the house in the combat scene. He dressed the part with republican simplicity, and his Richard was somewhat lacking in Kingly dignity; but he made many points in a style suited to the comprehension of the general public, and thus gained their applause. Miss Henrietta Osborne read the part of Queen Elizabeth with admirable feeling. The warm welcome she received on making her appearance proved how great a favorite she is with the California public. James M. Hardy was a capital Richmond, Harry Colton read the part of the Duke of Buckingham beautifully: Miss Fanny Young made some good points as Lady Anne, and Miss Lulu Wilson gained a round of applause for her acting in the part of the Duke of York. To-night "The Lady of Lyons" will be presented, with E. T. Stetson as Claude Melnotte and Miss Henrietta Osborn as Pauline.

Bella Union.

The entertainment at this place of amusement is as bright and lively as can be imagined and will chase away the blues on the rainiest of nights. We have before referred to the excellence of the first part and interlude. In the afterpiece of "The Nymphs of the Hill," Ed. Montague, Samwells, Lon McCarthy, Minnie Fillmore, Marie Zoel, Carrie Chapman, and many others appear, and the play ends with the flight of the Avitor.

Theatre Comique.

There will be a change in the performance at this place of amusement to-night. The roaring farce of "Americans in Paris," Frank Jones's Lively Moke and other popular features remain on the bill.

The Oxford.

Dick O'Neil, the indefatigable business manager, is on his legs again and has in preparation more novelties for this place of amusement where Miss Amelia Dean and her band of male and female minstrels delight large houses nightly.

Holiday Fare.

Those Who have no family circle where they can sup Christmas and New Year's holidays, can fare sumptuously at Jones' Oyster Palace, next door to the California Theatre. There they can find every luxury of the season: the choicest wines, and the most experienced of cooks and attendants. The private rooms for dinner and supper parties, are the admiration of all who have seen them, [illegible] IV

The Sage Brush Drama.

The Marysville Appeal has the following: Messrs Goodman and Daggett, of the Virginia Enterprise, have but recently completed a drama entitled "The Psychoscope," which is to be brought out in the East in due time. This joint dramatic effort is spoken of by an Eastern gentleman—in whose opinion we have great confidence—as an exceedingly meritorious production, and one far in advance of any of the sensational plays of the American stage. The gentleman has read and carefully examined the drama referred to, and a long experience as a journalist and critic, entitles his opinion to consideration. We give the substance of his remarks, which are to the point. He says: "The Psychoscope," boasts of a plot, which gradually unfolds itself and leads to a happy denouement. There are several well sustained characters, among which are Tripp, a zealous newspaper reporter and dramatic author; Percy Boshem, an inventive genius and the originator of the "Psychoscope, or Soul Mirror;" Philo Bundy, a healthy rollicking countryman, of the large-hearted order; Mr. Starch, a fop, a professional burglar and the traditional villain, detective, and rich father. The heroine is a Miss Royalton, a sweet womanly character, and scarcely less charming is her friend Constance, both ladies standing forth in all the graces of genuine womanhood, and in contrast with some of the frailer sisterhood who are made to figure very naturally in the plot. The sentiment of the play is fresh, delicate, healthy, and finds poetic expression in an unforced way. Its satire is keen, and always finds its legitimate object. While its humor has both breadth and frequency. The three first named characters are strongly individualized, the situations are strikingly impressive, and the climax, which is reached at the altar, is startling enough for the most exacting disciple of the realistic drama. The particular streak of genius in the play is the exceedingly delicate and subtle means by which the officers and the audience are led to suspect an innocent party of the guilt of murder, a delusion from which the audience find no escape, until the "Psychoscope, or Soul Mirror" is brought into requisition and fairly reflects the scene of the assassination from the soul of the criminal. The officers of the law, still later, find conclusive evidence by which the innocence of the suspected is established and the guilt of the real assassin proved. A delicate mechanical apparatus is to be used as the Psychoscope, and an application of certain well known chemical laws are to help on the mystery of the drama. As a whole the play reflects credit upon its authors, and, properly mounted cannot fail of success." That is the opinion of this gentleman, and we give it as against the opinion of some of our San Francisco theatrical critics who have written upon it. They would "prune it of its sage brush," he would have it as it is.

Pen Portrait of Lucy Stone.

Persons who have seen Lucy Stone figuring at "hen" gathering will recognize this portrait: "She is a plump, little lady, who looks on the stage as if she had come there from a dinner party where the turkey, oysters and coffee were so superlatively good that she had taken too much of them and was uncomfortable in consequence, She is certainly dressed for a country dinner party, in an orthodox old-fashioned black silk dress, and one is somehow always looking for her to pull out a half-finished gray stocking of great proportions unroll it, stick a knitting-needle in her hair and fall to counting stitches. She has a pleasant, motherly way of speaking, and a wide unhandsome mouth, with which to utter the thoughts that arise in her. Her face is very red, the effects of turkey, coffee and oysters, and her hair is combed smooth and shining, with a knot and a fall behind the ears, very common a few years ago, but very ugly now."

SOWING SEEDS.

We are sowing, daily sowing,
Countless seeds of good and ill,
Scattered on the lovely lowland,
Cast upon the windy hill;
Seeds that sink on rich brown furrows,
Soft with Heaven's gracious rain;
Seeds that rest upon the surface
Of the dry, unyielding plain.

Seeds that fall amid the stillness
Of the lowly mountain glen;
Seeds cast out in crowded places,
Trodden under feet of men;
Seeds by idle hearts forgotten,
Flung at random on the air;
Seeds by faithful souls remembered,
Sown in tears and love and prayer.

Seeds that lie unchanged, unquickened,
Lifeless on the teeming mold;
Seeds that grow and live and flourish
When the sower's hand is cold;
By a whisper sow we blessings,
By a breath we scatter strife;
In our words and looks and actions
Lie the seeds of death and life.

Thou who knowest all our weakness,
Leave us not to sow alone!
Bid thine angels guard the furrows
Where the precious grain is sown.
Till the fields are crowned with glory,
Filled with yellow ripened ears—
Filled with fruit and life eternal
From the seeds we sowed in tears.

Check the forward thoughts and passions,
Stay the hasty, heedless hands,
Lest the germs of sin and sorrow
Mar our fair and pleasant lands.
Father, help each weak endeavor,
Make each faithful effort blest,
Till Thine harvest shall be garnered,
And we enter into rest.

Riding in the Storm.

A correspondent of the EXAMINER, writes us as follows:

We left Boonsville, Anderson Valley, about 7 o'clock, the Saturday morning preceding Christmas, in an open stage, bound for Cloverdale.

It rained incessantly all night, so that the rivers and streams which the day previous were almost impassable were now swollen to perfect torrents. The roads in many places had been gullied out from the rains, so that now, to avoid some of the worst places, the driver took to the hills and drove through woods and fields. After swimming several streams, when everything light in the body of the stage would float; driving over hills, going down which the wheels had to be locked and logs tied behind to keep the wagon from running over the horses; driving through mud and water with the rain beating in our faces, we at last reached Dry Creek, which we were told by the farmers was higher than they had ever known it before. We were persuaded, under peril of our lives, not to cross; but the driver, J. P. Baldwin, who is ever to be commended for his excellent driving, said he would undertake it. Nine times it had to be crossed, and nine times it had to be swam. It was undertaken and crossed safely. It is not the most pleasant kind of riding in an open stage, with water underneath and overhead, the horses swimming and the wagon floating: but where and in what conveyance do we not have to run risks in traveling?

Dry Creek crossed, our danger was over, and we rode on as before, with nothing worse than a thorough wetting, and reached Cloverdale in time to take the stage for Healdsburg, where, before the kitchen range in the kitchen of the hotel, we dried ourselves as best we could.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street adjoining the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of epicures

Reformed Himself.

Florence, the comedian, tells a capital story of a waiter at one of the London taverns who was sadly given to drink. A party of young men determined to reform him, and one day they read an imaginary paragraph from a paper relating to a terrible accident, in which an inebriate, on blowing out a candle, was killed by the flames igniting with the fumes of his breath. Jerry pricked up his ears at this, and requested that that the paragraph might be read to him again, which was done to the evident horror of the poor man, who immediately went in search of a prayer book. Returning with this he expressed a desire to take a solemn oath upon it, bemoaned the fact that he had been a sorry tippler, and was bringing himself to ruin, and then swore that never, again, so long as he lived, would he attempt to blow out a candle!

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bonton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

RELIEF TO ALL DYSPEPTICS

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE REGULATOR KNOWN

Every Family should have a Bott. House.

MOST PLEASANT TONIC AND APPETIZER.

The inventor of this really wonderful TONIC, after a series of years and experiments, has succeeded in bringing before the public all that can can be desired of a pure Tonic and Recuperator.

CERTIFICATES:

I have carefully tested and examined your I X L Bitters, and find that they cannot fail to be beneficial as a tonic and promoter of digestion.

G. HOLLAND.

CITY AND COUNTY HOSPITAL, San Francisco, June 20th, 1871.—I should judge that the I X L Bitters must be a very efficient remedy in Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and similar complaints, being composed of a number of vegetable drugs which are principally used in diseases of that nature, and are of the greatest efficiency in their cure.—F. H. ENGELS, M. D., Asst. Resident Physician, Apothecary C. & C. Hospital.

STATE ASSAYER'S OFFICE, San Francisco, July 21st, 1871.—I have made a careful examination of your I X L Bitters, and have found them entirely free of deleterious mineral substances.—Yours etc., [illegible] State Assayer.

Beware of Counterfeits! None genuine without the signature of Dr. Henley across the top of each bottle. For sale everywhere.

DR. CHAS. H. TOZER'S PRIVATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE

N. E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

Big Enough.

The Boston correspondent of the New York Season says:

Wilcox & Co., have built a beautiful little organ for a private residence, of which I will shortly give your readers a description.

We have seen many an organ that was big enough for a private residence.

Tempting.

An exchange says: "Cream-colored cats are in great demand for stylish home circles." Where they are introduced other cats must be turned out as it is only natural that they would be tempted to "lick" cream colored cats.

Paltry Excuse.

A newspaper proprietor being urged to get a new dress, (new type) for his paper, replied: "Pshaw what's the good of buying a new dress in such weather as this? I'll wait till it stops raining."

A Grammatical Point.

Grammarians have decided that the term house-breaking should not take a hyphen, as it is obviously wrong to compound a felony We regard this ruling as mere "hyphenatin."

High Art.

Those painters who excel in the delineation of semi-nude female figures are now called "limbners."

Natural.

Our youngest reading a newspaper article the other day, asked "Pa, what's physical education? Doesn't it mean spanking?"

So Sad!

The Misfortunes of a Solicitor.

ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL, SAN FRANCISCO, January 8th, 1872.

DEAR FIGARO:—I humbly beg that you will afford me space in your columns to make known what I think you will consider a very hard case.

The case is my own.

I came to California about three weeks ago from the city of Utica, State of New York, where I was engaged as ribbon clerk in one of the largest retail stores.

Anxious to get into work at once, I made a point of reading all the advertisements in the San Francisco papers, and answering all which seemed to offer employment suitable to one of my abilities.

Last week the following advertisement in one of the morning papers attracted my attention:

GREAT CHANCE:

AN ACTIVE AND INTELLIGENT YOUNG man of good address can get employment which will bring from $ 09 to $3.0 a month, by addressing X. Y. Z., at this office. N. B.—Must be a good talker.

I had answered similar advertisements before, and in most cases found that I was required to lean my would-be employers from $1,000 to $20,000. However, I answered this one, and was directed to call on Messrs. Cleavem & Freelove, attorneys at law.

I did so, and was informed by Mr. Cleavem, a pale, spotty-faced young man, that the employment offered was that of "divorce solicitor."

"While we have a good criminal connection," said he, "our chief business is divorce, and there is so much competition in this line that we have determined to employ a solicitor. Your best way," he continued, "will be to divide the city out in sections, and canvass each section separately."

"I do not exactly understand," I said. "How am I to know who require diverces?"

"That's just it," replied Mr. Cleavem; "how are you to know without asking? You must enquire. I will give you an idea of how you are to proceed. You call at a house some time in the afternoon, after all the household work is finished; probably a woman will come to the door. If a man answers your knock, you ask if Mr. Tompkins lives there, excuse yourself and leave. If, as I say will probably be the case, a woman comes, you ask her if her husband is at home. If, as again is likely to be the case, he is not, you begin to broach the subject of your visit delicately. You must be guided by circumstances, but in a great many cases it would be safe to sigh, look at her compassionately, and say, 'he's out a good deal, isn't he?' Then if you receive the slightest encouragement, as in most cases you will, you can delicately—very delicately—introduce your business, and explain that we procure divorces for $80, and even less where the poor, ill-used wife has but little money and our sympathies are aroused. Do you see?"

"Yes," I replied, but it seems to me that this is altogether too delicate a business. Divorce is a delicate thing to talk of."

"Not at all, if you do it neatly. I am sure a man of your evident intelligence will find many ways to introduce the subject so as not to offend. You need have no scruples in engaging in this business; it is strictly honorable. You will use your own judgment as to whether a divorce is advisable and if it would be proffer the services of Cleavem & Freelove, and prevent the parties falling in the hands of unscrupulous harpies who will rob her of every every cent she possesses. In many cases you will be able to heal the breach existing between man and wife by urging forbearance and long suffering, but in cases where forbearance has ceased to be a virtue and the chain has proved to be too galling, to be borne, you can advise an immediate application to Cleavem & Freelove."

By these specious arguments my scruples were removed and I entered on my new employment with the understanding that I was to receive 25 per cent. of all counsel fees. I commenced operations the following day. I called at a house on Minna street. (For the purpose of giving myself a business-like, legal appearance I carried in my hand a law book borrowed from the office of Cleavem & Freelove.) A very masculine-looking Irishwoman came to the door followed by six children. She had no sooner caught sight of me than she cried without giving me a chance to speak:

"To the divil wid ye and your subscription books. I don't want any," and then she slammed the door in my face.

At the next house a very pretty-looking young woman came to the door with a baby of some six months old in her arms. I thought it would be useless to talk to a woman about divorce before her first baby was weaned, so I asked if Mr. Tompkins lived there and having received a negative answer left. Altogether the result of my prospecting tour in Minna street was most unsatisfactory. All the women there had children and a great number were Catholics, who, as you are aware, do not believe in the ability of the law to absolve from the vows imposed by the church. One very merry-looking Irishwoman, who looked very little as if she were a victim to ill-usage at her husband's hands, declared "that it was a shame so it was that a woman should have to work like a slave and her husband should get drunk as a baste every Saturday night if not oftener."

I assured her that habitual intemperance was sufficient cause for a divorce. Then she told me to call again next day. I noticed that as I left she raptdly called together a number of her neighbors and seemed to be pointing me out to them. I thought that she was advertising my business, and considering I had done enough for one day, I went home.

The next day I called upon my client. Her husband was at home.

I would have retired, but he and about a dozen men, who all looked like married men, prevented me.

The surgeon of the hospital, who is very kind and attentive, says my right arm is dislocated, my face is covered with bruises, and I have several wounds of the scalp. He promises that I shall be able to go out in three weeks.

I am yours respectfully,

LUKE WARREN.

A Life Saved

Don Piatt tells the following story: "A Sunday School superintendent out in Alsaka treated his entire charge to a sleigh ride. There were just 41 of the cherubs and a six horse sleigh. On the way home they were beset by a pack of ferocious wolves. Cool and collected in that hour of fearful trial, the heroic superintendent saw at a glance that he must be overtaken. In an instant his quick mind seized the only chance of escape. Seizing the child that always sung "I want to be an angel!" two notes too high, he flung it at the rapacious horde. It stayed their onward rush for a moment. Next came the little boy who never brought any pennies to the heathen. And so on swept the pursued and pursuers until the last infant was exhausted. But the brave fellow had economized his material nobly, and, besides a whole Sunday school slows off a pack of wolves perceptibly. We have always noticed this. In another moment the sleigh dashed into the village, and the grand, noble, true hearted man knew he was saved!

A Prophesy Partly Fulfilled.

This year Christmas came on Monday. The old poetical prophesy says:

If Christmas Day on Monday be,
A great winter that year you'll see,
And full of wind both loud and shrill;
But in the summer, truth to tell,
Stern winds shall there be, and strong,
Full of tempests and lasting long;
While battles they shall multiply,
And great plenty of beasts shall die;
He shall be found that stealeth aught,
Though thou be sick thou diest not.

A Child of Nature.

Some girls will never learn to restrain the natural impulses of their nature. A minister was baptising a girl at Ripon, Wis., and when he had submerged her, and came out of the water, he asked her how she felt in mind. Her answer was, "All hunkey, only a little wet."

Must Have Something.

The Amador Ledger has the following story:

A friend who was in Sacramento before the appointment of attaches of the Senate, recites to us the following: "Passing the Golden Eagle, where Democrats mostly do congregate, he saw our portly and benevolent Senator and President pro tem upon the sidewalk, with a burly San Francisco hoodlum, holding him by the coat collar with one hand, and gesticulating rapidly with the other; seeing that our Senator was terribly bored, our friend stepped up to relieve him, shook hands, and asked for a private conversation on business, whereupon the burly hoodlum took a firmer grip upon the Senator's collar and said: "Mr. Pro tem, Prisidint I mane, yees must not lave until ye say the boy shall be appointed; he,s a good boy, and worked hard for the parthy, an' he's poor; he has spint his time an' money for the parthy, an' his father's dead. On election days, he has gone into the cellars and under the wharves to rally the Democracy, an' his mither's a widdy. He's had more nor a hundred fights and has carried a torch in ivery Democratic procession for the last tin years and the poor boy's an orphan; and if yees can't give him a place in the Senate, you must do something for him by special legislation or the Democratic parthy in the Tenth Ward will go to the divil!".

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

"The Lady of Lyons" was capitally performed last night. E. T. Stetson read Bulwer's beautiful lines with admirable expression and quite succeeded in gaining the sympathy of the audience for the presumptious Claude Melnotte; Miss Henrietta Osborn played the part of Pauline charmingly, though in the fierce declamatory passages in which Pauline expresses her indignation at the deceit practised on her she was rather lacking in vigor. J. H. Vinson as bluff old Col. Dumas gained much applause and Fanny Hanks received a round for her delivery of one of Widow Melnotte's virtuous speeches. To-night "The Marble Heart" will be played with E. T. Stetson as Phidias and Raphael Duchalet, Miss Henrietta Osborn as Marco; James M. Hardie as Diogenes and Ferdinand Volarge, and the other parts well filled. T. E. Jackson and Miss Josie Langley from the Boston Theatre will shortly appear at this house.

Alhambra Theatre.

The first part, in which Edwin Kelly sings "Under the Snow," with admirable feeling, terminates with the song "Man the Life Boat," with panoramic illustrations. In the second part the statue log dance, by the Reynolds Brothers, is much admired. The burlesque of "La Rose de St Fleur," in which Leon appears as Lizzette, and Edwin Kelly, as the enamored Brown, is full of good music, and "A Dime Novel" lays all other sensation dramas in the shade by the number, variety, and audacity of its thrilling scenes.

California Theatre.

Miss Annette Ince, made her first appearance in many months at the California Theatre, last night, and personated Parthenia, in the play of "Ingomar." She received a hearty welcome. Both, Miss Ince, and John McCullough, were much applauded for their acting in their respective roles. To-night, Shakspeare's "As You Like It," will be presented, with Miss Ince, as Rosalind, and John McCullough as the melancholy Jaques. Miss Ince's engagement is but for a few nights, therefore the many admirers of her acting should not miss the opportunity of seeing her.

Bella Union.

The entertainment at the Bella Union Theatre is of the most varied description. It comprises a capital first part, an interlude consisting of character songs by Maggie Knight; pleasing ballads by Fanny Garretson; song and dance by Miss Josephine; gymnastics by Samwells and Montague; an attractive fancy dance by Miss Carrie Chapman, and other acts by Eugenia Gerrette, Chris. Mathews, Carrie Armstrong and J. H. Larkin, and others. Clara Starr has made a hit in her local song of "Prudence Small," and "The Nymphs of the Hill" causes much amusement.

Theatre Comique.

Among the new features introduced in the programme for to-night are a banjo duet by Frank Jones and Jake Wallace, and the Ethiopian sketch of "The Four O'clock Train." On Saturday night the ever popular Johnny Tuers will make his reappearance at this house.

The Oxford.

Jimmy Hall in original dances; Lizzie Harmon in sweet ballads; the Dutch Leon in character songs; Horatio Nelson in his great act of "The Dancing Scotchman;" Amelia Dean in fancy dances, and many others in attractive specialties will appear. The management announce for this evening the reappearance of Miss Carrie Willis and Miss Lizzie Loller.

Pavilion Skating Rink.

Public assemblies every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday mornings, Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday afternoons, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Club assemblies the other mornings, afternoons and evenings of the week. Professors Lovett and Callie Curtis give an exhibition every evenin at o'clock.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of al visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillieu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention are on exhibition

Prize Ball.

A prize ball and entertainment will be given a Fitzgibbon's Dancing School, Charter Oak Hall, 769 Market street, between Third and Fourth, under the management of Professor English, on Friday next. A watch and chain and a gold ring will be given to the best round dancers—the watch to the gentleman, and the ring to the lady. Entries for the prizes may be made at the Parlor Cigar Store, 726 Market street.

Pardy and Vincent's Minstrels.

This troupe left Portland December 28th, intending to make the trip back here,—overland, and show in the way towns. They will probably not be heard of this side of the Shasta Mountains, before next spring, without the weather improves.

Home from Europe.

Julien Perrault, M. Holiday Fare.

Those Who have no family circle where they can keep Christmas and New Year's holidays, can fare sumptuously at Jones' Oyster Palace, next door to the California Theatre. There they can find every luxury of the season: the choicest wines, and the most experienced of cooks and attendants. The private rooms for dinner and supper parties, are the admiration of all who have seen them. V

The Sly Smiler.

Colfax is not universally suspected of knowing how it is himself, but it seems that he does. He has talked and written about retiring from political life with singular iteration, but of late he has grown studious about the matter. His confidant and inveterate admirer, Mr. Samuel Bowles prints the following, which shows that Mr Colfax really intends to retire whenever he is absolutely and incontinently forced to. Here is the cheerful and delicate paragraph: "We have always supposed, in spite of Mr. Colfax's oft-expressed desire and purpose not to occcupy his present office another four years, that if the Republican Convention renominate General Grant, it would also renominate him and under such circumstances as would practically oblige him to accept. General Grant's friends already see they can carry the convention more surely on the whole of the old ticket than on a part of it, and we predict that they will go to the convention insisting that there shall be no change in the second office any more than the first. They have lately brought this contingency home to Mr. Colfax himself, and, according to the New York Times, he has made the only reply possible under the circumstances, namely—that it would bring with it considerations to which he should give all proper weight when it arrived, and that it would be a hard, perhaps an ungrateful, thing to throw back a nomination thus tendered; but that he could not and would not say anything now to authorize his friends to present his name for renomination, or in any way to excuse them in laboring to bring it about."

The Old-Fashioned Mother.

Thank God! some of us have an old-fashioned mother. Not a woman of the period, enameled and painted, with her chignon, her curls and bustle, whose white, jeweled hands have never felt the clasp of baby fingers, but a dear, old-fashioned, sweet-voiced mother, with eyes in whose clear depths the love light shone, and brown hair, threaded with silver, lying smooth upon her faded cheek. Those dear hands, worn with toil gently guided our tottering steps in childhood, and smoothed our pillow in sickness—even reaching out to us in yearning tenderness, when her sweet spirit was baptized in the pearly spray of the river. Blessed is the memory of an old-fashioned mother. It flows to us now like the beautiful perfume of some woodland blossoms. The music of other voices may be lost, but the entrancing memory of hers will echo in our souls forever. Other faces will fade away and be forgotten, but hers will shine on until the light from Heaven's portal shall glorify our own. When, in the fitful pauses of busy life, our feet wander back to the old homestead and, crossing the well-worn threshold, stand once more in the low, quaint room, hallowed by her presence, how the feeling of childish innocence and dependence comes over us, and we kneel down in the molten sunshine, streaming through the western window—just where long years ago we knelt by our mother's knee, lisping "Our Father." How many times, when the tempter lures us on, has the memory of those sacred hours, that mother's words, her faith and prayers, saved us from plunging into the deep abyss of sin! Years have filled great drifts between her and us, but they have not hidden from our sight the glory of her pure, unselfish love.

Don't do It.

The Eugene City Guard speaking of a Western gentleman who advertises for a self-supporting wife, says:

We refer him to Miss Susan B. Anthony By marrying her he will get just the article he desires and confer a great blessing on the American people besides.

We dont knew whether Miss Anthony would be willing to support him, but are sure he would soon find her insupportable.

Knows How it Is.

A writer in an English review says that "a man in real love is an idiot that ought to be knocked down out of hand and bound hand and foot and laid aside till the fit has gone off him." Evidently that writer has been pretty low down in real love himself, and the way he writes we think the fit hasn't gone off him.

PLAYING ON THE GREEN.

Oh, Simpson dear, and did you hear
The news that's going round?
They have made a raid on gambling,
And have run it in the ground.
No more shall faro games be kept,
The dealers can't be seen,
For there's a cruel law against
The playing on the green.

Oh, I met with bold Put Robinson
And took him by the hand,
And I said, Oh, how is gambling,
And how does faro stand?
It's the most distressed and hunted game
That ever yet was seen—
They're sending men to prison now
For playing on the green.

Then since the orders we have got
Came from Chief Crowley's head,
Sure gamblers' sons will ne'er forget
What Judge Stanley now has said.
You may take your cards out of the box,
And faro checks besides,
You'll never more have use for them
While Louderback presides.

I've heard whisper of a city
"Virginia," they say,
Where faro's licensed, monte too,
Both by the night and day;
Where no cruel charges to a jury
In print are ever seen,
And where there is no law against
The playing on the green.

Oh, 'Frisco, must we leave thee,
Driven by Chief Crowley's band?
Must we seek a gambler's welcome
In a dreary sage-brush land,
Where Judge Stanley's cruel orders
Can never more be seen,
Where, please the pigs, we'll live and die
Still coppering the Queen?

Woodhull and Claflin in the Rossel Funeral Procession—Remarks by the Gamins.

[St. Louis Republican New York Letter.]

If Victoria and Tennessee were not amused, they must be difficult creatures to entertain. The boys invited them to speak, and were particularly happy in their remarks on their personal appearance. A big tow-headed boy sung out: "Which is the old cat they calls the next President? Oh! my, aint she ugly! Say old gal, give us a song and dance. Is that your own hair or a scratch? Open yer mouth—yer 'fraid to, for fear the boss cars 'l think it's the depot and drive in?" "Jebu! what a nose," says a lad within a foot of Victoria; "I hain't seen such a nose since I had the measles, and then the doctor had it to prick a bile with." The nasty nuisances stood in solid masses about the women. Colonel Blood and Stephen Pearl Andrews manfully strove to protect the brokeresses. But the boys seemed to know all about matters, and said: "Now his blood's up"—"Say, Capt'n, it's all right—we're all free lovers." When a cheap transparency made its appearance with a delegation, bearing the inscription: "And they had all things in common," then the crowd shouted: "Fetch that banner over here." "Give it to Woodhull." "Here's the gal for that motto." Finally the procession started, and those unhappy women, footsore and insulted, walked miles through the mud which covered everything, supported by the greatest rabble that ever paraded, one weak band, thirty or forty lower class French women, and thousands of wild, hungry-looking men. It was ridiculous on the part of the police to interfere with the Communists, as they did on the preceding Sunday, since that act was the only one that gave any sort of consequence to the whole affair.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 537 Bush street adov the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of epicures

Extreme Cold in New York.

The New York Herald of December 23d says: If our Russian guests had happened to have been in the city yesterday, they must have been satisfied with the Siberian and Kamschatka-like character of the weather. It was decidedly the champion "cold snap" of the season, and if that venerable old graybeard, the "oldest inhabitant," can point to a severer day, let him "trot it out." The average temperature in the city yesterday was thirty-two degrees below that of the same day last year.

Never since Monday, the 8th day of January, 1866, when the thermometer stood fifteen degrees below zero in this city, has there been so cold a day as yesterday. At six o'clock in the morning the thermometer stood at one degree below zero, and at six in the evening at seven degrees above.

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

PRIVATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE

N.E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco. HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in this celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny street, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

Death of Gen. Halleck.

A telegraphic dispatch received this morning, informs us of the death of General Halleck, which occurred last night at Louisville, Kentucky. General Halleck was a pioneer resident of California, and at the time of his death was one of the owners of Montgomery Block, and other property in this city. His public record during the war is too fresh in the memory of our readers to need mention by us.

Something from Tennyson.

Here is something from Tennyson's new poem of a thousand lines:

Down in a casement sat,
A low sunset glorying round her hair,
And glossy-throated grace, Isolt the Queen,
And when she heard the feet of Tristam grind
The spiring stone that scaled about her tower,
Flush'd started, met him at the doors, and there
Belted his body with her white embrace.

"Belted his body" would be all right Alfred, if you were describing the great international contest between Heenan and Sayers. But to say your heroine met Tristram at the tower doors and "Belted his body with her white embrace," is too suggestive of her having "put a head on him" afterwards. It is not a good figure of speech for a poet-laureate to use.

A Mushroom City.

We hear sometimes that the grass is growing in the streets of a city. The Oakland Transcript has an item on mushrooms and says:

This dainty article is gathererd by scores in our city, and the epicure relishes them, judging from the sale.

Adelina and Carlotta Patti.

The New York Dispatch gives the following account of the two great prima donnas of the age:

The sisters Patti were born in the sunny land of song, but were educated musically here by their parents, one of whom had been a prima donna of note. Hence they might almost be regarded as American artistes. Their ancestors were all musicians of notability in Italy, and they have inherited, as if by birthright, exquisite voices, and that instinctive love for music as well as that genial and emotional warmth that seems inseparable from the land of their birth.

Adelina was the first to leave America, and chose the operatic stage of Europe for the scene of her future labors. She at once achieved the pinnacle of fame, and to-day she stands with hardly a rival near her lyric throne. Now, as ever, she is petted, prized, and musically worshiped in every city in Europe. In London this past season she saved the fortunes of the Royal Italian Opera, and is now enjoying a renewed career of triumphs on the continent. We remember Adelina Patti in her youth here, and the rich promise she gave of future surpassing excellence—we have heard her in the full effulgence of her ripened talent—and we have no hesitation in saying that should she ever return to this, the land of her early adoption, she will receive such a greeting as has seldom been given to any other prima donna, for Americans have just reason to be proud of her whose youthful talents were fostered by their smiles, and who now is recognized as one of the greatest living lyric prima donnas.

Carlotta Patti did not follow her sister until some little time had elapsed. She too possessed, as all who have heard her know, a marvelous voice, but of a different register and quality to that of her sister Adelina, and one which had an equally thrilling effect on her auditors. As if intent on securing a different sphere of action, she adopted the concert room; and thus the two sisters shone as bright particular stars in two distinct spheres. In London she was at once recognized as queen of the concert room, and during its brief season sang at no less than fifty concerts; thence she was engaged at what may be regarded as almost a fabulous salary, for a concert tour through Germany, Holland and France. She went to Paris as a perfect stranger, but unaided save by her own talent, she achieved even a more brilliant success than in London.

Having thus taken by storm the two great capitals, her fame and reputation were accomplished facts, and for six years subsequently she was engaged in concert tours throughout the whole of continental Europe, during which time she sang at upward of twelve hundred concerts with unfailing success, the singular purity, extraordinary compass and exquisite cultivation of her voice taking alike, press, public, and critics, by storm.

Her return for a brief period to America, and her concert tour, will be well remembered for the brilliant success she achieved. Since then she has visited South America with similar results. She is now in Europe, and has forsaken at last the concert room (except occasionally) for the operatic stage, and henceforth will be a friendly rival of her sister, Adelina. Would that they might be both heard again here, and in opera, with a full and efficient company of Italian singers to support them.

Just So.

The Oakland News has the following:

Infra Dig.—FIGARO mentions a couple of respectable burglars who so far forgot the dignity of their profession as to descend to "rolling a drunk." Rather than had that occur, FIGARO would have rolled the contemptable drunk, himself.

That is if his name had been "Mac," We'd have rolled him into bed.

A Scene Not Down in The Bills.

An event occured at Pike's Opera House, Cincinnati, lately, which was not down in the play bills. The Wallack-Richings combination were playing "Rob Roy," "The play had progressed as usual," says the Cincinnati Inquirer, "to the point where Captain Thornton, (E. S. Russell) in attempting to cock the pistol with both hands, discharged the weapon, terribly mangling his hand. He turned as if nothing had happened out of the way, and went to the usual place, but there fell fainting from pain. The Dougal, (H. C. Curley) dropped at the report, turned two or three times around—as stage traditions require the Dougal creature to do—jumped up and went for his prisoner, whom he found bleeding and senseless at the wing. The mimic death was applauded. "Splendidly done," said the doctor, who sat by us. "Did you notice that he fired directly in the face of the orchestra leader!" said we, "and that he is not up in the part?" Several noticed this much; no one of all the thousand there anything more. The play proceeded to its close, someone taking the remainder of Russel's part. Few imagined that when Helen McGregor, (Mrs. V. H. Germon) came on panting as from the fight, her excitement was partly caught at a couch where she had been hastily ministering to a pallid sufferer, and round which were gathered in sympathy the entire company, even the Red McGregor feeling for the Saxon Captain, over whose couch knelt Dr. Vernon. A surgeon was hastily sent for and Dr. Johnson amputated the little finger, and bound up the hideous wound within hearing of the applause without—an applause that often illustrates well the "Arabian Nights" story of the critics, who praised the statues for fidelity to nature, and found fault with the real men petrified.

Just So.

The story is told of Dr. Bellamy, that one of his Parishoners, who was a notorious scamp, came to him saying in the parlance of the divinity that pervaded that part of New England at the period; "I feel that I have obtained a hope" The doctor looked surprised. "I realize that I am the chief of sinners," continued the hypocritical canter, 'Your neighbors have been long of the opinion," rejoined the doctor. The man went on to say out of the lesson: "I feel willing to be damned for the glory of God," "Well, my friend, I don't know anyone who has the slightest objection."

Oh Yes.

Somebody says novels familiarize men's minds with societies not confined to any age country, or class. The poorest student treads palace rooms. The seamstress in her garret penetrates into the exclusive boudoirs.

Yes, indeed there are thousands who have gained an intimate knowledge of the manner of life of the English nobility by reading Reynold's novels!

A Practical Illustration.

One of the placards carried in the International Procession on Sunday, in New York, was inscribed with the text: "And they had all things in common." And it was while reading this, that one of the victims of police apathy felt his watch wrenched away from his pocket. Many a one of those hard-working sons of toil was a watch-maker in a crowd.

Very few Italian opera singers are now found in musical circles, it having been proven that English, French and German artists have much superior and less effeminate voices.

Henry Smith, of Wheeling, who for sixteen years has lived out of doors with no shelter but a hollow tree, died last week from exposure.

The latter part of a wise man's life is taken up in curing the follies, prejudices, and false opinions he has contracted in the former.

Qualities of a Good Collector.

Is on time to a minute when the debtor says "come to-morrow at nine o'clock."

Sits on the steps and waits for his return when he says "I am just going to dinner."

Insists on stepping out to make change when the man "has nothing less than a twenty.

Will go for an "old stranger" every day for a month with a cheerful countenance about that little account.

Doesn't mind edging into a crowd to ask a fellow.

Will take a dollar in part if he can't get ten in whole, and credit it with thankful alacrity.

Always suggests a check when the money is not at hand, as he can get it cashed to-morrow.

Always has that account on top so the man can make no excuse for putting him off.

Don't mind asking for it immediately after being treated or pleasantly entertained.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

After a good first part, and amusing interlude, consisting of the burlesque of "La Rose de St. Fleur," with Kelly and Leon in the leading roles, and the performances of the versatile Reynolds Brothers, the extravagant piece of absurdity called 'A Dime Novel," which out-herods Herod in the way of sensation, (by the by,—how would the 'Slaughter of the Innocents" do for a sensation drama?) is produced, cast to the full strength of the company, and with the inimitable Leon in the character of the strong-minded heroine, no wonder the Alhambra is crowded nightly.

California Theatre.

Shakspeare's "As You Like It" was excellently well performed last night. Miss Annette Ince read the part of Rosalind in a manner which proved that she had a thorough conception of the part; John McCullough gave due emphasis to the philosophical utterances of Jacques; Miss Ellie Wilton made a very pleasing Celia; Miss Minnie Walton fitted the part of Phœbe exactly, and played it with delightful vivacity; Henry Edwards read and acted the character of the Duke finely; Owen Marlowe, of whom we see too little on the stage, gave a finished piece of acting in Orlando, and the play was well performed. It will be repeated to-night.

Metropolitan Theatre.

"The Marble Heart" was presented in excellent style last night. It was well put on the stage and acted throughout. E. T. Stetson portrayed the passions of love, jealousy and despair in the character of Raphael Duchalet with much force. J. M. Hardie was very good as Volage, sometimes not quite rattling enough, just a little too deliberate, but he made his points in a telling manner; Miss Henrietta Osborne made an excellent Marco and gained much applause for the manner in which she delivered the cold-blooded speech in which she describes how her heart became marble. Miss Fanny Young played Marie with much feeling and the other parts were well filled. To-night the same bill will be played.

Bella Union.

Maggie Knight, Samwells and Montague, Eugenia Gerretta, Carrie Armstrong and J. H. Larkin, and many others, are very good in special acts. The pantomimic sketch entitled "Don Juan," which is the plot of the opera of "Don Giovanni" condensed and amusingly burlesqued, is well played by Miss Carrie Chapman, who makes a dashing Don Juan Samwells, Montague, J. H. Larkin, Taylor and Bree. A great bill is in preparation for Saturday night.

Theatre Comique.

Johnny Tuers and Charley Brooks know how to run a show and they give the public a long varied and popular entertainment for the low price of admission of two bits. The programme appears on our first page.

The Oxford.

The pleasing ballads of Lizzie Harmon, the eccentric dances of Jimmy Hall, and the versatile Gus Sprague, the extravaganza entitled "Wholesale Thieves," and numerous other popular acts appear in the programme for to-night.

Pavilion Skating Rink.

Public assemblies every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday mornings, Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday afternoons, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Club assemblies the other mornings, afternoons and evenings of the week. Professors Lovett and Callie Curtis give an exhibition every evenin at o'clock.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism: the De Chaillieu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention are on exhibition

Prize Ball.

A prize ball and entertainment will be given a Fitzgibbon's Dancing School, Charter Oak Hall, 769 Market street, between Third and Fourth, under the management of Professor English, on Friday next. A watch and chain and a gold ring will be given to the best round dancers—the watch to the gentleman, and the ring to the lady. Entries for the prizes may be made at the Parlor Cigar Store, 729 Market street.

Two Ways.

There are two ways of going through this world. One is to make the best of it, and the other to make the worst of it. Those who take the latter course work had for very poor pay.

Tempting.

A South-Western paper offers this inducement: "All subscribers paying in advance, will be entitled to a first-class obituary notice in case of death.

Opening Remarks in Mark Twain's Lecture.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: By request of the chairman of the committee, who has been very busy and is very tired, I suppose, I ask leave to introduce to you the lecturer of the evening, Mr. Clemens, otherwise Mark Twain, a gentlemen whose great learning, whose historical accuracy, whose devotion to science, and whose veneration for the truth [laughter] are only equaled by his moral character and his majestic presence. [Renewed laughter,] I refer these vague general terms to myself. [Giggling.] I am a little opposed to the custom of ceremoniously introducing the lecturer to the audience, because it seems to me unnecessary where the man has been properly advertised [laughter], and besides it is very uncomfortable for the lecturer. But where it is the custom, an introduction ought to be made, and I had rather make it myself in my own case, and then I can rely on getting in all the facts. [Continued laughter.] It is not a simple introduction that I mind. I don't really care for that at all, but it is the compliments that sometimes go with it—that is what hurts. It would make anyone uncomfortable. You can fancy a young lady introduced to a parlor-full of company as the best conversationalist, the best model in every way, in her section of the country. You might just as well knock her in the head. She could not say a word the rest of the evening.

I never had but one public introduction that seemed exactly the thing; that seemed to be a very inspiration in the way of an introduction. The gentleman had a good head, and said he suppose I didn't want any compliments. I said he was exactly right, I didn't want any compliments. And when he introduced me he said. "Ladies and gentleman, I shall not waste any unnecessary time in the introduction. I don't know anything about this man; [laughter] at least I only know two things about him; one is that he has never been in the penitentiary, and the other is I can't imagine why." [Prolonged laughter.] Now such an introduction puts a man right at ease. [Laughter.]

Nice Old Gentleman.

An elderly gentleman was recently "confidenced by sharpers on a train running into Keokuk, who induced him to buy a draft (worthless) on Buffalo for $157 40, he paying them two $100 bills, and they giving him $42 as change. The conductor took the first opportunity to quietly suggest to the innocent old man that he was afraid the draft was a fraud. "Well," was the bland response of the imperturbable greeney, "if it is any bigger fraud than my two $100 notes were, then I am not $42 ahead—which I think I am. I am not in the habit of dealing in counterfeit currency, but I always keep a little of that stuff about me for the benefit of that sort of customers."

A Murderer on Oratory.

[From the Galaxy.]

We have received from a good friend in Virginia the following further illustration of the extent to which the insensibility of criminals is carried:

While still a very young man, on account of his uncommon ability and legal acquirements, Mr. Richard Coleman was made judge of one of the eastern circuits in Virginia in the year 18—. Having hitherto led the life of a student and scholar, he had no extended reputation except among his brethren, and as connected with the profession, and had never been in politics. Shortly after he went upon the bench a most cold-blooded and cruel murder was perpetrated in his district by a very notoriously bad man. The murderer was apprehended, tried and convicted of murder in the first degree. Judge C. proceeded to pronounce the sentence, the first he had ever had to, which he had prepared with great care, and, as he himself said the best of which he was capable, and which he had afterward in similar sentences been obliged to make the basis of them all. Such was the solemnity of the occasion and the fervid eloquence of the judge, that all who listened to the sentence passed were moved to tears, all except the prisoner at the bar, who was observed to be looking at the ceiling, and to pay no attention whatever, appearing wholly indifferent to what was going on. After he had been remanded to jail, one of the junior members of the bar having his curiosity excited, and Judge C. also wishing to know what effect his eloquence had upon the criminal, went into the cell where the prisoner was and inquired of him how he felt when Judge C. was passing sentence on him. "What?" said the criminal, "what do you mean?" "I mean when the Judge was telling you that you were to be hung and urging you to prepare for the awful doom that awaited you." "You mean when he was talking to me?" "Yes." "Oh! I never paid no 'tention to Dick Coleman; he ain't no public speaker nohow."

The Size of the Union.

It has been said that there is only one man who has a correct idea of the size of the United States, and he is the man who drove a yoke of oxen in 1850–51 from Maine to California. However this may be, the newspapers remark that "few people realize the immensity of our territorial area," is true. There are in the great West eleven Territories, two or three of which are twice or three times as large as all New England; and it is a small Territory that is not at least ten times as large as Massachusetts. Colorado is thirteen times as large as Massachusetts, while Dakota and Arizona are half as large again as Colorado. The eleven Territories, as accurately as can at present be ascertained, contain over one billion and a quarter of acres (1,035,385,919), exceeding by nearly two hundred thousand square miles the aggregate territory of all the present admitted States of the Union. The Territory of Alaska, containing 369,529,600 acres, is included in the number of acres stated.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street above the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of epicures

AND STILL NO WORD FROM YOU.

Another day, another day,
And still no word from you.
The sunlight is so far away;—
When will its rays break through
The clouds that arch my life's bright sky?
I waken with the morn
And say, "Faint not, for by-and-by
Joy's birds shall all return."

So I have reasoned with my heart,
And yet so tired am I
In waiting for my life's best part—
The tardy by-and-by.
When will, when will the sun of hope
The darksome clouds break through?
When will the door of silence ope
That I may hear from you?

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bonton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

DR. CHAS. H. TOZER'S PRIVATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE

N.E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, cor ner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 year previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

Small Pox Jokes.

Those Chicago newspapers make fun of everything. Here are a few of many small-pox jokes which appear in one column in a single issue of the Sun:

"If you want to be wretched, and can't take the small-pox, take the Times. It will will answer the same purpose."

"Chicago must acknowledge defeat in one thing at least. Cincinnati can more than double discount us on small-pox."

"Hugh Garrity will be tried for assault with intent to kill, next month. Reed says he will send him up, sure, if he don't get the small-pox again and dodge trial.

"Brother Alexis is to be here to-morrow evening. A squad of policemen will be detailed to clear away the mad dogs and small-pox, so that his train can enter the city."

"If you don't want any callers on New Year's day, go to The Board of Health Office and ask Dr. Rauch for one of those nice, yellow small pox cards to tack up on your door, Nail it up in good shape and you will not be troubled."

If the devil himself were to appear in Chicago, the street boys would tie a kettle to his tail, and the newspapers would be full of jokes about him.

Pleasing Obituaries.

The following is the happy manner in which obituaries are written for the Kansas papers:

"A youth, during a political discussion, knocked the butt of his gun on the floor, to emphasize an argument. His fellow debators attended his funeral in a body."

"Ellen Norton thought she could jump from a three-story window, without hurting the sidewalk. Ellen, was right, but she won't take any more jumps. Sweet is the sleep of the jumpist."

Resigned.

The most resigned man of the present era is William M. Tweed. He has resigned as Commissioner of Public Works, he has resigned as an Erie Director, and he has resigned himself into the hands of the sheriff. The people will feel resigned when he takes a new departure to the beautiful mansion of stone at Sing Sing.

A Useless Work.

A cable dispatch says:

Napoleon will soon publish a historical work, in which startling revelations will be made in regard to the French military system during the late war.

We think that the "work" might be written in four words: "There was no system."

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere. Q

DEATH OF GEN. HALLECK.

[We copy the following just and worthy tribute to the memory of General Halleck from the Examiner of last evening.]

It is our melancholy duty to announce the death of another distinguished officer of the old regular army—Major-General Henry W. Halleck is dead! He died last night, at Louisville, Ky., at 8:25 o'clock.

To every pioneer of this State his memory is endeared by his public and private virtues. This city and the country at large will be appalled at the mournful event, coming so quickly after the death of his friend, General Thomas, to both of whom the Administration saw fit to order a change of command, and now can lament the death of both.

General Halleck was gifted in an extraordinary degree with the quality of affability. His mind was well stored with knowledge of many subjects, which he took delight in imparting, while he appreciated the ideas and views of others. His character was strong and sterling; his dislike of showiness and vanity was intense and unconcealed. He possessed a sound judgment and a cultivated intellect. He was thoroughly just and honest. Steady and unremitting industry, quietly pursued, was the tenor of his life. In matters of business he was prompt and methodical; in his studies he was patient and laborious. His habits of life were simple in the extreme. He had few wants and granted himself few indulgences. His strong and self-denying character may have made him somewhat intolerant of the weakness of others; but when intolerance springs from such noble sources it may readily be overlooked.

The history of his public life is well-known to the reading public; and whatever of animosities may have been enkindled against him, by his prominent participation in the late civil war, will doubtless be mitigated, if not entirely obliterated, now that his earthly career is ended. Another honest man and good soldier has joined the innumerous army of the dead.

Decorations for Women.

The Empress Eugenie used to wish that decorations were bestowed on women as well as men. She desired to commence with Rosa Bonheur. "A woman!" cried M. Fould. "But she paints like a man," replied the Empress. At present M. Thiers does not seem to object to this idea of decorating women. He is about to send the cross of the Legion of Honor to Lady Piggott, who was in Paris during the siege and attended the wounded. This time it is not the fine art of painting, but the art of doing good that is honored.

Side-splitting.

That remarkable young man who does dramatic "criticisms" for the Bulletin, speaking of the numerous sensations in the extravaganza entitled "A Dime Novel" now running at the Alhambra, says they "make it quite as side-splitting as any of the thrilling dramas." Hanging scenes, railway accidents, fearful leaps, conflagrations, etc., are we suppose in his estimation "side splitting."

Dead.

The New York Leader died with the old year. It used to be a good paper, and at one time its dramatic feuilleton was quite a feature in its columns.

The Stylish Hat Store.

The reason why the establishment at No. 647 Washington street is called "THE" HAT STORE is because, for the style of its hats and the moderation of its charges, it stands without a rival. Go to "THE" HAT STORE, 647 Washington street (the second hat store below Kearny), and examine the large stock of the latest styles of hats. K

New Furnishing Goods,

Artemus Ward's Early Life.

In his lecture on Artemus Ward, Mark Twain tells the following:

When Artemus was very young he and a companion got hold of a pack of cards and learned to play euchre. Artemus was perfectly fascinated with the game, and played it as often as he had an opportunity; but it had to be done on the sly, and he had to hide his cards from his parents. So, when he was looking out for a place to hide them the boys thought the safest place where they could put the cards was in the pocket of the minister's black gown, under the very ægis of the church. I don't know what ægis means but it's a good word, and I suppose it's all right. Well, the old minister was called on to baptise a convert, and as he went down into the water wearing the gown the cards began to float. The boys who were on the bank watching, though in great fear, kept their eyes on the cards. As it happened, there came up first two bowers and three aces. Of course the boys were thrashed and an old aunt of Artemus proceeded to lecture him on the enormity of the crime. "Why," said she, "just imagine how the poor man must have felt when he saw the cards coming up! I should have thought he would have fainted, and I don't see how he got out." "Well," said Artemus, "I don't see how he could help going out on such a hand."

A Hopeful Subject.

Mr. —— had taken into his service, for general utility, a poor lad for whose spiritual welfare he was, of course bound to look out. Desiring one morning to put in practice his benevolent intent, he called the boy to his study, and, with a visage of the gravest sort, said: "Sam, do you know you are a sinner?" "Yes," falteringly replied Sam. "Do you know what will become of you if you do not repent?" Receiving no coherent reply, he launched into repentance and redemption, encouraged by the evident impression made by his words, and, feeling no small compunction the while that he had so long neglected a "subject of grace," so promising. At last a vacant and wandering look roused a sudden suspicion, to verify which he inquired: 'Sam, what is a sinner?" Imagine the situation when the "subject of grace" promptly responded: "Sinner sir? yes sir, sinners is strings in turkey's legs, sir!" The sinews of the parson's face relaxed.

An Untimely End.

An exchange says:

David R. Dickey, of Randolph, Tipton county, Tennessee, came to an untimely end last week. He made a bet that he could eat four bottles of brandy peaches and drink all the liquor, together with two full tumblers of raw whisky. He drank the whisky and finished all the peaches, dropping dead while holding the last peach to his mouth.

"Untimely" because he had not time to swallow that last peach, we suppose. It was a pity. If he had lived a minute longer he would have won the bet.

The Plagues of Chicago.

Chicago is now suffering from small-pox and mad dogs. The Sun says:

Among the agreeable companions which a person may now meet with in the streets are dogs with the small-pox and men with the hydrophobia.

Under these circumstances there is nothing for it but to shoot the men and vaccinate the dogs.

Very Cheap.

At the sale of pews at Dr. Stebbins' church on Monday, Mr. Pickering of the Bulletin got a very cheap pew. Twenty-five dollars a year rent! Why, if he goes to church twice on Sunday it only amounts to twenty-five cents for each admission—the same price charged in the gallery of a theatre.

"Whisky has Used him Up."

There is scarcely a community or neighborhood from Maine to Oregon, where this saying is not used almost every day in the year, and altogether too truly. A subject of this kind is to be found in almost every town The merchant has failed and whiskey has done it. The lawyer, with a brilliant talent and a large business, has fallen below the range of respectability and confidence. Whisky was the sole cause. The politician, with bright prospects before him, has played out, and the account is charged to whisky. The Judge, of age, and respectability, is the subject of private and neighborhood talk. His enemies point with derision, and his friends hang their heads in shame, and whisky has done it. The kind-hearted neighbor and hard-working-man, has become a pest in society, and trouble to his family. Whisky beat him. Whisky will beat any man living, and that is just what it is made for.

Nothing New.

A contemporary says:

A dry goods merchant has made a hit in advertising by giving free promenade concerts every evening from seven to nine. His store is thronged day and night.

A man has been doing that on the streets of San Francisco for some weeks past. He gives promenade concerts on a banjo and sells pills.

A Non Sequitur.

The Alta, speaking of a district in Arizona, says:

This region ought to be rich in minerals, for it is poor in everything else.

This does not necessarily follow, any more than it does that because a man is bald-headed he must have brains.

An indignant gas customer says that there is no use in abusing the gas companies for they've always a vile retort ready.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

The thrillingly sensational drama entitled "A Dime Novel" should be seen by all. It is preceded by a capital first part, songs and dances by the Reynolds Brothers, and a burlesque of "La Rose de St. Fleur", in which Leon, Edwin Kelly, Fanny Gibson and S. Holdsworth sing the gems of the original opera. This very attractive bill will be played at the matinee to-morrow.

Metropolitan Theatre.

"The Marble Heart" was repeated last night, and the acting of E. T. Stetson, Miss Henrietta Osborne and James M. Hardie drew much applause. Miss Maggie Moore gained an enthusiastic encore for the song, "The Cloak of Golden Coin" which she sang capitally. Willie Simms—who is making rapid progress in his profession, caused much amusement as Chateaumargeaux. To-night "Neck and Neck" will be revived, with E. T. Stetson in his fine impersonation of Walter Wilmarth At the matinee to-morrow, "The Marble Heart" will be played, and the evening's performance will consist of Richard III. On Sunday evening, "Neck and Neck" will be produced for the last time. "The Red Pocket-Book will be produced on Monday.

California Theatre.

"As You Like It" was repeated last night. John McCullough received great applause at the conclusion of the speech commencing "All the World's a Stage," which he read admirably. To-night Madame Veneta, the German tragedienne, will make her first appearance in English tragedy as Lady Macbeth. John McCullough will play the Thane: Henry Edwards, Macduff; W. A. Mestayer, Banquo, and J. C. Williamson, Owen Marlowe and H. Coad will appear as the Three Witches. Madame Veneta's talents are well known by our German citizens, and if she has succeeded in mastering the difficulties of the English language, she is sure to be successful in the character in which she appears this evening. "Macbeth" will be performed at the matinee to-morrow.

Bella Union.

The first part of popular ballads, an interlude comprising ballads, song and dance, character acts, the pantomime of Don Juan, gymnastic acts, and other features, and the afterpiece of "The Nymphs of The Hill," make up a most enjoyable entertainment. An entirely new programme has been prepared for Saturday night.

The Oxford.

Amelia Dean, H. Nelson, Lizzie Harmon, Carlova, Jimmy Hall, and a great troupe of artists will appear to-night in a fine programme of dances, songs, acts and pantomime.

Theatre Comique.

A lively first part concluding with "Carry the News to Mary," followed by an interlude in which Frank Jones, Mike Quinn, Nellie Leonard, Ida Fisk, Jake Wallace and others appear, and the entertainment concludes with "The Poi Hunters from Honolulu." A great Saturday night bill is in preparation and Johnny Tuers will make his reappearance.

Mercantile Library Hall.

Professor B. Flummer will give his second drawing room entertainment, consisting of character personations, elocutionary and humorous sketches, this evening at Merchantile Library Hall. His first entertainment was very highly spoken of by the press.

Prize Ball.

A prize ball and entertainment will be given at Fitzgibbon's Dancing School, Charter Oak Hall, 769 Market street, between Third and Fourth, under the management of Professor English, this evening. A watch and chain and a gold ring will be given to the best round dancers—the watch to the gentleman, and the ring to the lady. Entries for the prizes may be made at the Parlor Cigar Store, 720 Market street, and afterwards, at the hall, up to the time of the contest. No one is debarred. Professional pupils and all light-footed proficients can enter.

Pavilion Skating Rink.

Public assemblies every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday mornings, Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday afternoons, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Club assemblies the other mornings, afternoons and evenings of the week. Professors Lovett and Callie Curtis give an exhibition every evenin at o'clock.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillieu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention are on exhibition

On the Cars.

Passengers have no rights which car conductors are bound to respect.

A light load—When there are two feet of standing room in the street-cars.

A good load—When passengers hang on the platforms of the street-cars by their eyelids.

A heavy load—When the rear platform of one of the street-cars breaks down.

A bad load—Sixty passengers on one of the street-cars when going up a hill.

In their dotage—Conductors on the street-cars who make way for passengers to get in and out.

Lively conductors—Those who pull the bell-strap on the street-cars before a passenger is fairly off or on.

Energetic conductors—"Pass up more to the front gentlemen, and make room for the ladies!" as said on the cars.

Too officious—A conductor who assists a lady with her market basket when getting on or off the street-cars.

Don't mind them—Passengers on the cars who complain of the door being open in the cold weather.

A surly dog—A male passenger who insists that a car shall stop before he gets off.

A clever woman—A lady who is given standing room on the platform of a car and don't complain.

Slow people—"Don't you dare start the car, conductor, until I am off!" as every day say fat old lady passengers on the cars.

California Brandies.

The Wine Dealers' Gazette of San Francisco says:

California brandies are in bad repute, and deservedly. Most of the samples offered for sale here, or sent to Eastern markets, are execrable. It has been a common practice to put the pomace into the still which was then heated by ill-regulated fire, and the skins and seeds were burned. Even if the mismanagement did not go to that extent, the flavor of the seeds was communicated to the vapors, and the result was, what the Spanish properly called Aguardiente—a true fire water harsh with fusil oil, and various odors.

California brandy is as vile a liquor as was ever distilled. There is no reason why this should be the case. It would surely pay to make good brandy. The Gazette continues:

Many circumstances give our State peculiar advantages for the production of brandy, and our people will not neglect a resource so important When a more liberal policy has lightened the burden and vexations now imposed on the distillers, when experience and study have improved their skill, and wealth and reduced interest enable them to ripen their brandy before selling, they will drive the best French cognacs from the markets of the Western world.

Woman and Man.

The Woman's Journal gives this as a sketch from real life. It certainly illustrates a wrong that should be righted. "When Ben and I were children I was the taller. When we went to school I studied more than he did; I graduated before he did; I read more books than he did; if we got into an argument I was pretty sure to get the better of him—in short, I was ahead of Ben, and I patronized him! But Ben got ahead at last. He studied a profession; I crimped and frizzed and fussed. He went into business; I dusted, and arranged and beautified. He is growing rich; I am growing poor. He can travel if he chooses; he can invite me to go with him if he chooses; I can sit at home till I'm invited. He is independent; I am dependent. Ben is a successful bachelor, with the world before him; I an unsuccessful maiden, with no definite prospects. Ah, Ben, Ben, this will never do—just wait, sir, till I take a start."

Well, We Don't Know.

The Washington Critic has the following:

The very best of agricultural fairs—Farmers' daughters.

The term "farmers' daughters" is funnily applied in San Francisco. They are not so fair, but rather foul—"soiled doves."

THE LOVE-LETTER.

She took it in her trembling hands,
That poorly served her will;
The wave of life on golden sands
Stood for a moment still.

She read the superscription o'er,
And broke the careful seal;
The precious burden that it bore
She did not read, but feel.

O, earth, so green with Summer now,
O, sky of heavenly blue!
O, mated buds on every bough!
Her thoughts are not of you.

The hum of friendly tones below,
The life of pleasant care,
That swayed her soul an hour ago,
Now rule no longer there.

She knows a love too pure and high
For simple words to speak;
Its glory glistens in her eye
And blushes on her cheek.

Its brighter warmth about her lies,
It fills each human need,
Enfolds her life and glorifies
The simplest word or deed.

He has no promise to allure,
No fairy tale to tell;
The skill of honest love is sure
To work its purpose well.

It scorns the flatterer's subtle art,
The worldling's acted lies;
But storms the fortress of the heart,
And bears away the prize.

Yet brave as spurred and belted knight,
More tender still than brave,
He lifts his captive into light,
Himself the willing slave.

O, Love, thy kingdom stands secure,
Born with Creation's day;
Thy sweet dominion shall endure
When earth has passed away.

The Worst of All.

Of all vices, take heed of drunkenness. It spoils the health, dismounts the mind and unmans men. It reveals secrets, is quarrelsome, lascivious, impudent, dangerous and mad. He that is drunk is not a man, because he is for so long devoid of that reason that distinguishes a man from a beast.

A riddle which ought never to be printed—Why are engaged ladies like old boots? Because they are no good without their fellows.

Why is a tight-laced lady like a frugal housewife? Because her waist is as little as she can make it.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 437 Bush street adjoining the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of epicures

AND STILL NO WORD FROM YOU.

Another day, another day,
And still no word from you.
The sunlight is so far away;—
When will its rays break through
The clouds that arch my life's bright sky?
I waken with the morn
And say, "Faint not, for by-and-by
Joy's birds shall all return."

So I have reasoned with my heart,
And yet so tired am I
In waiting for my life's best part—
The tardy by-and-by.
When will, when will the sun of hope
The darksome clouds break through?
When will the door of silence ope
That I may hear from you?

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. KNOWN THE BEST LIVER REGULATOR IN THE WORLD.

RELIEF TO ALL DYSPEPTICS
MOST PLEASANT TONIC AND APPETIZER.
Every Family should have a Bolt. House.

The inventor of this really wonderful TONIC, after a series of years and experiments, has succeeded in bringing before the public all that can be desired of a pure Tonic and Recuperator.

CERTIFICATES:

I have carefully tested and examined your I X L Bitters, and find that they cannot fail to be beneficial as a tonic and promoter of digestion.
G. HOLLAND.

CITY AND COUNTY HOSPITAL, San Francisco, June 20th, 1871.—I should judge that the I X L Bitters must be a very efficient remedy in Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and similar complaints, being composed of a number of vegetable drugs which are principally used in diseases of that nature, and are of the greatest efficiency in their cure.—F. H. ENGELS, M. D., Ass't Resident Physician, Apothecary C. & C. Hospital.

STATE ASSAYER'S OFFICE, San Francisco, July 21st, 1871.—I have made a careful examination of your I X L Bitters, and have found them entirely free of deleterious mineral substances.—Yours etc., [illegible] State Assayer.

DR. CHAS. H. TOZER'S PRIVATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE

N. E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

FRIDAY.....JANUARY 12, 1872

FIGARO ON THE CALA. PACIFIC RAILROAD.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed ever day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

200 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

200 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

Scenes in an Insane Asylum

A number of the inmates of the New York State Lunatic Asylum fancy themselves to be someone else, There are kings, queens, emperors, a General Grant, and other notables, Many a poor creature is happy in his, or her delusion, and gravely insist on its truth. The delusion of patients that they are God, or the Saviour is very common. Not long ago Dr. Gray had all three persons of the Trinity under his care, and then came another God. However, as the newcomer was a very little man, and the other contestant for divine supremacy a very big man, the little man discovered that he was not God, but the Attorney General of the United States. One curious coincidence in the way of delusion has occurred since Dr. Gray has been appointed superintendant: A female patient had just arrived, and was seated in the office, when a tall young man was brought in by his father. The poor lad at once objected to being confined in the asylum, saying that he "was Jesus Christ, and had the world to save," The woman sprang up excitedly, and, throwing her arms open exclaimed: "Come to my arms my son I am the Virgin Mary." The young man at once threw himself on the bosom of the woman, and they heartily and tenderly embraced one another, to the horror of the lad's father. Another woman was under the belief that she had been turned into a cow, and was much vexed because she was not allowed to be the means of supplying the asylum.

Enterprise! Enterprise! Enterprise!

We are too modest! That's what's the matter with FIGARO. We never mentioned the fact that FIGARO gave the news of the death of General Halleck to the public of San Francisco in advance of ALL OTHER NEWSPAPERS. It is a fact though nevertheless. Bulletin, Alta, Call, Chronicle, Examiner, all had to publish the news hours after every one had read it in our columns. Enterprise!

Provoking Mistake.

The Danbury news says; "Mrs. O' Clarence recently fell into the river; but her cries drew help, in the person of Mr. O' Clarence, who, mistaking her in the dark for another woman, worked like a beaver to get her out."

Mr. Archer, of Indiana, struck at his dog with the butt of his gun. The forgiving beast now howls above his master's grave.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere. Q

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

A Practical Temperance Movement.

All confess that intemperance is a lamentable vice and that to its prevalence is owing two thirds of the crime which is committed. Lecturers have howled against this vice for generations. We believe that there were temperance lecturers even before the flood. After that for some time no doubt cold water was in disfavor, and Noah and his sonsdid a rushing business in wine-making. Legislation to utterly prevent the sale of intoxicating liquors has always proved a failure; legislation to check it may be successful. The following petition is in circulation throughout the State:

We, the undersigned citizens of California, would respectfully request your honorable body to enact a law, granting to the voters of the several precincts, townships, or wards, in this State, the privilege of deciding by ballot, at any general election, held for the election of county or State officers, whether they will or will not permit intoxicating drinks, of any kind to be sold within the limits of such precinct, township, or ward. Such law to provide, that if the majority of the voters of any precinct, township, or ward at any general election, shall vote not to permit the sale of intoxicating liquors of any kind, to be made within such limits, then no license to be granted for the sale of such liquors, until a majority of the voters of such place, shall by ballot, at some subsequent general election decide to permit it, and that no intoxicating liquors shall be sold without license. And your petitioners will ever pray.

This seems to be practical. No one will deny that a man has the right to make the rule that no intoxicating liquors shall enter his house, and the power to enforce it. It is of course more easy to rule a family than a community of people of various tastes and ideas, but still it may be done. It seems only fair if the majority of the citizens of any ward, precinct, or township are opposed to intoxicating drinks being sold, that the minority should submit to their will, that is if there is any right at all in the principle that majorities should rule. We don't think that the passing of such a law will inflict any great hardship on those who use intoxicating liquors, and if it passes, as we hope it will, we are sure that the "temperance wards" in San Francisco will need fewer policemen than any other in the city. While it may be wrong to entirely deprive a man of the pleasure of getting drunk, there is no harm in throwing obstacles in his way, and making it less easy for him to accomplish his object than at present.

Woman's Virtue.

It is a prevailing vice among men—doubting the virtue of women. To us it looks like not only an outrage to good taste, but also as betokening a want of intellect. Besides this, it betokens a besotted nature, and passions that would disgrace a beast. The idea of dragging women down to a man's level, in point of virtue, is so repugnant to the feelings, so utterly at variance with the truth, that the utterer ought not to have a place in civilized society.

Art Reception.

The Art Association of San Francisco will give one of their very pleasant reunions at Pacific Hall on Tuesday. There will be fine pictures on exhibition, good music, and and singing, and pleasant conversation. These are the most "civilized" affairs San Francisco can boast of. Invitations are given only to friends of members.

Dentistical.

A Western paper thinks a snail has "a right smart chance for a toothache." He has one hundred and ten rows of teeth, with one hundred and ten teeth in each row or, twelve thousand two hundred and ten teeth in all.

Seems Queer.

A Chinese thus describes a trial in the English courts: "One man is quite silent, another talks all the time, and twelve wise men condemn the man who has not said a word."

The Stylish Hat Store.

The reason why the establishment at No. 647 Washington street is called "THE" HAT STORE is because, for the style of its hats and the moderation of its charges, it stands without a rival. Go to "THE" HAT STORE, 647 Washington street (the second hat store below Kearny), and examine the large stock of the latest styles of hats. K

Mark Twain on Reporters.

In the course of a recent lecture at Chicago, on his life and experience in the land of sage-brush and silver, Mark Twain delivered himself of the following correct remarks about reporters: Reporting is the best school in the world to get a knowledge of human beings, human nature, and human ways. A nice gentlemanly reporter—I make no references—is well treated by everybody. Just think of his wide range of acquaintanceship. His experience of life and society! No other occupation brings a man into such sociable relations with all grades and classes of people. The last thing at night—midnight—he goes browsing around after items among police and jail birds in the lock-up, questioning the prisoners, and making lasting friendships with some of the worst people in the world. And the very next evening he gets himself up regardless of expense puts on all the good clothes his friends have goes and take dinner with the Governor, or, the Commander-in-Chief of the district, the United States Senator, and some more of the upper-crust of society. He is on good terms with all of them, and is present at every public gathering, and has easy access to every variety of people. A reporter has to lie a little, of course, or they would discharge him. That is the only drawback to the profession. That is why I left it. I am different from Washington—I have a higher and grander principle. Washington could not lie. I can lie, but won't. Reporting is fascinating, but it is distressing to have to lie so.

Clear Sighted.

At a trial, not long since, one of the witnesses, an old lady of some eighty years, was closely questioned by the opening counsel relative to the clearness of her eyesight.

"Can you see me?" said he.

"Yes," was answered.

"How well can you see me?" persisted the lawyer.

"Well enough," responded the lady, "to see that you are neither a negro, an Indian, nor a gentleman." The answer brought down the house.

Quite Right.

A distinguished writer says: "There is a passage in the Bible where the girls are commanded to kiss the men, and that is the golden rule. Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even to them."

Darkey Courtship.

While a St. Louis negro was making a party call upon a colored belle, a discussion arose in the course of which he fanned her with a poker.

A Sacramento Poetess.

Sacramento has a poetess. Her name is Mary McConnell, and she publishes her effusions in the Bee. All readers of the works of Dickens will remember Mrs. Leo Hunter in "The Pickwick Papers," who at one of her conversaziones recited her beautiful "Ode to an Expiring Frog":

Can I view thee, panting, lying
On thy stomach, without sighing?
On a log,
Expiring Frog!
Say, have fiends in shape of boys
Hunted thee with brutal noise
To a log,
Expiring Frog!

We quote from memory. Mary McConnell of Sacramento has evidently modeled her style on that of Mrs. Leo Hunter, as her lines entitled "The Pollywog" in Saturday's Bee prove. We have only room for part of this remarkable composition:

You wiggling, waggling pollywog,
Sailing around under the log,
You will shortly become a frog,
With legs and tail—
That day you'll gladly hail.

Poor little paddling polly,
It simply seems folly
To give you legs to make you jolly,
For you are happy now—
Do you wish more, I trow?

"The Pollywog" and the "Ode to an Expiring Frog" are companion pieces.

A Shakesperian Celestial.

Ah Long was brought up before the Police Court yesterday charged with stealing a spittoon. When called on to plead he looked thoughtfully at the unclean utensill and said: "Tis true tis spitty; spitty tis tis true." And even after that Judge Londerback sent him to jail.

Is They?

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE. — "Neck and Neck" was performed last night. This afternoon the "Marble Heart," which has been so well represented on two former occasions, will be played. This evening "Richard III" will be presented, with E. T. Stetson in the title role. To-morrow "Neck and Neck" will be played for the last time. On Monday the play of "The Red Pocket Book," on which so much time and money have been lavished, will be produced.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—The mass of sensational scenes presented under the title of "A Dime Novel" will be served up at the matinee to-day this evening, and to-morrow evening for the last time. It is preceeded by an excellent first part and a capital burlesque of Offenbach's charming opera "La Rose de St. Fleur." Next week a great treat is in store for the numerous patrons of this establishment. The best of all Kelly and Leon's burnt cork operas—"La Perichole,"—will be presented with all the original airs, good scenery, amusing libretto and, altogether, in perfect style. All have been longing for this opera and during its run the Alhambra will be thronged.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—A large and fashionable audience assembled last night, when Madame Veneta the star of the German dramatic troupe, which perform every sunday at the California Theatre, made her first appearance in English Tragedy. Madame Veneta met with a hearty reception, on making her appearance on the stage as Lady Macbeth, and was accorded the somewhat unusual honor of a call at the end of the scene. This lady has devoted but four months to the study of the English language, and her progress is remarkable. She read the part of Lady Macbeth with a strong German accent, and her pronunciation was, of course, imperfect, as is that of both Fechter and Bandmann. This we must not criticise. We do not like Madame Veneta's Lady Macbeth, for the reason that there was no repose in it; no cool deliberation; it was pitched in too high a key—in fact, somewhat over-acted. That Madame Veneta is a good actress, is undeniable: but, that she has mastered the English language sufficiently to be able to play Lady Macbeth, in a manner acceptable to an English-speaking audience, cannot truthfully be said. John McCullough gained loud and frequent applause in the character of Macbeth; Henry Edwards was a fine, manly Macduff; W. A. Mestayer a good Banquo; Fred Franks looked and acted well as Duncan; and the three witches, by J. O. Williamsen, Owen Marlowe, and H. Coad, were marvels of stage art in their make-up. "Macbeth" will be played with the same cast this afternoon, and this evening Miss Ince will make her last appearance, and play "Lucretia Borgia." On Monday, "Rouge et Noir" will be broduced.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—There will be great novelties at this place of amusement to-night In the first part Mat Kelly will sing a new local song, "Playing on the Green;" in the interlude, Maggie Brewer will appear in a fancy dance; Leon Samwells and Ed. Montague will perform the act of the brothers; Maggie Knight and Chris Mathews will appear in a double song and dance; Clara Starr will sing a new and original local comic song, "The Hoodlum," in character; Carrie Armstrong and J. H. Larkin will appear in a Dutch character song, written expressly for them, and a number of new acts will be given. Two new pieces will be performed, "The Queen of the Air," in which the whole company will appear, and the comic ballet entitled "St. Valentine's Day."

THEATRE COMIQUE.—To-night that versatile and original ethiopian comedian Johnny Tuers will make his reappearance, and will see that the fun af the Theatre Comique is never allowed to flag from the time the curtain rises, until midnight. Among the novelties will be "Dandy Pat," and "Kitty from Cork," by Mike Quihn and Nina Lave, "The Damon in the Woods," by Frank Jones and Jake Wallace, and Johnny Tuers in his great burlesque part of "Clam-Eel."

THE OXFORD.—There will be many novelties in the bill presented at this cozy little theatre to-night. Miss Sally Thayer, the ever popular comic vocalist, will appear in new and original character sketches, Carlova in Dutch songs, Lizzie Harmon in popular ballads, Jimmy Hall in original dances, and the whole company in the roaring farce of "The Fifteenth Amendment."

"THE RED POCKET BOOK."—Our readers will remember that very shortly after the publication of Charles Reade's famous novel of "Foul Play," the charge was brought against him that he had stolen, not only the plot, but a large portion of the language and situations of his novel from a French play, the title of which translated into English was "The Red Pocket Book." Passage after passage was brought forward to show that "Foul Play" owed all its merits to MM. Fournier and Meyer's thrilling drama. This drama has been translated and adapted for the American stage by Messrs. J. C. Ford and J. F. Sears of this city, and will be produced at the Metropolitan Theatre on Monday. Thousands of dollars have been spent on new scenery and stage appointments for this play, and the stage of the Metropolitan Theatre will on Monday night present so changed an appearance as to be scarcely recognizable. Some of the mechanical effects introduced in this play are perfectly new and original, and that of the sinking ship and escape of the passengers and crew by boats and raft is expected to surpass any "sensation scene" ever presented on the stage.

"ROUGE ET NOIR," a romantic drama from the French, which is to be produced for the first time in America at the California Theatre on Monday, is a reasonable piece at this time, when such fierce war is being waged on gambling "Rouge et Noir" will be "played" at the California Theatre in spite of all enactments against unlawful games, and it is rumored that it will be produced with "real gamblers." If this be so, a number of the "sporting fraternity" thrown out of situations, might perhaps secure an engagement by applying at the box office.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

PROFESSOR PLUMMER'S ENTERTAINMENT. —There was a large audience at Mercantile Library Hall last evening, which Professor Plummer succeeded in keeping entertained and amused by his dry humor and comic delineations.

BILLY EMERSON.—This chief of the burnt cork favorites has been snowed in at Cheyenne, but this morning a telegram announces that he will arrive to-night. Pete Lee, a popular end-man and favorite at the East, comes on with him for the Alhambra.

NEW PEOPLE FOR THE ALHAMBRA.—Messrs. Kelly and Leon's season is drawing to a close; a couple of weeks more of burlesque opera,—inimitably rendered by them,—is all that remains to complete their engagement. On Monday next Manager Maguire will leave New York and bring on with him for the Alhambra a new company of talented and popular professionals. Things look lively for the Alhambra.

THE CLIFF HOUSE. — Nothing is more health-giving than a spin along the Cliff House Road and a sniff of the briny air in the neighborhood of that famous hostelry. Nothing is more enjoyable than one of Captain Foster's dinners with a bottle of his choice wine.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SAN JOSE.—The people of San Jose dissipate intellectually at the Lyceum.

VIRGINIA CITY, NEV.—Professor Fowler commenced a series of lectures at National Guard Hall on the 10th.

MARYSVILLE.—Edwards' New Panorama of the Great Rebellion is to be on exhibition at Turner Hall this afternoon and evening.

CAMPTONVILLE. — The Camptonvilliane had some amusement last week. A correspondent of the Marysville Standard says:

New Year's evening a musical and dramatical entertainment, to aid in liquidating the debt of the Good Templar Hall, was given. The exercises consisted of a quartette by the Camptonville choir; then the popular comedy of "The Captain of the Watch," followed by "The Toodles." The evening's entertainment concluded with a local burlesque by the Fuller Minstrels. The net receipts amounted to about to about $113

SACRAMENTO.—On Monday and Tuesday evenings the play of "Elizabeth, Queen of England," with Mrs. F. M. Bates as Elizabeth, was presented to fair houses. On Wednesday evening the performance consisted of the comedy of "The Barrack Room," and the comic drama of "Robert Macaire," W. J. Coggeswell playing Macaire and W. E. Crosbie playing Jacques Strop. On Thursday a Sacramento lady, wife of Wm. R. Williams, made her first appearance on any stage in the character of Frou-Frou. The Bee says Mrs. Williams evinces dramatic talent of a high order, has a fine presence, sweet voice and clear articulation, and her acting was simple and natural. Last night "School" was performed, 'Ours" and the "Last Days of Pompeii," were underlined. Sacramento people going to bed early, the performance commences at half-past seven. The Varieties after a desperate struggle has collapsed, the Sheriff having taken possession of it.

PORTLAND.—On the 30th ult., G. B. Waldron and company performed the drama of "Under the Spell: or, St. Patrick's Eve," and "The Rough Diamond." The company is highly spoken of by the Portland papers. Coburn & McCabe announced that on the 1st they would commence the publication of the Dramatic Chronicle, a paper for general gratuitious distribution and to serve as programme of the Oro Fino Theatre. We have not yet received it.

SALT LAKE CITY.—Oliver Doud Byron played "Across the Continent" eight nights to good houses. On the 28th ult. he produced "Ben McCullough," on the occasion of his benefit and played it four nights, closing on Jan. 3d in "Across the Continent." On the 4th "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was produced with Miss Eliza Couldock as Cassy and Eliza. Miss Rose Evans commenced an engagegengagement on the 8th, opening in "Joan of Arc." Miss Evans is on her way to California.

VALLEJO.—The Lancashire Bell Ringers gave an entertainment at Eureka Hall on Thursday and will perform again to-night. The Fakir of Arabia gave an entertainment on the 10th.

GRASS VALLEY.—The Union of Saturday last says:

All who have seen Barker's Panorama of the "Four Rivers" pronounce it to be one of the best exhibitions yet given in this place. The painting is splendid, and the drawings are faithful. The panorama will be exhibited this evening, at Hamilton Hall, for the last time in Grass Valley.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

The Martinetti-Ravel Troupe opened at Pittsburgh, Pa., on the 26th, with Paul in "The Brazilian Ape," and Ignacio and Adelaide, aged respectively six and four, in the can-can. At the Opera House a new play, "Through by Fire," is running. J. M. Ward closed at the Fifth-avenue on the 23d, and was succeeded by Leffingwell. James Collins, Martha Wren, Dick Sands, and others are at Trimble's Varieties.

In Washington, D. C., Wachtel appeared in German Opera at the New National Theatre on the 8th.

L. J. Mestayer, late low comedian at the New National, has severed his connection with the company, owing to a disagreement between himself and Manager Saville, which terminated in a free fight.

Prof. Risley, according to report, has leased Carusia's Theatre, and has purchased for $30,000 a building on Pennsylvania avenue, which will give him an entrance and right of way from the avenue to the theatre.

In Baltimore, Chanfrau appeared in Sam at Ford's Theatre on the 1st. "Humpty Dumpty" was running at the Holiday-street Theatre. John T. Ford had a complimentary benefit on the 5th.

In Philadelphia, Wachtel opened at the Academy on the 29th ult. De Vivo is his business manager. Sothern was to appear on the 15th. M'lle Morlacchi and ballet troupe are at the Chestnut. "Wait and hope," Byron's latest production was presented at the Arch on the 1st. A correspondent of the New York Mercury says:

The Seventh-street Opera House, after being the cause of misfortune to half a dozen managers, is leased by W. H. Smith, known as the California Manager, (and is said to be backed by a prominent Philadelphian), who is at present refitting and re-altering the same, to be opened in the first week in January as a first class theatre, with Robert Craig, comedian, late of the Chestnut, stage manager. It is said Susan Galton and Harry Josephs are included in the company; the stage manager now being in New York trying to collect together a company. This enterprise will not be a success. The place has been run down by variety shows, quacks, sparring exhibitions, can-cans, etc., and alterations or attractions can never induce our first-class citizens to patronize it.

A variety company comprising Annie Adams, Turner and Lester, Lilla and Zoe, and many others is at Fox's American Theatre.

The New York Clipper says: "A managerial ring was recently procured in the Golden State by O. Doud Byron, and being set with diamonds, was sent on to Mr. Carroll, of the Park Theatre, Brooklyn.

Sheridan and Mack, vocal and terpsichorean artists, closed their engagement at Fox's Variety Theatre on the 13th ult.

The Nilsson opera troupe are engaged to appear at Louisville, on the 23d inst for one week.

Mr. Shiel Barry, who opened at Wood's Museum, New York, on the 6th, is an Irish comedian of merit. In the principal towns of Australia he was long a great favorite, and on visiting Great Britain he was favorably received. On making his first appearance in London at the Princess Theatre early last year, he was pronounced the best Irish comedian seen in that city for many years.

The Grand Duke Alexis presented Parepa-Rosa at Buffalo with a bracelet studded with diamonds and torquoises, in token of his admiration of her singing on Christmas night.

Lotta at Kansas City, 8th. Slipped on the ice and hurt herself at Baltimore, 13th. Could not play that night, but opened in Cincinnati on the 20th.

The McKee Rankin Troupe opened their newly leased theatre in St. Louis, Jan. 1st.

Harry Cunningham has purchased of Mr. McCloskey the play of "Poverty Flat." He will appear throughout the country in it, with the exception of California, the right to play the piece in which has been purchased by Williamson of the California Theatre.

Johnny Allen and Alice Harrison were at Harlem Music Hall, Jan. 1st.

A New York paper of the 1st inst. says:

Billy Emerson is in town from San Francisco. Tom Maguire is expected daily. Sam Sanford, song and dance man, thinks of going to California.

Geo. M. Ciprico gave readings in Philadelphia on the 28th ult.

In Boston, "The Streets of New York" was running at the Museum .... "Divorce has been revived at the Globe. Sothern as Lord Dundreary at the Boston Theatre....At the Howard, on the 29th, Shappee and Whitney, gymnasts, Sylvester and Miss Angelique Schott. Wood, of the Olympic, has secured Burlington Hall and will put in a variety company, Jan. 8th. Among the company are Frank Frayne, Bowman and Harris, Billy Courtwright, Clara Butler and Helen Revere ...Dispatches state that the Academy of Music, costing $45,000, complete in all its appointments, and the foundation stone which was laid only 42 days ago was opened Dec. 9th by the Wyndham comedy company. It is situated on Halstead street, near Madison. Mr. Lawlor, the well-known actor, is the director.

Tony Pastor advertises his Second annual summer tour to begin at Providence, May 6th. Among his company will be the very talented and original Ella Wesner, Sydney Franks and Emma Alford.

Siegrist and his pupils—two-legged and four-legged, commenced an engagement at Nixon's Broadway Circus, New York, on the first.

William Worrell, the clown, father of Sophie Jennie and Irene, is performing at Nixon's Broadway Circus, New York.

J. H. Budworth will shortly appear in McCloskey's play of "Pomp, or; Way Down South," at one of the Broadway Theatres, after which he will appear at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, supported by a carefully selected company.

Hooley's Opera House, Brooklyn, was opened under its old proprietor, Mr. R. M. Hooley, on Dec. 18th

Mrs. D. P. Bowers opened at the Mobile Theatre December 18th for a short season in "The Lady of Lyons."

Edwin Booth has acted "Hamlet" over twelve hundred times

Busch, the insane lover of Nilsson, who has on two occasions been brought up in Essex Market, N. Y., for attempting to force his way into her rooms at her hotel, has been sent to a lunatic asylum.

The last time Joe Jefferson was in St. Louis Judge Joseph Gillespie was prevailed upon to go and see "Rip Van Winkle." This was the first play the judge had ever witnessed. When asked what he thought about it, he [replied: "Hem! hem! confounded ridiculous. The idea of a poor Dutch woman over a washtub with diamond rings on her fingers." The judge's criticism was an eminently just one.

In New York, the season of Italian opera at the Academy of Music was finally wound up on the 3d with the performance of "Lucia di Lammermoor."

.....At Lina Edwin's Theatre opera bouffe still draws. M'lle Dubois made her debut in "Les noces de Jeannette" and "Fleur de The" on the 4th....."Humpty Dumpty" continues to reign at the Olympic, and took a new lease of life January 8th, in honor of its one hundred and fiftieth performance, much new business being introduced.

....."Divorce" is running at the Fifth-avenue Theatre ....."John Garth" still holds the stage at Wallack's.....At Booth's Theatre, "Julius Cæsar" is a great success. Some description of the manner in which it is presented may be found in Monday's issue.....The "Black Crook" continues at Niblo's. At the Christmas matinee the receipts were $2,300, and in the evening $4,211.....At the Grand Opera House the Florences are playing in "No Thoroughfare."....At Wood's Museum, Shiel Barry, a celebrated Irish comedian, is playing in Palgrave Simpson's new drama, "Erin Abu".....At Tony Pastor's the Hernandez Combination and Jenny Engel are the leading attractions.....The San Francisco Minstrels are doing well. At the Thirty-fourth-street Theatre Jule Keen, Dutch comedian, and F. Maginley, Irish comedian, have been engaged.....George M. Ciprico gave readings and songs at Steinway Hall on Dec. 28th, to a fair audience. Readings in a city where theatres and all other amusements are plentiful cannot be expected to draw copiously.

Charlotte Cushman in readings, at Burlington, Vt., January 15.

Edwin Adams opened in Richmond on the 1st for one week.

Maggie Mitchell opened in Louisville on the 8th.

J. K. Emmet was at New Haven on the 6th.

Nell and her dramatic company appeared in Albany N. Y., on the 1st in "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Levy, of the Ninth New York Regiment Band, and the best cornetist in America, has made an engagement with Duke Alexis for the coming year, and is to be in St. Petersburg by March 15th. He goes to play in the Emperor's saloon and at concerts, and will receive 60,000 francs for the season.

The financial success of Barnum's show the last Summer exceeds all precedent. During the greater portion of the season three exhibitions were given daily, the treasurer having no leisure as the ticket-wagons were open from morning till night. It was found necessary to barrel up the currency and notes, and ship them to New York, where girls were employed to straighten and count the funds.

"A man with a piece written for him" came to grief the other day. The N. Y. Clipper tells the story:

Dick Ralph, a minstrel performer, made his metropolitan debut upon the dramatic stage at the Bowery Theatre on Monday evening, Dec. 18th, in what the bills announced as "a new drama entitled 'Fate, or the New York Newsboy.'" The "drama" consisted of a collection of scenes strung together without the slightest regard to unity, and viewed only as a vehicle for the product of Mr. Ralph's specialties, could not conscientiously be pronounced a success. The well-worn sketch of "Barney's Courtship," which was bodily introduced in the first act, he impersonated fairly an elderly Irish woman, and afterwards a young man named Barney. In his endeavors to perform upon a large number of musical instruments he was only partially successful, as he only succeeded in playing correctly two or three. In a song and dance he was more at home, but even this performance elicited but slight recognition from the audience. In short, all that he attempted has been much better accomplished, quite recently, by other performers upon the same stage.

There are rumors that an American composer is at work upon an opera which will be produced next winter, and will be located in this country. The scene will be laid in the time of De Soto's discovery of the Mississippi, and will include the famed and fabled Fountain of Youth which was the object of his search. There will be a chance for spectacular display at the Fountain of Youth, and there is certainly a chance for dramatic situations. The heroine is to be an Indian maiden and the hero will be the famous explorer. What the music will be remains to be seen. At present it is like a riddle of Lord Dundreary's—"one of those things that no feller can find out."

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

N. E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

The Luxuries of Life.
The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street adjoining the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of epicures

Oyster Trade.
The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere. Q

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

Our London dates are up to December 15th. At Drury Lane, James Gulver, the treasurer, was advertised to take a benefit on Dec. 14th, but no change in the bill was announced.....At the Haymarket, W. S. Gilbert's new and original comedy, "Pygmalion and Galatea," was produced on Dec. 9th.....Mr. Cooper, a veteran actor, was to have taken a farewell of the stage at the Haymarket Theatre, Dec. 23d .....The Princess was to have re-opened on Dec. 14th, under the management of Benjamin Webster, when an original drama by Watts Phillips, entitled "On a Jury," was to have been performed, with "Down in a Balloon" and "A Domestic Hercules." The company comprises Messrs. Phelps, B. Webster, J. G. Shore, H. Forrester, H. Ashley, Travers, etc., the Misses Furtado, E. Stuart, Julia Daly, Hudspeth, Lovell, Hubert, Phillips and M. Edmonds.....The Adelphi was to have closed on Dec. 18th to prepare for the Christmas novelties.....At the Gaiety, Mr. and Mrs. Boucicault were acting, the former in "Night and Morning," and the latter in "Elfie." ....The pantomime to be produced at Covent Garden on Dec. 26th is from the pen of Henry J. Byron, and entitled "Blue Beard."....Sadler's Wells was closed Dec. 19th, to prepare for the Christmas pantomime. It was to have been reopened Dec. 13th, for that night only, when Miss Bouverie was to have acted the character of Hamlet.....At the Standard, T. Swinbourne and Henry Marston continued their performances in the legitimate drama. The pantomime to be produced on Dec. 26th, at one o'clock in the afternoon, is entitled "The Butterfly Queen; or, Harlequin, Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp."....The Alfred was to have closed Dec. 22d to prepare for the pantomime, save Dec. 16th and 18th, when Charles Harcourt, the manager, was to have taken a benefit.....The Pavilion was to have closed Dec. 18th to prepare for the pantomime.....No change had occurred at Drury Lane, the Lyceum, Olympic, Strand, Globe, Vandeville, Court, Queen and Prince of Wales Theatres.

The season at the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden, London, closed Dec. 9th. "Don Pasquale" was performed Dec. 4th; "Il Flauto" on the 5th; "Lucrezia Borgia" on the 6th; "Don Pasquale" was repeated on the 7th, and "Der Freischutz" on the 9th. The season resulted in a heavy pecuniary loss.....At the second oratorio concert at Exeter Hall on Dec. 6th, "Elijah" was performed. Sims Reeves was to have sung the tenor airs and Herr Stockhausen Elijah. Reeves was unable to sing, and Stockhausen's performances were marred by a severe cold.

Barry Sullivan was to have commenced a six nights' engagement at Leeds, Dec. 11th.

J. L. Toole commenced a six nights' engagement at Manchester, Dec. 11th.

The present season at the Haymarket Theatre has, as Mr. Buckstone says, been the most prosperous he has known during his eighteen years of management, except the Dundreary season and the Exhibition of 1862.

Mario, residing with his three daughters in the suburbs of London, has received offers to sing on the Continent. His last contract with Mr. Gye forbids his appearance in England at any public performance.

The Countess Gilbert de Voisons, better known to the world as Taglioni, is about to return to England. It is nearly twenty-five years since she left the stage.

Mme. Patti appeared in Moscow on Nov. 4th as Dinorah, and was called for twenty-one times. The receipts were $6,250.]

The subject of the London Strand burlesque by Mr. Burnand now in rehearsal is "Arion and the Dolphin."

There are two new theatres in course of erection at Milan. Both will be ere long completed.

First Premium Millinery.
The last Mechanics' Fair awarded the first premium for superior taste and elegance of workmanship in the millinery line, to Mrs. Cowles of the "New House," 114 Third street. Mrs. Cowle's stock is unsurpassed by any in the city, and her prices are very reasonable. BH

The Stylish Hat Store.
The reason why the establishment at No. 647 Washington street is called "THE" HAT STORE is because, for the style of its hats and the moderation of its charges, it stands without a rival. Go to "THE" HAT STORE, 647 Washington street (the second hat store below Kearny), and examine the large stock of the latest styles of hats. K

Gent's Furnishing Goods.

The Late James H. Hackett.

James H. Hackett died December 28th at his residence in Jamaica, Long Island, of dropsy, superinduced by Bright's disease of the kidneys. He was born at 72 William street, in New York, March 15. 1800. After playing in an amateur association in Jamaica, he joined a traveling company at Newark in 1816, under the name of Young. He soon left, and was a year in the freshman class of Columbia College; then studied law for a year, and finally became a clerk to Fish & Wilcox, wholesale grocers in Front street. In 1819 he married Catherine D. Lee Sugg, an actress of the Park Theatre, who immediately left the stage. In 1820 he went to Utica, and kept a store there for five years, in the meantime studying for the stage. In 1825 he returned to New York, continued the wholesale grocery business for a year, but failed. In 1826 he first appeared in New York, at the Park Theatre, as Justice Woodcock, in "Love in a Village." In 1828 he played in England. In 1829 he managed both the Bowery and Chatham theatres. In 1832, 1845, and 1851, he again appeared in England, starring in the United States between those periods. In 1849, he managed, in conjuction with Niblo, the Astor-place Opera-house, and a year or two later shared in the management of the Grisi and Mario Opera Troupe during their tour in this country. Mr. Hackett was the father of the present Recorder of New York. Three years ago he married a young second wife, who, with her child, survives him. The character with which he was almost entirely indentified for a quarter of a century was Falstaff. In this he was exceedingly accomplished and deservedly celebrated. Other characters which he also played, and in which he excelled, were Nimrod Wildfire, a Yankee, and Mons. Mallet, a French-

LA PERICHOLE

SYNOPSIS OF ARGUMENT:

Two street singers come to Lima on a very distressed condition on the Viceroy's birthday and during all festivities held in his honor. Meeting with little encouragement from the populace, who prefer the antics of "learned dogs" to their music, they become much discouraged and separate, one to continue singing and the other to sleep, being too tired and faint to proceed further. On the return of Piquillo his companion has vanished and he thinking himself abandoned, takes a miserable view of life and becomes desperate. The Governor of the city, requiring a person to fulfill a command of the Viceroy's, gives him a good dinner, with drink ad libitum, which acts as usual on the brain of a man half starved and results in a terrible case of intoxication. He is then made a "Benedict" by two drunken Notaries—in fact, all I may say more or less inebriated, but discovering, instead of being espoused to a strange lady, he has married his companion, the new favorite (as he supposes) of the Viceroy, his rage is unbounded, etc., etc. The story being rendered so fully in Kelly and Leon's translation, more of an argument is scarcely needed.]

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

To-night, the drama of "The Red Pocket Book;" on the scenery for which Wilkins has been at work for months past, and on the preparations for which thousands of dollars have been spent, will be produced. E. T. Steteon and Henrietta Osborne will appear in the leading roles. Every scene in the play is entirely new, and we are promised an entirely original effect in the sinking of a ship beneath the waves.

California Theatre.

The "emotional" play of "Rouge et Noir" which has been for some time past in careful preparation, will be produced this evening for the first time in the United States with John McCullough as Maurice D'Arbel, supported by the full strength of the California Theatre company. Just at this time, when gambling is exciting so much attention, "Rouge et Noir" may be played at the California with profit to the management.

Alhambra Theatre.

To-night after a good first part and the Reynolds Brothers in original songs and dances in the interlude, Kelly and Leon's burlesque of "La Perichole" will be produced. In this the original opera is closely followed, nearly all the music and all the airs being given. Leon appears in the role of Perichole, and Edwin Kelly is that of Pequillo. The other characters are filled by W. Bark, S. H Holdsworth, G. H. Foster, George Reynolds, Chas Reynolds, J. King, Miss Fanny Gibson, Mme. Felice, Mrs. Stockmeyer, Miss Roach, Miss Johnson, Mrs. Schultze and Miss Duff. The ever popular Billy Emerson is underlined to reappear shortly. The present season of burnt cork opera bouffe is fast drawing to a close and the public should enjoy it while it lasts.

Bella Union.

This popular theatre was thronged on Saturday night and again last night. The programme was a capital one throughout. In the first part Mat Kelly drew great applause for the local song "Playing on the Green," which has appeared in our columns; Maggie Knight and Chris Mathews received a most enthusiastic encore for their double song and dance, "Nancy Brown;" Clara Starr appeared in character and sang a new local song, "The Hoodlum," in which she hit off that well-known character to the life; Carrie Armstrong and J. H. Larkin performed a new Dutch act entitled "The Sausage Man," in splendid style; Samwells, Montague, Lon McCarty and others appeared in a comic ballet entitled "St. Valentine's Day," and caused great fun; Fanny Garretson sang a very pleasing ballad; Maggie Brewer performed a fancy dance; Miss Josephine an Irish jig which was much applauded, and Marie Zoel a song and dance. Other acts were performed and this very fresh and lively entertainment concluded with the burlesque of "The Nymphs of the Air," in which Carrie Chapman, H. D. Thompson, Minnie Fillmore, Eugenia Gerretts, and the rest of the company appeared.

The Oxford.

In addition to numerous other attractions, Henry Smith will make his first appearance to-night in "Walking through the Park;" Amelia Dean, Lizzie Harmon and a great company of male and female minstrels, including Carlova, the Dutch Leon, will present a varied programme.

Theatre Comique.

Johnny Tuers received a hearty welcome back to the stage of this establishment on Saturday and Sunday nights, and sent the audience into convulsions of laughter by his acting in the Ethiopian burlesque of "Clam-Bel." Frank Jones, Mike Quinn and many other favorite performers will appear to night.

German Theatre.

The California Theatre was thronged last night with our German citizens. "Five-hundred Thousand Devils," the piece performed contains more real fun than a dozen English burlesques and more good music than many a French opera bouffe. If translated and adapted for the American stage it would prove an immense success. Max Lube, Otillie Genee, and in fact all engaged in its representation last night performed their parts to perfection.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Rather Rough.

We want to know if Chief Crowley doesn't think the personal column of the Chronicle is a little rough. Does the publication of the following which appeared in Sunday's Chronicle render the proprietors liable to arrest? If not, why not?

Would like to correspond with a young widow. One without a home or friends; or, any friendless young lady. Address Chronicle office, A. B. A.

Holiday Fare.

Those Who have no family circle where they can keep Christmas and New Year's holidays, can fare sumptuously at Jones' Oyster Palace, next door to the California Theatre. There they can find every luxury of the season: the choicest wines, and the most experienced of cooks and attendants. The private rooms for dinner and supper parties, are the admiration of all who have seen them. V

What Cheer Laundry

Employs no Chinamen, and should be patronised by everybody.

The Other Side.

The Salt Lake Footlights of the 8th inst. publishes the following under the heading of refutation. Of course we are willing to hear both sides:

We notice in the San Francisco FIGARO a letter from Ogden, signed B. M. Nathan, which shows very plainly to any one acquainted with the actual facts, how far some persons can wander from the truth. Everybody who witnessed their performances knows well enough that the Nathan Troupe had smaller audiences than have been seen at our Theatre for a year or two. One reason of this, doubtless, was that, with the exception of the child Marion, the Nathan Family were no attraction. The theatre-goers were alive to the fact that there were children connected with the local company, whose performances in the drama suffered nothing by comparison. Mr. Nathan says that "James Ward had very bad houses," and that "Byron opened in 'Across the Continent' to a very poor house; and, I hear, has been doing bad business since." Mr. N. also says: "The first two nights we had very good houses." Altogether, Mr. N. writes dolefully and attempts to discourage artistes from coming to Salt Lake to play. Now everybody here knows that, although money is not very plentiful just at present, when there is any attraction offered, suited to the tastes of the theatre-goers, the Salt Lake people are behind none in patronizing it liberally. Both Mr. Ward and Mr. Byron were convinced, substantially, of this fact, and admitted doing better business here, for the size of the population, than they did in San Francisco. The former gave five performances of "Through by Daylight" and cleared, as his own share, over seven hundred dollars; while the latter gave nine performances of "Across the Continent" and five of "Ben McCullough," receiving as his share, over one thousand dollars. During Mr. B's engegement, those who attended the Theatre had to do so through terrible storms and muddy roads, there not being one single night that was pleasant. But with this great drawback Manager Clawson, we presume, realized about enough to cover his losses on the Nathan engagement.

These items we furnish for the benefit of the FIGARO, and trust our contemporary will give them publicity.

A Racy Advertisement.

William Wilson is a genius who keeps a "horse restaurant" at White Pine, Nevada and he issues the following musical advertisement. We give him the benefit of our circulation:

William M. Wilson's livery stables and horse restaurant. Live stock faster than anybody's, and all trained to respect woman's rights—also children's—yet warranted to get away from anything else on the road. Buggies, broughams, baronches hacks, sulkies, road wagons, hearses, and every kind of vehicles for slow or fast travel—with horses to correspond. Funeral turnouts cheerfully furnished and guaranteed to make the proper impression. Bloated aristocrats from abroad taken onto any road, and warranted ahead of any stage or any conveyance—for money. No complaint is ever heard from stock fed in this stable. More hilarity than was ever known in any other collection of dumb animals since the procession from Noah's landing. No hay ropes about this establishment—everything is turned loose; the key to the barley sacks hangs dangling within reach of the humblest horse in the stable, and no pains are spared to make the guests of the establishment distinguish the difference between this and the desert waste. WM. M. WILSON.

"So you are going to keep a school?" said a young lady to her maiden aunt. "Well, for my part, sooner than do that, I would marry a widower with nine children." "I would prefer that myself," was the quiet reply, "but where's the widower?"

The Russian-Greek Church does not permit unwedded priests to officiate. In that country no priest is considered competent to preach truthfully or feelingly, upon the cares and trials of this weary world until he is married.

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

John Billingson Jersey Lightning.

Jersey lightning is cider brandy three hours old, still-born, and quicker than a flash. The juice is drank raw by all old sports, and makes a tremendous and hissing noise as it wends down the throat, like an old shee goose setting on eggs, or a hot iron stuck into ice-water. Three horns a day of this liquor will tan a man's interior in six months so that he can swallow a live six-footed crab feet fast, and not waste a wink.

It don't fat a man (cider don't) like whiskee doz, but puckers him up like fried potatoes. If a man can survive the fust three years of Jersey lightning, he is safe for the next 75 years to come, and keeps looking every year more like a three year old pepperpod, hotter and hotter, an old cider brandy drinker will steam in a sudden shower of rain likes pile of stable manoure, and his breath smell like the bung-hole of a rum-cask lately emptied. When Jersey lightning is just born it tastes like blieing turpentine and cayenne, half and half, and will raise a blood-blister on a pair of old cow-hide brogans in fifteen minutes, and applied externally will cure rumatism or kill the patient, I forget which. The first horn a man takes of this sickly will make him think he has swallowed a gaslight and he will go out behind the barn and try to die, but cant. The eyes of an old cider-brandist look like deep gashes cut into a ripe tomato; his nose is the complexion of a half-boiled lobster, and the gristle in his gullet sticks out like an elbow in a tin loader. The more villainous the drink, the more inveterate are those who drink. I cant tell yar whether cider brandy will shorten an old sucker's days or not, for they generully outlive all the res of the natives and die just as soon as the old tavern stand changes hands and is opened on temperance principles. One bottle of sassaparilla or ginger pop is sufficient to these old fellers as a rifle ball is to a bed-bugg.

Notes on Legs.

Some enthusiastic Frenchman once declared the human leg the most philosophic of studies. "Let me see the leg," says Gauntier, "and I will judge the mind;" and it does seem natural that the leg should indicate the disposition, as the shade of the hair should indicate the temperament. What sloth, for instance, does the limb betray. What a shrew is the possessor of a limb like a walking stick! But what a gentle woman is she with the arched instep, the round ankle, and the graceful pedestal, swelling to perfection, and modulated to lightness! What dogged obstinacy the stumpy leg with the knotty calf exhibits! What an irresolute soul does the lanky limb betray! How well the strong ankle intimates the firm purpose! How well the fat ankle reveals the vacant mind! Young men about to marry—observe! The girl with the large leg will become fat at thirty, and lie abed till midday. The brunette, with slender—very slender—limbs, will worry your soul out with jealousy. The blonde, with large limbs, will degenerate at thirty-five into the possession of a pair of ankles double the natural size, and afflicted with rheumatism. The fair haired damsel with thin limbs, will get up at half-past 5 to scold the servants, and spend her nights talking scandal over tea. The olive-skinned maid, with the pretty round limb, will make you happy. The little rosy girl, with the sturdy, muscular, well-turned leg, will be just the girl you want. If you find a red-haired girl, with a large limb, pop the question at once. The short lady should always possess a slender limb; the tall lady an ample one. No doubt these hints are reliable, and the fashions make them quite practical and available.

"You are beautiful, and I adore you;" said a gentleman to the belle of the evening. "For my part, I hate you and think you frightful;" she retorted. "I believe you, you frank girl. You don't tell polite falsehoods like me."

I want to be a police,
And at the corner's stand:
A star upon my bosom,
A club within my hand.

The greater the difficulty the more glory in surmounting it. Skillful pilots gain their reputation from storms and tempests.

FOR ME.

BY SARAH E DONNALL.

Life is not robbed of all its charms;
Thank God, I still can see:
There's something left in this bleak world,
For me; yes, even me.

The scent of rose and jessamine,
That fills the fragrant air;
Comes like the breath of angels sweet,
And woos me from all care.

E'en faded leaves, and broken stems,
Speak in their own sweet way,
And tell me of that other life,
That other brighter day.

The hum of bees and song of birds
Fall on my ravished ear;
And raise my troubled soul above
All bitter discord here.

The whisp'ring breeze and murm'ring rill,
The silent midnight hour:
All breathe of sweetest sympathy,
And soul inspiring power.

And golden beams of sunlight dart
Across my pathway drear;
Illuminating all the gloom,
And so I do not fear.

O, yes! there's many a joy for me,
Could I but look above;
And never turn my face from Him,
Who ruleth all with love.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street now the Alhambra. THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

The Internationals.

Well may the monarchs of Europe tremble on their thrones, well may the bloated capitalists of this and all other countries grow pale with fear and shake like aspen leaves at the mighty power which has arisen in the land. Their fate is fast approaching. Down they must come. It isn't George Francis Train, who says: "Down with kings, smash the rings," that makes them afraid. No, it is the "Internationals!" This tremendous organization is firmly established in San Francisco. They held a meeting last week. The Bullstin thus reports it:

The English-speaking circle of the International Workingmen's Association held a regular semi-monthly meeting last night at their hall under the Mechanic's Institute. The Treasurer, Dr. Belle, reported $4 25 cash on hand.

Four dollars and twenty-five cents already on hand to be used in gaining for the horny handed sons of toil their rightful heritage. It is not as much as the Fenians subscribed to free Ireland, but it is a beginning. Tremble ye tyrants, howl in anguish ye capitalists who have grown rich on the sweat of the workingman. The Internationals have men and money—$4 25—to accomplish their ends.

Heading a Fire Plug.

The Nevada Transcript of the 7th has the following:

On Thursday night, a fuddled individual, on his way home, confronted a fire plug, on Park avenue. He halted and said, "You git out and don't stand in the way of a gentleman." The plug did not reply, and the hero went on: "Gol d-darn, I,ll p-hic-ut a head on yer," at the same time he let fly his brogan, giving the plug a terrible kick, and staggered on remarking, "yer h-hic.ead is derned h-hic-ard, but I guess that k-hic-ick 'ill settle yer."

Booth, Barrett and Bangs.

The last New York Season—we prefer to call it by its old title, and sink the "Our Society," part of it—contains a very able critique, by a writer holding well known personal prejudices against Booth, on the performance of Julius Cæsar at his theatre:

Mr. Booth presented "Julius Cæsar," with the most gorgeous stage setting, well conceived and elegantly wrought. We have never seen so many accurate stage pictures. Each was a reflex of the epoch upon which the action of the play is founded. The dresses were models of the period, and reflect credit upon Joyce, who made them.

The principle characters of the play, are Brutus, Cassius, and Marc Antony. Cæsar loses his importance by being killed so early.

Mr. Booth cannot play Brutus, and common decency, and good taste should have prevented his attempting it. He does not look as Brutus looked. The brawn of muscle, the stature and general phisique, was unlike the Brutus of Shakspeare, and his history as well could be. Booth as Brutus, suggests the thought that if Cæsar liked not Cassius, for being lean, how could he have loved Brutus, for not being otherwise. But genius in the actor has and will overcome mere physical appearances. Booth lacks genius: or if he has the divine fire, he is a careful man, and never shows it to the public. He looked like the student, and aped the student. In fact he was more sipingly scholarly, than correct in pronunciation. He dressed his hair like Napoleon, and tried to look thoughtful. But he, from the first, misconceived the character of Brutus.

In the scene with the conspirators, he lacked the dignity of the man who was urged to kill Cæsar upon the conviction that his death was for the good of Reme. There was an absence of solemnity and quiet reserve of manner, to comprehend which, he failed. They had met to urge him to join with them in an undertaking, the object of which was assassination. To a mind like that of Brutus, who was a reasoner and a philosopher, the scene was one of awful moment. Booth meets them as a court gallant, would meet his boon companions, and, in his delivery of the lines that follow, makes haste to get through. Instead of being impressive, his inhalation was very bad, and painfully apparent in this particular scene' His dwelling long on words as "all, off, gods"; and words containing "l," or ending in ly, smacked of egotism or, if not that, a desire to be an acting lexicographer. His delivery was never very good, but it was at one time, clear, and unforced. Now it is entirely mechanical.

In the tent scene with Cassius, he was as choleric, as fidgety, and as irritable as Cassius himself. He was lazy as Brutus, and, the chair business played a prominent part. He looked as melancholy throughout the entire play as he ever looked in "Hamlet." When we say this, we need not accuse him of mirth.

Bangs, as Marc Antony bore off the honors. He looked and dressed the part to perfection. He was not only the Antony whom Shakspeare drew, but he shadowed the Antony which finds no counterpart in history, save Mirabeau. His acting in the scene that followed the death of Cæsar, was grand beyond deseription. Though suffering from hoarseness, his voice was well used. Every phase of passion had its separate and distinct tone: mock humility, bitter scorn, deep grief, and invective, rang out in quick succession. The curse scene—delivered without rant, was so electric, as to wake the house from its torpor, and give him a recall. His delivery of the oration in the public square, taxed his voice to the utmost. The reason of this was the elevated position from which he spoke, being nearly twenty feet above the audience. Yet he caught the spirit of Antony, and spoke the text with the artful cunning and subtle meaning which was so much a part of the nature of the man who mourned over Cæsar dead, yet who profited by his death. His closing speech created intense enthusiasm, which lasted until he bowed his acknowledgements. Bangs has made a hit as Marc Antony.

Mr. Barrett was on the whole, good, we may say, as Cassius. He has evidently given the part careful study and attention. If a man can sink his individuality in a part, then Barret has done it in Cassius: his make-up re-called the lean and hungry Roman so full of choler—irritable, and uncontrolable in temper. In every scene with Booth, he towered above him, and out-acted him. His delivery was in marked contrast with that of Booth, he speaks English, and speaks clearly, pronounces correctly, and, rarely rants.

To sum up the play, it was well put upon the stage, with every advantage of scenery and a lavish display of dress. Mr. Waller, and Mr. Joyce, deserve especial credit for their efforts. The play itself is a grand one, embodying every phase of human passion, and teaching to our people the grandest of lessons. If Bangs, Barret, Norton, and the scene painters can give it a long run, then Booth may get back his money. But, if not, then Julius Cæsar must follow the rest of Booth's great stage pictures. There was a singular lack of judgment manifested in the production of this play at this house. And, there was a selfish disregard of public opinion in casting Mr. Booth for the part of Brutus. As an actor, he has done something for the art that has enriched him. As a manager, he has given to Shakespeare the same gorgeous scenery which the spectacular, and sensational drama has had. He has done much to create in the young mind and revive in the old a love for the grand and beautiful in dramatic literature. For this he deserves that meed of praise which we bestow unstintingly.

The Flood and its Effects.

A day trip down from Sacramento yesterday on the steamer Capital gave us a fair exhibit of what a flood in the Sacramento Valley can do at its highest. Sacramento with its secure levee and raised streets has suffered none—except from mud—within the levee. Outside the levee, across the slough above the American River bridge, the whole plateau at the junction of the two rivers is under water, and people living there are in houses with elevated foundations, and communicate with the city with boats only.

ON THE RIVER.

The Capital left at 11 A. M., and came flying down the river with the aid of a seven-knot current. For the first 20 miles the levees were unbroken on either side. On the East side of the river there was but little water. On the West and North-west an unbroken sea was seen as far as the eye could scan, with solitary trees looming up far-off, like ships on the horizon's verge. As we neared the slough where the land is more depressed, this back-water came up to the very levee on the river, overflowing orchards, and surrounding the little raised mounds on which the barns and houses were built. The Capital in coming down followed the bent of the river around the slough not wishing to risk a passage through it during the flood.

BELOW THE SLOUGH

The land on both sides is overflown, and the levees on the east side badly broken. The finest farm houses on the river are here, on the east side, all built on mounds or raised foundations out of reach of the flood, with large barns similarly located. Here neither people or stock have suffered; but the immense fruit orchards for miles are all inundated, and it was a mooted question on the boat whether the flood would do them serious damage or not. Further down, the Arkansas ranch—a stock one—was flooded in land, house and barn; three dead horses and a cow were floating near the house, and a number of horses stood near by with drooping heads, knee-deep in water.

GRANT AND SHEEMAN ISLANDS.

These islands were simply lakes, gleaming in the sunlight calm and placid as Como, but without its romantic surroundings, unless their levees could be called such. The whole enclosures, with the exception of the raised spots on which houses had been erected, were covered with water. All the Southern levee of Sherman Island had been washed away, apparently by the sea beaten up during the late Southernly gales. A mile below the steamer landing on Sherman Island a gang of a hundred workmen were stopping up a break of about 500 feet which the flood had made in the levee. Upright planks are pinned down in the mud edgeways, gunny-sacks of earth piled against and on top of them and covered with mud, and the levee is repaired.

That the flood has done considerable damage along the river cannot be denied, but it is more imaginary and temperary than real. It has been prepared for for years in the erection of earth mounds to act as arks of safety for houses, barns and stock, and its damages and inconveniences will soon be forgotten in the prospective plentitude of the coming crops.

Hadn't Heard About the Fire.

[N. Y. Tribune]

Certain persons are so densely unconscious of what is going on around them that if the planet should go to pieces and they by some strange chance be preserved among the general wreck, they would not suspect for at least 24 hours after that anything had happened. An instance of this though apparently improbable to absurdity, actually happened in Chicago at the time of the terrible fire. On the Monday morning following the great disaster, a woman called on one of her neighbors, on the West Side, and asked if she could have more water, saying she could not get any anywhere, and that she did not understand why. Her neighbor, a well known lady, formerly a resident of this city, replied: "You could hardly expect a supply of water this morning, my good woman." "And why not?" was the interrogatory. "The water has all been used by the fire last night." "Fire, what fire?" queried the woman. "Why, of course you know, madam, that almost the entire city has been burned down; that nearly the only buildings which have escaped are on this side." "You don't tell me so; I never heard of that. I knew there was some house burning Saturday evening, but I had no idea it done any particular harm." The woman was neither insane nor insincere. Through all that horrible roar of flame, that war of the elements, that terrific din of a burning city, she had slept calmly, without being once disturbed in her profound slumber. Fact is often stranger than fiction.

SYNOPSIS OF ARGUMENT:

Two street singers come to Lima in a very distressed condition on the Viceroy's birthday and during a festival held in his honor, meeting with little encouragement from the populace, who prefer the antics of learned dogs to their music, they become much discomfited and separate, one to continue singing and the other to escape being too tired and faint to proceed farther. On the return of Piquillo his companion has vanished, and he thinking himself abandoned, takes a miserable view of life and becomes desperate. The Governor of the city, requiring a person to fulfill a command of the Viceroy's, gives him a good dinner, with drink ad libitum, which acts as usual on the brain of a man half starved and results in a terrible case of intoxication. He is then made a Benedict by two drabsan Notaries (in fact, all Lima is more or less inebriated), but discovering, instead of being espoused to a strange lady, he has married his companion, the new favorite (as he supposes) of the Viceroy, his rage is unbounded, etc., etc. The story being rendered so fully in Kelly and Leon's translation, more of an argument is scarcely needed;

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

This theatre was perfectly thronged last night, and by one of the most fashionable and intelligent audiences ever assembled within its walls. Every seat was occupied before the rise of the curtain, and standing room hard to obtain. As we have before stated, Charles Reade in his novel of "Foul Play" is indebted for his plot, incidents and situations to "The Red Pocket Book," therefore those who have read that novel can form some idea of the play. For the benefit of those who have not, it may be as well to give the story which is as follows:

Maurice (E. T. Stetson) visits Durome (Harry Colton), a banker, to borrow of him thirty thousand francs, leaving with him as security jewels belonging to his mother, who has died. Notes to the amount are given him out of a red pocket-book, and he goes out. Now enters M. de Folbert with the object of securing a note forged by him, which he knows to be in the possession of Durome and in the red pocket book. Durome enters and surprises him with the book in his hand; his mask falls off, and on being recognized he stabs Durome and flies, taking with him the red pocket-book and the casket of jewels left by Maurice. This ends the prologue. The first act of the play takes place on board the good ship Minerva, under command of Capt. Kerveguen of the French Navy (John Woodard). There are on board the Minerva in addition to her crew, Helene, Capt. Kervignon's daughter (Miss Henrietta Osborne), and Mme. de Launay, her aunt (Mrs. Frank Rea). Helene, while telling her aunt that she is in love with a young man whose name and history are unknown to her is interrupted by the announcement that a boat in distress has been discovered. The boat is overhauled and a man nearly dead from hunger and fatigue is rescued and brought on board. He is recognized by Helene as the man whom she loves. He is in fact Maurice, who was tried and found guilty of the murder of Durome in consequence of the notes from the red pocket-book being found in his possession, and had his sentence of death commuted by the King to service in the galleys for life. He has just escaped from Brest. The doctor of the Minerva, in reviving him, discovers on his back the brand of the galley slave, and informs the captain that the man he has rescued is a convict. Helene will not believe him guilty, but her father will not listen to him. Maurice is bound. The ship takes fire. Helene outs Maurice's bonds. The ship sinks beneath the waves, Maurice, Helene and all on board escaping in the boats and on a raft. In act second we find Maurice and Helene on the coast of Africa attended by Marcel, a good-hearted sailor who has escaped with them. A caravan is expected to pass soon and rescue them. Captain Kerveguen arrives by water in search of his daughter and insists on her going with him. Should Maurice return to France he will be sent back to the galleys, therefore Captain Kerveguen urges him to join the caravan. Helene is taken away, and Maurice as he is striving to follow her is shot by one of the sailors. In act third we find Admiral Kerveguen, Helene and her aunt at their chateau. Helene is urged by her father to marry, the story of how she was for six months on the coast of Africa with Maurice being whispered round to her disadvantage; he assures her Maurice is dead. Of course he is, not but makes his appearance shortly after. In act four we find Helene has at length, wearied out by her father's importunity consented, to marry M. de Folbert, a gentleman owning an adjoining estate. Preparations are going on for the marriage; Maurice seeks Helene for a last adieu, sees her decked in jewels, the marriage gift of De Folbert, recognizes them as those which he left with Durome, the banker, proves they are his by touching a spring and revealing the family motto, "Heaven alone can save us." Now his endeavor is to track how these jewels came into the hands of M. de Folbert and thus discover the real murderer of Durome, the banker. Just at this time he loses his wife from excitement and becomes a madman. In the last act everything is set right, M. de Folbert is denounced as the murderer, the innocence of Maurice is established and he claims Helene as his bride.

This is a sufficiently interesting story to make a good play, and it does. There is, however, too much "talk" in the version produced at the Metropolitan Theatre last night. A great deal of this will be cut out to-night, and then the play will be one of the most thrilling ever produced in this city. The management have fully filled their promise to the public, that this play should be produced in extraordinary style. The scene of the ship in the second act is perfectly unlike anything ever seen before. The whole stage is boxed in, and the eye rests on a waste of water and sky, in the midst of which a vessel lies tossing. When the fire breaks out, and the magazine explodes, the ship breaks up and settles beneath the waves while the crew are seen in boats floating in water. The palace scene in the fourth act is really magnificent; a spacious hall supported by pillars of porphyry, and paved with marble, is lighted with chandeliers of gold, burning two hundred and fifty tapers, which shed a resplendent light. All the scenes are good; that representing the gardens of the Chateau by moon light is very fine; and all do great credit to Mr. Wilkins, the scenic artist of the Metropolitan Theatre. Credit is due to Edwin Deaves for the mechanical effect of the train of camels crossing the desert. The stage furniture was rich and new, and in full keeping with the splendor of the scenery.

The acting of the play is in the hands of two or three out of the many dramatis personæ. E. T. Stetson as Maurice gained and kept the sympathy of the audience for the wronged Maurice, and played the part in a perfectly heart-breaking manner. Miss Henrietta Osborne was very pleasing as Helene. Miss Osborne always carries her audience with her, and gains their sympathy for the heroine, which is a great point. Jas. M. Hardie dressed, read and acted the part of M. de Folbert well; H. Colton did as much for that of Durome; John Woodard played Capt. Kerveguen quietly and with good discretion; Mrs. Frank Rea dressed and acted the part of Mme. de Laundy very well indeed; Willie Simms, on whom devolves the task of lightening up the play, was very amusing as Marcel, the simple-hearted countryman, who sticks to Maurice by sea and land and is instrumental in establishing his innocence; J. H. McCabe made a capital doctor; the "[illegible]" was played by some [illegible] gymnast whose name does not appear in the bill; and the ladies of the piece, Miss Maggie Moore, Miss Fanny Young, Miss Susie Soule and others, dressed with good taste and looked very pleasing in the dance in the prologue. Great pains has been bestowed on the production of this play; it is full of interest, is well played, and should have a long run. It will be played every night until further notice.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Alhambra Theatre.

The production of Kelly & Leon's burlesque version of "La Perichole" last night was the signal for our music-loving population to turn out in full force and throng the Alhambra Theatre. Leon as Perichole and Kelly as Paquillo were excellent in their respective roles, and were ably supported by the talented company of musical artists forming the company. The solos, duets and choruses were given with admirable effect, and the action of the opera was well sustained, the drunken wedding in particular being carried through with immense spirit. "La Perichole," as performed by Kelly & Leon's and the Emerson Minstrels, is a great treat and should be enjoyed by all.

California Theatre.

"Rouge et Noir," an adaptation from the French, which has been for some time past in preparation, was produced last night and capitally acted throughout. The play is full of action, and the incidents are of a thrilling character. The first act opens with a scene in a gambling den, and the other four acts are devoted to an elaboration of the miseries all proceeding from that game of "Rouge et Noir." The interest is well sustained, though the play is rather long for the boards of a San Francisco theatre. It will doubtless play closer to-night, and let the audience out at an earlier hour. John McCullough, Miss May Howard, Henry Edwards, Mrs. Sophie Edwin, W. A. Mestayer, Leach, Thayer, Buckley and all concerned in the representation of the play performed their parts well. The scenery is very fine. That of the first act, the Paris gambling saloon in Palais Royal, and that of the second representing the gardens of d'Arbel House, occupied the full depth of the stage. The Garden scene was very elaborately presented with real flowers and a flowing fountain. The burning of the Hut in the Black Morass of the German Forrest in the last act was also a very effective scene. The situations of the end of the first, second and third acts are very emotional and well worked up.

Bella Union.

The comic ballet of "St. Valentine's" causes much laughter; Carrie Armstrong and J. H. Larkin in their new character scene of "The Sausage Man" have made another hit, and Clara Starr's new song, "The Hoodlum," is well adapted to the times. Maggie Knight and Chris Mathews are capital in their double song and dance. In the interpiece of "The Queen of the Air" Miss Carrie Chapman by her comic make-up and good acting as Mrs. Vanderspliz causes much laughter.

The Oxford.

There is variety enough in the entertainment offered at this place of amusement to suit all tastes. Among the features of the programme to-night are comic songs by Sally Thayer; ballads by Lizzie Harmer; eccentric dances by Jimmy Hall, and female impersonations by Carlova, the Dutch Leon.

Theatre Comique.

The Ethiopian burlesque entitled "Clam-Bel" as presented at this house by Johnny Thees and Jake Wallace is one of the most side-splitting pieces of absurdity ever seen on any stage. Frank Jones is great in "Adolphus Morning Glory;" Miss Rosa Vincent in dances; Mike Quinn in character acts, and a number of others in a varied programme will amuse those who visit the Theatre this evening.

Benefit to Signor Bianchi.

The testimonial benefit to Signor Bianchi, which has been postponed again and again, is now definitively arranged to come off on the 24th at Maguire's Opera House. The opera of "Il Trovatore" will be produced, with Signor Bianchi as Manrico, Mrs. Bradshaw as Leonora, Mme. Bianchi as Azucena, and Signor Luigi Contini as the Conte di Luna.

Art Reception.

The San Francisco Art Association will give one of their delightful receptions at Pacific Hall this evening, when the latest productions of our local artists will be exhibited. For the musical portion of the entertainment, the following ladies and gentleman have volunteered: "Miss Dingeon, Miss Tojetti, Miss Thomas, Mrs. Marble and Miss Burrell; Messrs. Lyster, Weil, Schmidt, Schlotte, Schultz, Harrington, Havell and Bixth.

Talent from Portland.

The Ajax, which arrived yesterday, brought the following members of the minstrel profession:

S. S. Purdy, Chas. Vincent M. Ainsley Scott, Fostelle, Cherry Belle, Forrestelle the contortionist, Tommy Arnold, Jimmy Cotton, Charley Emerson, Dan Lowrie, Charles Morrill, Johnny Reilly, Susie Lee and Miss Sinclair.

They have all scraped the mud of Oregon off their boots, and we think we may be borne out in asserting that they, individually and collectively, do not banker much to return there at this season of the year.

Holiday Fare.

Those who have no family circle where they can keep Christmas and New Year's holidays, can fare sumptuously at Jones' Oyster Palace, next door to the California Theatre. There they can find every luxury of the season: the choicest wines, and the most experienced of cooks and attendants. The private rooms for dinner and supper parties, are the admiration of all who have seen them. V

WAITING

I have waited for thy coming
Many years;
And my heart is tossed and tortured
With its fears.

In night-visions I behold thee
Far away,
And I wake to love thee only,
All the day.

Time, the wrecker and destroyer,
Down the air
Sifts the white sand through his fingers,
On my hair.

To the borders of life's Winter,
Drawing nigh;
And the harvest moon is fading
From the sky.

I have sown beside all waters—
Loving thee—
In the shadow and the sunshine,
Warm and free.

Through the Summer woods I've wandered,
All alone,
With a weight upon my spirit
Like a stone.

I had hoped to reap right early
Something sweet,
And a something that would make
My home complete.

Love was given, nothing doubting,
Lavishly;
Strong and constant, never changing,
As the sea.

I am sad and I am lonely—
Weary, too;
If there's truth outside of Heaven,
Thou art true.

And I'll wait, as I have waited,
Evermore,
For the music of thy footstep
At the door.

The Sun and Moon.

The Sacramento Union says: "An interesting contest is now going on between the sun and moon, or rather their respective champions, in regard to the weather. There are among us many "Forty-niners," who have a theory that when a moon comes in wet the weather will continue more or less stormy during that lunar month. Others of a veteran class claim that whenever a sun sets clear and unclouded it is a sure sign of a spell of clear weather. The last moon came in wet—and stormy was the weather until it ended its monthly course. Tally one for the lunatics. On the 9th the sun set in an unclouded horizon, and the morning of the 10th dawned bright and clear. The solites hailed these occurrences as certain omens of a fair spell. But early in the day a new moon entered upon the scene, clouds covered the skies, the wind arose, and soon after nightfall the rain began to come down. As yet it is an open question which is to have the best of the contest, the sun or the moon. The lunatics are firm in adhering to the soundness of their theories, while the solites are shaky on their pins. At present writing it really seems as if the moon worshippers have the better of their Parsee rivals, the worshippers of the sun. And looking upon the conduct of people generally, it does seem as if the inhabitants of this State, as well as its weather, are more or less under lunar influences."

A Hasty Wedding.

The Reese River Reveille of January 4th gives this account of a hasty, and, to all appearances, a happy marriage:

A wedding came off in this city night before last, which was conceived, proposed and executed in a shorter time than any affair of the kind that ever came under our reportorial observations since the halcyon days of Blue Range, in the Winter of 1849 and Spring of 1850. The groom is an opulent gentleman from a southern district, who has recently made a sale of some mining property and came to Lander's metropolis to spend the holidays and portion of his superfluity, when, on the evening aforesaid, he fell in with his affinity, a beautiful black-eyed damsel, residing in the base range, and recently graduated from an Eastern educational institute. The proposal was made and accepted, the marriage settlement drawn and license procured all inside the space of an hour, when the happy couple hastened to one of the Lord's anointed, who soon made the twain one flesh. The happy bridegroom, in the fullness of his heart and generosity of his nature, presented to the worthy parson a couple of twenties for his services. At the Lafayette Restaurant an elegant wedding supper was prepared, which was partaken of by numerous jovial friends of the happy groom and bride—wine flowed freely, bright eyes sparkled, and the occasion indeed, was a "feast of reason and a flow of soul." At a late hour the guests separated, and the loving pair betook themselves to their sylvan retreat—"two souls with but a single thought, two heart that beat as one."

A Revolution About Chewing Gum.

The following, clipped from an exchange, will be of interest to many who cannot find sufficient employment for their masticators at the table:

"Chewing-gum is made at Poduck, Massachusetts, of gum arabic, rosin, and coarse fat Any kind of fat even that of dead dogs, is used in the manufacture; and, when all the ingredients are placed in boiling kettles, small quantity of the most nauseous liquid foam is put in to whiten the gum."

Importance of Punctuation.

A certain grocer on Washington street, Peoria, Illinois, has a placard near the door, on which is printed in large letters, "N O Molasses." Two men driving down the street the other day, one of them holding a jug, was heard to exclaim, "There is no use going there Bill, for don't you see that sign says they hain't got any molasses."

Bless That Girl!

A Louisville girl came blushing into the parlor the other night and told her father, when he noticed her bloom that she had been enjoying unseen happiness. The old gentleman thought she had been praying, and was glad as he is a pious man; but instead the wicked lass had been kissed by her lover in the unlighted hall.

Who Can Say!

A Mixed Show.

C. A. Day, in the New York Mercury has the following.

Editors and Printers meet with some queer cases among the amateur showmen. One day there rushed into the composing room of the Charleston Daily Courier, a butternut-clad Georgian, panting for breath from rapidly running up the stairs. The "swamp-seed" old man bore in his hand a roll of MSS as bulky as a copy of the constitution of the the city by-laws, which he thrust toward the foreman exclaiming:

"I want this printed out. I'm in a hurry, and can't stop to read it; but it is all written there," at the same time unrolling the paper fully a yard in length, and clearly written.

"You see," he continued, "I'm in a hurry to take the kears, and I can't stop now, but, I want you to write me up to Perk Hill how much you charge for ten; how much for a hundred and how much if I take a thousand—"

"But,—" interrupted the foreman.

"Well you see," continued the voluble amateur showman, "I'm in such a hurry that I can't stop long; but s'pposin you just take and sling me off a dozen of them programmes

"But you see we have to set up," expostulated the printer.

"Oh, you need not set up!" remarked the Georgia cracker—"don,t you break your rest on my account—"

"But I couldn't put it to press to-day,"

"Oh, no I wouldn't press ye!"

"The fact is we are full," again interrupted the foreman.

"Well, I'm rather full myself—jest eat my full of plsintain turkey and fixings at the Pavilion—"

"We have so much to do," added the foreman.

"Well, so've I," ran on the voluble Southron "What with running my show up on the Georgy road; getting in cotton and corn. I show at Randall's Cross Roads to morrow night. Come up and see me—a strictly moral show; patronized by the first families; designed to please all classes, the reined and the interlectoral of every commoon ty."

"What is the style of your entertainment?" asked a "four" standing by.

"Well, you see to catch all classes, it is a little mixed, and I have to give two titles "The Crucifixion of Jesus Christ," and, the "Bombardment of Fort Sumpter."

If this was not strictly true, I should consider it too profane to put on record; but, perhaps it is no more sacrilegeous than a thousand and one Sunday-School anecdotes in print.

With an injunction to print ten or a dozen and stating that he would be back in about fifteen minutes, the would-be showman rushed down the stairs in a perspiration, and burst aronnd the corner to purchase a couple pounds of candles, with which to illuminate his great Moral Show.

The Chinese Way.

When the celebrated Manager Bunn took his star company to Hongkong for the first time he had a little trouble with an actor. On the opening night his leading tragedian got drunk, as leading tragedians will and interrupted the performance. Manager Bunn stepped to the footlights, which were Chinese lanterns, and beckoned in the efficient police. When the difficulty was explained through an interpreter, to Manager Bunn's intense astonishment the drunken tragedian was thrown down and his head sawed off in about two minutes. Bunn writing home about the affair, expressed his regret that he did not know the customs of the country, so that he could have put this thrilling incident in the bills and so secured an overflowing house.

"May it please your Honor," exclaimed a juryman, "I am deaf in one ear." "Then you may be excused, as it is necessary for a juror to hear both sides," said the Judge.

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

Very Comforting.

Some editor who we will undertake to say keeps his wife pretty well down—if he doe not beat her says:

Neither God nor man expects a wife to submit to brutality; but a woman, who, finding herself out-growing her husband or disappointed in him, yet takes up the cross, and fitting her shoulders to it bears it in silence to her life's end, has joys that the world knows not of and reaches the highest type of womanhood.

Oh, yes, that woman is awfully jolly. Her joys are unspeakable. We like that phrase, "out-growing her husband"—a gentle euphemism for out-growing his liking. Those meek women have a happy time of it. Their husbands talk to them affectionately something like this: "Why do you go snivelling round the house in that style? Why don't you say something? I know what you mean by your meek uncomplaining, you mean I'm a brute! Why don't you die? d—n you. Then this 'highest type of womanhood' replies, "I don't know George," shoulders her cross and lugs it up into her bedroom; then takes it into the kitchen and finally the husband, to see if she has any 'se'ling m fi ds her over the head with a bootjack.

A Thoughtful Thief.

Night before last, or, rather yesterday morning, some well well-posted and calculating thief, entered the sleeping apartment of Charley Brooks, on B street, near Union; and while he was soundly snoozing, went through his pantaloons. The thief got $36 in coin, and very considerately left on the washstand $1.72 for Charley's use. Charley says the thief must have been a person who had his habit down to a fine point, as the money left upon the stand was just exactly what he would require for morning use, viz: cocktail 25 cents, shave 22; bootblacking, 55; breakfast 75; cigar, 25 cents. In all amounting to exactly the sum left for his use.—Territorial Enterprise.

A Wise Father.

The following anecdote is told of the famous Prince of Conde. He left his son aged nine years, fifty louis d'or to spend while he, himself, was absent in Paris. On his return the boy came to him triumphantly, saying "Papa, here is all the money safe; I have never touched it once."

The Prince, without making any reply, took his son to the window, and quietly emptied all the money into the street. Then he said: "If you have neither virtue enough to give away your money, nor spirit to spend it, always do this for the future, that the poor may have a chance of it."

Sickles and His Bride.

[From the Cincinnati Enquirer, Dec. 26.]

General Sickles has a penchant for foreign wives. His first unhappy mate was an Italian, and now he has taken unto himself a Spanish bride, Senorita Carolina Guerrero, better known by the name of de Creeagh, her mother's name by a second marriage. A friend in Washington writes:

What is there in a name? The truth about Dan Sickles' bride is, she is the daughter of a poor Spanish widow, who, to better her fortunes, married a rich Scotch trader by the name of Joseph Craig. He was a sort of commercial traveller, and after he had made a snug fortune out of the dons of Cadiz dropped the "ph" and tacked a "de" and double "ee" to his name, and came to Madrid a Spanish senor. It is a way not uncommon to Americans when they go abroad, and right here in the republican metropolis there are plenty of names so Frenchified and Teutonicked that the first bearers thereof will never answer to them when at the Day of Judgment their names are called. If Mme. de Creeagh Sickles, nee Guerrero, has a taste for anatomy she can find a pleasant study in the Army Medical Museum. Among the gunshot wounds, in a case nearly under the sky-light, is all that is left of what was once the tether, high-stepping, shapely leg of her husband.

A Novel Ceremony.

We find the following in the San Diego Union of the 31st ultimo: The ceremony of choosing compadres and comadres for the coming year—a custom peculiar to the people of Spain and Mexico—is to be performed upon the advent of the new year by some of the ladies of this city. The custom is an old one, and its origin dates back many years. The manner of its performance is as follows:

The names of ladies and gentlemen known to be mutually acquainted are written upon slips of paper and deposited in hats, the name of a lady being drawn simultaneously from one hat with that of a gentleman from another, the two whose names are thus drawn to be compadres and comadres to each other for the year. The obligations incurred toward each other by the relationship are very simple. The gentleman is to be the escort of the lady on any and every occasion that she may desire; and she, in turn, must consider herself engaged for any and every entertainment which he may wish to attend Of course, the relationship can be dissolved by mutual consent, either temporarily or permanently, during the period for which the agreement is made. The custom is an agreeable one in this particular, that it insures to both lady and gentleman an escort or companion, thus doing away with the disagreeable incidents which sometimes occur through not having partners for an entertainment. And it also secures to the lady having a compadre the positive certainty of having some one to dance with at every ball.

SYNOPSIS OF ARGUMENT:

Two street singers come to Lima in a very distressed condition on the Viceroy's birthday and during a festival held in his honor. Meeting with little encouragement from the populace who prefer the antics of "learned dogs" to their music, they become much discouraged and separate, one to continue singing and the other to sleep, being too tired and faint to proceed farther. On the return of Piquillo his companion has vanished, and he, thinking himself abandoned, takes a miserable view of life and becomes desperate. The Governor of the city, requiring a person to fulfill a command of the Viceroy's, gives him a good dinner, with drink ad libitum, which acts as usual on the brain of a man half starved and results in a terrible case of intoxication. He is then made a "Benedict" by two drunken Notaries (in fact, all Lima is more or less inebriated), but discovering, instead of being espoused to a strange lady, he has married his companion, the new favorite (as he supposes) of the Viceroy, his rage is unbounded, etc., etc. (The story being rendered so fully in Kelly and Leon's translation, more of an argument is scarcely needed.)

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

All who understood the French language sufficiently well to enjoy French Opera bouffe, were delighted with the performance of "La Perichole," at Maguire's Opera House. Now it is presented in English at the Alhambra Theatre, with the wonderful Leon in place of Sally, and Edwin Kelly and an admirably trained company of artists in the other characters, everyone will go to hear it. "La Perichole," is the best of all Kelly and Leon's burnt cork opera bouffes. It is preceded by a first part and interlude.

California Theatre.

"Rouge et Noir" with its complicated plot, thrilling situations and beautiful scenery will be played again to-night. "Rouge et Noir" is a play with a powerful moral. The various characters of the drama are well acted by John McCullough and the members of the California Theatre company. Those who go to see this "emotional," drama will confess that a strong piece may be written without any locomotives or scaffolds in it, and the burning of the hut will fully gratify those who delight in realistic sensation.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The San Francisco public are quick to appreciate anything in its way. The management of the Metropolitan Theatre have spent much money on the production of "The Red Pocket-book," but have no fears but what the public will amply reimburse them. Seldom has a piece been mounted in more perfect style than this: the scenery is beautiful, the costumes are rich and historically correct, and the great scene of the sinking ship has never been equalled save perhaps when "L'Africaine" was produced in Paris, when an immense ship of somewhat similar construction was introduced. The scene of the camels crossing the desert is very fine and the final entrance of a real camel on the stage is the signal for applause which makes the theatre ring again. J. E. Vivian deserves great credit for the manner in which this play is produced and Mr. Wilkins, Edwin Deaves, and all concerned in the production of the scenic and mechanical effects have done their work well. "The Red Pocket-book" will be played until further notice.

Bella Union.

A lively first part concluding with a walk-around, a brilliant interlude of songs and dances, and gymnastic acts, a comic ballad and extravaganza, in which the whole company appear, make up an entertainment which must suit all tastes.

Theatre Comique.

Any number of songs and dances, amusing negro acts by Jake Wallace, Johnny Tuers, and Mike Quinn, and the roaring farce of "Turn Him Out," will amuse the patrons of this house to-night.

The Oxford.

Vocalists, Comedians, negro delineators, and acrobats, all appear at the Oxford in a varied programme To morrow evening an entirely new company, just arrived from Portland, Oregon, will appear in conjunction with many old favorites.

Art Reception.

The third reception of the San Francisco Art Association was held at Pacific Hall last evening. A very large assemblage of the beauty, wealth, and intellect of the city was present. The Hall was tastefully decorated and pictures new and old were placed on standing frames and hung on the walls We have not space to catalogue the pictures this morning. A very pleasing musical entertainment was given. Miss Thomas sang "The Forsaken," accompanied by Errd Lester on the piano. After this, "John Parry's Music Lesson" was very cleverly given by Mrs. Marble, accompanied by Mr. Havell: this was encored and Mrs. Marble sang another of Parry's songs, "A, B, C." Miss Helen Dogeon sang "Sing, Smile, Sleep," by Gounod, delightfully, warbling like a bird, and charming all who heard her. Mr. Harrington sang a Brindisi by Petrelli, and Mr. Havell, a clever singer, sang two buffo songs, "The Fat Gray Man," and "Mrs Watkin's Evening party" capitally. There was no dancing. All present enjoyed themselves looking at the pictures and conversing with their friends. These pleasant gatherings will do much towards teaching San Francisco society the "Art Conversation." Chris Andres' band furnished the instrumental music between the solos.

"Poverty Flat."

McCloskey's drama of "Poverty Flat," founded on Bret Harte's poem entitled "Her Letter," was produced at the Brooklyn (L. I.) Park Theatre on Christmas day. The City News and Gossip gives the plot as follows:

The first act takes us to Poverty Flat and introduces us to the life of the miner. The second act gives an insight of high life in San Francisco, and the fourth act closes the act on at Poverty Flat again. The interest of the play is well sustained throughout, and the climax is simply intense. The story is that Joe Mercer, a miner, is affianced to Gracie Fairbrother, the daughter of a miner who, having made his fortune, has returned to civilization. Blackburn, another miner, is also in love with Gracie, and his jealousy inspires him to deeds of crime to gain the hand of the girl. He manages to make both Grace and Joe think that they are worthless to each other But he is foiled by Tom Flynn and Teresa Arlington, and the lovers are united He returns to Poverty Flat, murders Teresa, abducts Gracie, and charges him with their murder. A Vigilance Committee try the latter and find him guilty, but again Flynn comes to the rescue, and Blackburn is shot instead. The abducted girl Gracie makes a terrific descent of the flume and is restored to the arms of her husband, and the curtain comes down upon their happiness.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view to gentlemen only at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

A Touching Appeal.

La Lillerie has the following:

One of the little sellers of trifles in the street offered yesterday a vilely executed crayon to Mlle Bertha L——.

"Buy this of me my pretty lady?" cried the boy.

"That! what is it worth?" asked the fair artist.

"Judge for yourself Madame; I have not breakfasted yet!" replied the boy.

LETTER FROM TOLEDO.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

TOLEDO (OHIO), Jan. 2, 1872.

DEAR FIGARO.—New Year's Day passed off very quietly here, only the sounds of singing of bells and firing cannons were heard till the New Year had come in. Theatrical news is as follows:

WHITE'S HALL.

This hall was opened on Dec. 26th for five nights, by Mr. Harry J. Kellogg of this city, with his "Great Historical Panstereorama of the Burning of Chicago, he has about five hundred views, painted on a canvas of ten thousand square feet. Mr. K. had crowded houses every night, and was well spoken of by our city papers for his good workmanship. These views are some of the finest I ever saw, especially one of them showing Chicago by daylight, and afterwards by gaslight. Mr. Kellogg's intention is to travel all over the country with his show.

FIELDING'S OPERA HOUSE.

The very good attractive company at this house, drawing crowded houses. On Saturday, Dec. 30, no seats could be found after eight o'clock. In the olio Miss Fanny Florence gave some very fine steps in fancy dances. Miss Florence has a splendid stage appearance, a pleasing, and expressive countenance, and is a fine dancer. Mr Fred D. Harris, the London Mimic, has a fine voice, which he uses with admirable discretion The Wentworth Sisters, Lulu and Lottie, general performers, are good, Lottie gives a lively silver sand jig, in a pleasing style Lulu, with her banjo and comic songs, is capital. Kurtz' comic Dutch songs and dances are very funny. Johnny McVeigh, a home talent performer, took the audience by storm, on his entrance on the stage.—The balance of the company, with the above mentioned, give a lively show.

WHEELER'S OPERA HOUSE

Is to be opened on Friday and Saturday the 5th and 6th, by Lisa Weber, and her burlesque company. On the 7th, 8th, and 9th, the favorite Maggie Mitchell, is to give us a three nights call.—This ends my story.

Yours Resply

M. P. Walch.

Advantages of Early Morning Courting.

In Bristol, New Hampshire, great honors are showered upon a young gentleman whose only merit is that when he went wooing, he sat with the object of his affections, as many gentlemen have done before him, until three o'clock in the morning. After tearing himself from the lady, as he was walking home he discovered a house on fire. Now, there had not been a house on fire in Bristol before for a year and a half. The lover gave a loud yell, the engine company was aroused and the village saved from destruction. So delighted were the firemen with this, that they made a handsome present to the damsel, whose personal beauty and delightful conversation compelled her lover to stay much later or rather go home much earlier than he should have done.

The Best Sugarie at Sacramento.

We condense the following facts with regard to the Sacramento Beet Sugarie from the Saucelito Herald:

The success of this sugarie has more than ordinary interest, because the process is essentially different from that at the Alvarado. The two processes are in rivalry. The Germans at Alvarado insist that their system is superior; while the managers at Sacramento, also Germans, proclaim their "Robert, Diffusion process" cheaper by thirty per cent. in cost of labor and in cost of construction, and richer in yield of sugar. The advocates of the Alvarado process, long in general use, say the sugaries of Germany which had been changed to the Diffusion system, are changing back again; while Sacramento has advices of opposite import. It is impossible to convey an intelligent description of Robert's process without diagrame. But we may say that, while beets are rasped at Alvarado, and the juice extracted by centrifugals, at Sacramento the beets are cut in thin slices and macerated in cold water, dispensing with the use of centrifugals. It is claimed that the juice is thus more perfectly extracted, and requires less chemistry in purification. Certainly it saves much power and costly attendance, and it is equally certain that, by either process, sugar making in California is a success. It may be added that the sugarie at Alvarado has inaugurated a system which insures constant occupation. When this stock of beets is worked up, the mill is converted into a refinery of cheap imported sugars which is very profitable. The sugarie at Sacramento intends to prolong the season of sugar-making by planting melons. They yield sugar equal to beets, and the crop will add three months' earlier milling. Besides, we can grow melons on soil not adapted to beets; and the melon syrup is excellent for table use, while the beet syrup is only fit for distillation.

A Happy City.

Hon. James Brooks writes to the New York Express, that—Canton is the happiest looking city I have seen in China, and everywhere the people seem ready for fun. Children are born in the boats, and the mother of them often rows or sculls with a child strapped to her back. Upon some of these children are tied bamboo floats, so that if the darling tumbles overboard it is easily fished up and in. Then there are grand boat restaurants, where parties go, as to Delmonico's, to feast, free from the dead air of the narrow streets, and enjoying the free air of the river. At night the river is gayer than the city, for the gates of the city—gates by the scores within the great wall gates of the city—obstruct all night locomotion, while the river is open and free. I loved to revel in a house-boat at night, breathe the good air, hear the squeaking guitar or harp of the Chinaman, see his fire-crackers, peep into his restaurants, hear the babies squall and the mothers and fathers snore. Canton city is divided by its streets into hundreds of compartments at night, and in or over each compartment is a gate, closed at night. For order and peace every little community is responsible to the authorities for there is no local police. The system works well—shuts up shops at dark, sends people to bed early, thus prepares them to rise early; stops all night gabbling, all theatre going, all soirees and evening parties, all courting and billing and cooing, brings home husband early and keeps him from straying at night. There is a river police, which cruises about the river at night and bangs into you if you do not sail straight.

A Cure for Red Noses.

Electricity has achieved a new triumph. Already employed to restore vigor and nimbleness to gouty limbs, the recent discoveries of Dr. Bernier, a French physician, show electricity to be an efficient remedy for the evil effects of excessive drinking on the human nose. The doctor maintains that by application of an electric current to noses even of the most Bacchic hue, the flesh may be made "to come again as the flesh of a little child," and supports his assertion by a case performed on a female patient of his own, a woman of high rank. "Knights of the Burning Lamp," who have still some regard for personal appearance, will appreciate Dr. Bernier's discovery, as it promises them immunity from the dreaded outward testimony to their pet vice. There is one danger, however, in the discovery, namely—its tendency, if confirmed, to encourage the growth of secret intemperance.

Eating Cockroaches.

Some thirty years ago two young ladies, sisters, were at school in London, where they had been sent from Jamaica, their native place. After every one but themselves were asleep they used to get up quietly, slip down into the kitchen, and there catch and eat the cockroaches. This extraordinary habit was not detected for some time, but at last the mistress found it out, and remonstrated with them. They, however, defended themselves by saying that they had been per est shrimps, which fed on all manner of carrion, whereas the cockroaches were clean feeders, living on crumbs which had been suffered to lie about in the kitchen. Even after the discovery, it was almost impossible to keep them from the kitchen at night, so strong was their love of the cockroacher.

IT REFERS TO ALL DYSPEPTICS

MOST PLEASANT TONIC AND APETIZER.

The inventor of this really wonderful TONIC, after a series of years and experiments, has succeeded in bringing before the public all that can be desired of a pure Tonic and Recuperator.

CERTIFICATES:

I have carefully tested and examined your I X L Bitters, and find that they cannot fail to be beneficial as a tonic and promoter of digestion.

G. HOLLAND.

CITY AND COUNTY HOSPITAL, San Francisco, June 20th, 1871.—I should judge that the I X L Bitters must be a very efficient remedy in Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and similar complaints, being composed of a number of vegetable drugs which are principally used in diseases of that nature, and are of the greatest efficiency in their cure.—F. H. ENGELS, M. D., Ass't Resident Physician, Apothecary C. & C. Hospital.

STATE ASSAYER'S OFFICE, San Francisco, July 21st, 1871.—I have made a careful examination of your I X L Bitters, and have found them entirely free of deleterious mineral substances.—Yours etc., ALEX. STATE Assayer.

PRIVATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE

N.E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London; nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted to the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

PROLOGUE.—Anteroom at Duroma's Chateau (new). The night of the 15th of February, 1774. The Banker's private party. An uninvited guest. The forged note. The gambling debt paid.

THE RED POCKET BOOK.

The family jewels. The unknown artist; the banker's bargain. "Life or honor, but not honor." The assassin's work.

The Red Pocket Book.

Act I—After storm and Battle. THE GOOD SHIP MINERVA in mid ocean (new). ☞ Introducing mechanical effects never before produced on any stage. An old tale of love, the gentleman and the sailor, a recipe for courage; a check upon the sea, a vessel in distress; the recognition; the contrast. Fire! Fire! Fire! The sinking ship; a brave heart in trouble, a woman true to the core; the boats and rafts. TERRIBLE EXPLOSION! last of the Minerva!

Act II—Coast of Africa (new). The shipwrecked lovers, their hut on the beach; a strange visitor; the Wild Man of the Woods; an unexpected arrival; the lost ones found; the father and child. Maurice the convict; deserted. "his rosalie is not more;" a brave girl's resolve; the old sailor's threat; the shot. The Caravan. Tableau.

Act III—A Country Chateau (new). Arrival of the Admiral; the proposition; Helene pleads for her first love; the unexpected suitor; the wanderer fallen by the wayside; true hospitality knows no distinction. THE DEAD ALIVE; a father sues for the honor of his name; two poor wounded hearts, a brave man's sacrifice; the separation; farewell forever.

Act IV—Kerreguen's mansion; the marriage fete. THE GRAND SALON, illuminated with its two hundred and fifty Wax Tapers; the Bridal Gift; the first gleam of light; the unexpected guest; the odious contract signed, Death the price, the gleam of light bursts into day; the family motto—"Heaven alone can save us;" a startling revelation; the madman.

Act V—Gardens of the Chateau by moonlight (new). The pavilion; the fountain; Faustin and his bottle; "when the wine is in the wits are out;" the miser and his godson; master and dupe; diamond cut diamond; Folbert's desperate game—"life the stake;" the star of love lights the path of danger; the fatal mistake; the dupe the victim; the motto—"Heaven alone has saved us." The proof of innocence.

A Model Restaurant-Keeper.

We learn from the Paris papers that a great man has recently died. Dinochau—the famous Dinochau—the Brabant of the quartier Breda, as his customers called him, died the other day in the Lariboisiere Hospital. There are few artists or men of letters who have not at some time or other patronized the establishment of Dinochau. It was a peculiar establishment, with a hall on the ground floor for messieurs the coachmen and a parlor up-stairs for literary men.

It was Nadar who a score of years gave Dinochau a reputation; then came Monselet, Carajat, Bevillon, Murger, Lambert-Thiboust, Champfleury, etc. Dinochau was—though a restaurant-keeper—with such men as these more a friend than a landlord, and it has happened many times that he would refuse payment, amply satisfied with the honor of having literary men for his guests, an honor which it appears has to be paid for by his heirs, the respectable sum of 103,000 francs appearing on his books in outstanding debts. All honor to Dinochau, who nourished the brains of the literary men of Paris with choice entrees and delicious pates, and didn't dun them for money! There are few like him.

Reflected Popularity.

The Alhambra is the most popular of theatres, and the Alhambra Lodging House, most popular of residences. Those who ire to obtain rooms there have to apply many days in advance as the house is always full.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 37 Bush street above the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of epicures

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere. Q

Sacramento Hoodlums.

Sacramento has her hoodlums and she also has a Louderback in Judge Gilmer of the Police Court. The other day he pronounced sentence on a hoodlum as follows:

The passing of sentence on you in this case is by no means a pleasant duty. You have associated yourself with a class of rowdies who seem to take pride in acts of rowdyism. You went into a restaurant in December last to get your dinner. Being dissatisfied with your beefsteak, you commenced by throwing potatoes at the waiter, and disturbed quiet citizens who were eating some ten or twenty feet from you. You then committed an assault and battery on the waiter. Not being satisfied at what had taken place, you drew a derringer, causing a general stampede. I wish it distinctly understood this rowdyism must be stopped. I sentence you to pay a fine of $100, or in default thereof to be imprisoned in the County Jail for fifty days.

Pleasing youths are these Sacramento hoodlums who pelt waiters with potatoes and destroy the appetites of peaceably-feeding Sacramentans by drawing derringers at meal times. Judge Gilmer need scarcely have apologized for the severity of his sentence. Fifty days imprisonment will not do that young man any harm, and after a diet of bread and skilly for that length of time he will not be quite so particular about the quality of his beefsteaks.

Who Are Aristocrats?

Twenty years ago this one made candles, that one sold candles and butter, another butchered, another carried on a distillery, another was a contractor on canals, others were merchants and mechanics. They are acquainted with both ends of society, as their children will be after them, though it will not do to say so out loud. For often you will find those toiling worms hatch butterflies—and they live about a year. Death brings a division of property, and it brings new financiers. The old gentleman is discharged; the young gent takes revenues and begins to travel—toward poverty, which he reaches before death, or, his children do, if he does not, so that, in fact, though there is a sort of moneyed rank, it is not hereditary, it is accessible to all. The father grubs and grows rich. His children strut and use the money. The children in turn inherit pride, and go shiftless to poverty. Next, their children, re-invigorated by fresh plebian blood, and by the smell of the clod come up again. Thus, society like a tree, draws its sap from the earth, changes it into seed and blossoms, spreads them around in great glory sheds them to fall to earth again, to mingle with the soil and at length to re-appear in new dress, and fresh garniture.—Home Journal.

A Very French Story.

A man ran away with another man's wife. The husband did not challenge the seducer, or proceed against him in the Courts. Not at all; he wrote him the following letter:

"Sir: for some time I have sought to get rid of my wife who, I assure you, became distasteful to me. It happened that she was about eight days ago, bitten by a mad dog, and I waited with resignation the fatal issue. You have come to my assistance, and it is you who will have the task of soothing her in her terrible paroxysms. Bless you my dear sir, remember hydrophobia is catching."

Very Deliberate.

One of the hoodlum kind went into a restaurant; and, finding fault with what was set before him called the waiter every name he could set his tongue to. The waiter went to the proprietor and said, "sir, I leave your employ!" Then returning to the hoodlum he gave him the most terrific blackguarding ever heard. Having satisfied himself, he went back to the keeper of the restaurant and said very coolly, "Sir I am out of work, would you like to re-engage me?"

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

The Fakir's Dream.

The New York correspondent of the Sporting Times and Theatrical News thus describes a remarkable dream he had:

New York, Christmas, 1871.

'Twas the night before Christmas,
And all through the house
Not a creature was stirring,
Not even a mouse.

And the Fakir slept, not having removed boots. He had hung up his trunk instead of his stockings, and as he slumbered, full of—good feeling toward his fellow men—strange visions floated on his sealed eyelids, and many were the quaint things he dreamed.

He dreamed that fakirs always got their salary.

That Johnny Allen was extravagant.

That Lester Wallack encouraged and employed native artists.

That Fechter, Januauscheck and Bandmann understood English.

That McCloskey and Foster write with pens dipped in blood, and by a calcium light.

That no one else wrote Augustin Daly's plays.

That all showman refuse to drink..

That Oliver Doud Byron was an author.

That McKean Buchanan was an actor.

That stars get rich sharing after a million dollars at the Bowery Theatre.

That W. B. Cavanaugh was stage-manager at the Howard Athenaeum.

That Tony Pastor couldn't sing.

That Laura Keene was 15.

That McCloskey was a solferino blonde.

That B. F. Lowell became affluent while with Pauline Markham.

Rough on Grant.

The Bulletin in an editorial on "Progress in Japan and the Japanese Embassy" that has just arrived, says:

The barriers of caste that only allowed nobles to bear arms, or to hold military or civic office, have been modified so that all classes except the tanners, whose occupation is deemed unclean, are now eligible.

Now we hope that no one will be ill-natured enough to tell Iwakura, Kido, Okabo and the others that President Grant was a tanner. It would be rough on Grant if they were to refuse to be presented to him on that account.

Tweed Jr., Re-insures in a California Company—A Bit of Sharp Practice.

[New York Times.]

Persons who have the misfortune to be creditors of the Commonwealth Fire Insurance Company of this city will need to be both shrewd and active if they expect to get anything out of that exploded corporation. It will be recollected that the Commonwealth failed, or rather was driven into liquidation by Superintendent Miller last Winter, and finally found itself in the hands of "General" William M. Tweed, Jr., who was made receiver. When the company thus came under "Ring" control its assets were $250 058 21, and its liabilities $165,478 40. We take Mr. Miller's word for the correctness of these figures. Soon after Receiver Tweed got hold of the reins he was smart enough to reinsure all the Commonwealth's risks in the Occidental Co., of California, paying some $90,000 for the operation, and not forgetting, we presume, a "rake" for himself by way of commission. This re-insurance matter off his hands, the "General" played the part of exhausted receiver until October, when the Chicago fire brought the Occidental Company to grief, and, with this sad event, came back upon the Commonwealth all those Chicago policies which had been reinsured, barring the reinsurance; so that the latter Company was $90,000 worse off than if it had not sheltered itself under the Occidental's wing. The present prospect is that, of the $85,000 surplus cash assets on hand when this young Tweed took hold, nothing is left, and stockholders are not likely to get a cent of the thirty-three per cent. which even by Mr. Miller's showing, they were entitled to when the Company was closed up. How would it answer for "General" Tweed to favor the parties concerned with a statement of affairs as they now stand? A large circle of mourners would gratefully accept a sign of life in this direction.

Answers to Correspondents.

EPICURE—If you are determined to eat a pelican, don't try it boiled.

CHRISTIAN—Before trying to convert your Japanese friend to your religion, perhaps you had better study his and compare the two.

MARY JANE—Swinging a fowl round and round puts it to sleep, but we would not advise you to try that method with the baby.

BENEDICT.—We don't see why you should quarrel with Jenkins because he said he "thought your wife was one of the prettiest and nicest women in the world." Don't you think so too?

AMATEUR.—Yes, nitrate of silver will black your face nicely for your minstrel entertainment. You need not be afraid of the black coming off like burnt-cork.

HISTORICUS.—You are right. The Black Prince was a natural blonde.

SPELLING SCHOOL—"Bludgin," "bluggin," "bleudgiun," and "bloodgin" are all wrong. "Bludgeon" is the correct spelling.

SCRIPTURE SCHOLAR—The Town Crier of the News Letter is incorrect in saying that Methuselah died of dyspepsia. He was drowned by the flood as you may ascertain by consulting your bible and making a calculation.

BASHFUL YOUTH—"Is it improper for a young man to kiss a ladies' hand?"

Decidedly so: your sense of propriety will ruin you, if you don't have it modified. If the lady had, no cheek the case would be different, but we fear that you are the one who lacks cheek; plenty of cheek and plenty of lip are indispensible in such cases.

NATURALIST — Crocodiles cry and shed tears. Whales blubber and give oil. Alligators are not the same tribe as horseshoes. Tailors' geese and hatters' ducks inhabit the hottest climates. They make their nest in the sand, and wait until their eggs are moulded, when they are hatched by hot pigs running over them.

Smoking.

In an article on the medical aspects of smoking tobacco, in the Food Journal, Dr. E. B. Gray asks:

"Is smoking injurious?" This is an everyday question apt to be put by patients to their doctors. Like most broad questions of the kind, it involves far too many considerations to admit of being answered by a plain yes or no. A medical man who has long been a moderate smoker, and watched the effect of the habit on himself, and others, here offers what he believes to be the true answer to the question.

Against moderate smoking in a healthy person who enjoys it, not a single argument has yet been advanced. Perhaps the most plausible of them is this: That every smoker daily imbibes a small quantity of tobacco oil and nicotine; and, as these substances taken by themselves in the pure concentrated state and in large doses are highly poisonous, therefore every habitual smoker, is, slowly poisoning himself. Just as reasonable is it to condemn all alcoholic drinks, such as wine, beer, etc. As pernicious, because a draft of pure alcohol will nearly, or quite kill a man; or to condemn tea or coffee as dangerous drinks, because their native principles, theine, and caffeine, taken alone and in large doses are poisonous. One of the best established truths in medical science is that the same physiological agent according to the dose given may produce effects which differ not merely in degree, but in kind. The idea of small doses of tobacco or any such agent, slowly accumulating the system and at length producing the effect of a single large dose, is a priori absurd and also contradicted by experience.

So much, and often so much nonsense, is prated about the evils of tobacco that its virtues rarely get a hearing, and yet the latthe are many the great. To quiet nervous unrest; to soothe a ruffled temper; to favor calm and impartial thought; to steady and clear—not cloud—a confused over-worked brain; to counteract the effects of physical exhaustion—these are just the things which tobacco does, and, it can effect these ends safely and pleasantly, who shall deny it a place among God's good gifts to men?

Contaminatng Sins.

One of the good stories in the life of Young, the tragedian, recently published in London, is that of a farmer's wife whose pond had been used by some Baptists for the immersion of their converts. Hearing of it she was very indignant, and vowed that the intruders should be kept off in the future. I hain't no idea, she said, of their coming and leaving all their nasty sins behind them in my water. The sense of moral propriety in a pond, and of its being rendered unfit for its normal use by such contamination, is very finely brought out in this saying.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street also of the Alhambra. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bonton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

That Turtle.

Lew Bowman runs a turtle tub in front of his establishment. Cincinnati. Some days you may see a crowd around the tub from morning until night, and you may be sure there is a turtle in it. The other day we stopped to look at his turtleship, and a man took us mysteriously aside and whispered as he pointed over his shoulder with his thumb at the object in the tub, "Lew ought to let that ol l fellow off."

"What old fellow?" we inquired.

"Why, that turtle. He has had him ever since he kept the International. He and Phil. Tieman. He exhibits him in the tub, for a few days under the shallow pretense that he is going to serve him up in soup, and then the fellow disappears. "But he don't go into the soup!" adds the man, winking significantly.

"Where does he go?"

"He goes into retirement—got another tub in the cellar. There he lies concealed, until Lew wants to advertise turtle soup again, when he is brought out and exhibited as before."

"No!"

"It's a fact and it's cruel. That turtle was in the prime of life when Bowman first brought him to Cincinnati, but now he is grizzly with age, and bald-headed. I have seen him look up into Bowman's face with great tears in his eyes, as if imploring him to either release him, or boil him into soup, at once."

"He must grow weary of being stared at?"

"Oh, he does indeed. For years he has seen the same faces standing over the tub, and the same hands have caught him by the fin and whopped him over on his back. He pines for the ocean again, and is tired of assisting in a perpetual deception on the public. No sir; that turtle has served Bowman for many years, and he is entitled to a discharge and a pension."—Ex.

Pleasing Commendation.

A demure-looking chap hailed a charcoal peddler with the query, "Have you got charcoal in your wagon?" "Yes sir," said the expectant driver stopping his horses. "That's right," observed the demure chap, with an approving nod; "always tell the truth and people will respect you." And he hurried on, much to the regret of the peddler, who was getting out of the wagon to look for a brick,

An unmarried man is but half of a perfect being, and it requires the other half to make things right. DR. J. H. JOSSELYN

CAN BE FOUND ONLY AT NO. 24 GEARY street, near the junction of Market and Kearny streets, where he will be happy to meet his old Patrons and such of the public as may need his valuable services. The Doctor is the most experienced physician now on the Pacific coast in the treatment of Long Standing and Chronic Complaints. The remedies he uses are entirely vegetable, and of his own discovery; they are unknown to any other physician.

To Females the Doctor would say that the last three years have added greatly to his knowledge of diseases and irregularties incident to their sex.

In all consultations the utmost privacy will be observed.

Dr. Josselyn is prepared to make special contracts to cure for a stated price, the cure to be warranted or no charges to be made for services. Prices moderate. Office hours from 9 A.M., to 8 P.M. SYNOPSIS OF ARGUMENT:

Two street singers come to Lima in a very distressed condition as the Viceroy's birthday and during all festival held in his honor. Meeting with little encouragement from the populace who prefer the antics of "learned dogs" to their music, they become much discouraged and separate, one to continue singing and the other to sleep. Being too tired and faint to proceed farther. On the return of Pequillo his companion has vanished, and he thinking himself abandoned, takes a miserable view of life and becomes desperate. The Governor of the city, requiring a person to fulfil a command of the Viceroy's, gives him a good singer, with drinking libitum, which acts as usual on the brain of a man half starved and results in a terrible case of intoxication. He is then made a Benedict by two drunken Notaries (in fact, all Lima is more or less inebriated), but discovering, instead of being espoused to a strange lady he has married his companion, the new favorite (as he supposes) of the Viceroy, his rage is unbounded, etc., etc. The story being rendered so fully in Kelly and Leon's translation, more of an argument is scarcely necessary.

AMUSEMENTS. Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The play of "The Red Pocket-book" has proved a decided success and the Metropolitan Theatre is crowded nightly. The great ship scene is the talk of the town. It now works capitally, reflecting credit on its designer, George Hinckley, and its builders, Geo. Nichols and S. Gulliver. The play has been judiciously cut and now plays very smoothly. E. T. Stetson and Miss Henrietta Osborne play their parts well and are ably supported by the rest of the company. "The Red Pocket-book" will be played at the matinee on Saturday.

California Theatre.

To-night the Japanese Embassy will by invitation of Manager McCullough, visit the California Theatre, and witness the performance of the thrilling drama of "Rouge et Noir," The Embassy, with the Hon. Charles De Long and Charles Wallcott Brooks, the Japanese Consul, will form a goodly company, "The Romance of a Poor Young Man," is underlined for a speedy production.

Alhambra Theatre.

"La Perichole" is an amazingly popular opera. The music is delightful and the fun of Kelly and Leon's edition can be appreciated by all. Leon is great in the title role, Edwin Kelly is very good as Pequillo, and all play their parts capitally. The Reynolds Brothers are very amusing as "The Drunken Notaries," W. Bark most imposing as the Peruvian Viceroy, and Guadelena, Mastrilla, and Berginella, the three inn keepers, are well played by Miss Fanny Gibson, Madame Felice, and Mrs. Stockmeyer, Madame Felice in particular, acting with much spirit. Billy Emerson will make his re-appearance on Monday evening.

Bella Union.

A great entertainment is given nightly at this model variety theatre. Maggie Knight appears in character songs, and in a song and dance with Chris Mathews; Samwells and Montague in gymnastic acts; Carrie Armstrong and J. H. Larkin in their Dutch medley song, "The Sausage Man;" Clara Starr in her original local song, "The Hoodlum;" Fanny Garretson, Miss Josephine and Marie Zoel in songs and acts. The entertainment will conclude with the afterpiece of "The Queen of the Air."

The Oxford.

A number of new performers will make their first appearance at this house to-night. Among them is M'lle Forestelle, who has just arrived from Oregon, where she astonished the web-footed ones with her wonderful feats of contortion: Jas. Cotton, Charles Moran, Joe Green and Isadore Frank, are also among the new engagements. A great bill will be presented to-night.

Theatre Comique.

There is not a more popular Ethiopian act in existence than "The Goat Island Ghost" and there is certainly not a living member of the minstrel profession who can play Jake as well as Johnny Tuers. This side-splitting act will be given to-night for the three hundredth time, and a good first part, varied interlude and amusing afterpiece will be performed.

Benefit of Signor Bianchi.

Signor E. Bianchi's benefit will take place at Maguire's Opera House on Wednesday, the 24th. 'Il Trovatore" will be performed, with Signor Bianchi as Manrico, Miss Annie McKenzie as Leonora, and Signor Luigi Contini, late baritone of Wm. Lyster's Opera Company in Australia, as Conte Di Luna. Madame Mabel Contini will make her appearance in the role of Inez. It is so long since we have had any Italian Opera, the beneficiary is so popular, and the opera such a favorite, that seats should be at a premium before the evening of the performance.

Benefit to Calvin B. McDonald.

Calvin B. McDonald, the well-known journalist, now engaged on the Oakland News, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit at Brayton Hall, Oakland, on Saturday evening. Miss Viola D. Pomeroy will sing; Mr. Felton will deliver an address; Joaquin Miller and Charles Warren Stoddard will read selections from their poems, and Mr. McDonald will relate some of his experiences as a journalist. Such a varied entertainment will, doubtless draw a good house.

California Olympic Club Ball.

The California Olympic Club will give a full dress ball, at their new hall, corner of New Montgomery and Howard streets, on the occasion of its opening We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.— One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Death of W. H. Sedley Smith.

This veteran actor, who was stage manager of the California Theatre ever since its opening, died at 12 o'clock last night, of inflammation of the lungs, aged 61. Mr. Smith was for over twenty years stage manager of the Boston Museum. He was well known and universally respected throughout the United States. His death will be much regretted by the members of the profession of which he was so many years an ornament. In our Saturday's issue we shall give a record of his professional career.

Extravagance of Women.

A woman says:

How much is said and written upon this subject! Now pause a moment, my dear masculine friends, and let us compare notes. To be sure, we sometimes wear diamonds, but, my dear sir, this "single stone" and that rich "cluster," with its oval center, tinted and rainbow-hued, costs not half so much as the regal solitaire sparkling upon your little finger! Our ribbons and laces, which look such a prodigious pile to your unfeminine eyes, could easily be bought with the money thrown away on your cigar stumps! Our darling bonnets, though grown so liliputian of late, we admit cost a trifle, but so do all those luxuries over the way, where we poor souls never can nor dare to enter. Our silks and satins cost less than your broadcloth, while our boots (dear, dainty little things) are scarce half the price of your own. Now, say nothing of your clubs, and the secret association to which you belong, in what are not all the superfluities of our sex overbalanced by those of your own? Where are they?

Nibbles says that for the life of him, he can discover no point in all of Grant's proceedings in the South—except the point of the bayonet.

A TRYING REHEARSAL.

Kate Stanley on her Knees.

[Extract from an article in the N. Y. World]

To prove to the reader what work and what positive pain is sometimes conscientiously endured for the sake of a rehearsal, it may be here mentioned that, although suffering from the fatigue incident on a voyage, and utterly prostrated from sea-sickness, not having eaten a mouthful for three days, Miss Kate Stanley, the Stalacta of the "Crook," has appeared regularly, one day only excepted, at rehearsal, and although unable to stand, has absolutely rehearsed her part on her knees.

THIS EPISODE,

though excessively painful to the lady, was exceedingly picturesque. Her rich dress of fur-trimmed black velvet contrasted admirably with her long, rippling, yellow hair, while the full gaslight falling upon her bended figure gave her an ethereal look, which seemed to bring out all the more strongly the comic attitude of the hungry ballet girl, in a black masque, flesh-colored leggings and red boots, who was looking anxiously at the beautiful devotee, and at the same time munching with all her might of jaw a piece of tough ham. During all this time on the stage three or four boys, juvenile members, were practicing in the lobby, and getting well scolded whenever their troubles were not satisfactory to their "theatrical, perhaps their real, father," several strong-limbed women were exercising their muscles in front of the large mirrors directly at the entrance of the theatre; the ballet girls were seated on the stairs leading to the manager's office, mending each other's dilapidated dresses; were stretched on the floor, as though they were at a picnic, eating their humble lunch; an old woman was washing; the call-boy was taking a list of the names and residences of the members of the corps de ballet; an actress was standing near the water-fountain in the lobby, with her arm bared to the shoulder, and a doctor standing beside her was intently engaged in cutting at the fair arm aforesaid, with a view to its vaccination; and lastly and prettiest, yet strangest sight of all (in connection with the surroundings), in a comparatively deserted portion of the theater a young mother—and one of the prettiest of the ballet girls—was seated, quietly and tenderly nursing her own little boy-baby—her baby whom she brings with her regularly to rehearsals for the very simple and sufficient reason that there is no one but herself in this world to take care of the little thing.

SEVERAL WOMEN

How the Pintes Live.

The Virginia City Enterprise, of January 6th, says: One would naturally suppose the situation at present with the Pintes encamped on the hills surrounding the city to be rather rough, yet we hear of no sickness of any kind among them, nor any complaint about anything. They come into town—men and women, great and small—as regularly as usual; look as sleek as ever, and are just as jolly as in midsummer. As there is not a stick of wood of any kind on the hills where they are camped, or not even a sagebrush as large as a man's finger, it is wonderful how they manage to keep from freezing to death during the heavy, driving snow storms. The bits of boards and small sticks which the squaws are able to find about town scarce suffice to cook their meat, and is so scanty and so precious that they dare not venture upon the extravagance of burning it for the purpose of keeping themselves warm. In order to keep warm they must huddle in heaps in their little brush huts—old and young, great and small, piling up together, irrespective of condition. By going to the distance of twenty or thirty miles from the city, they might find camping places where they could obtain an abundance of wood, but there they would find their means of subsistence most precarious; in fact, did they depend entirely upon game, all would starve to death. Here they are able to find plenty of good strong food, and having that they appear to defy the inclemencies of the season. One stormy night passed in even the best of their sagebrush huts—a structure resembling a musk-rat house—would probably be the death of any white family that might risk the trial; yet the Pintes laugh at the storm, and in the midst of the whirling cloud of snow, cry, "Ha! ha!"

JAPANESE JOTS.

Dates from Yokohama to December 23d have been received. The following items are from the Japan Gazette:

There have been some few disturbances in the country, but, as far as is known, they have not assumed any importance. They may be traced entirely to the decree of the 29th of August. The common people do not yet understand the conversion of the Han into Ken, and designing men of the two-sworded class, who are themselves discontented, are only too glad to avail themselves of the opportunity of telling the people that the Yedo Government have made this change in order to replace the officials of the old Han by creatures of their own, who will enact new ordinances, and oppress them with taxes and arbitrary exactions. This is what caused the recent riot in Gei hin and in several parts of the Island of Shikoku.

The permit to export rice has been granted, but the customs authorities demand a duty on it. This has caused some trouble to our merchants, and we hear that the matter is in the hands of the Ministers. Great annoyance has been caused by the obstructiveness on the part of the Custom authorities lately, and it is high time some of these petty officers should be brought to their bearings. We hear of a case where they lately ordered a box of treasure to be opened and the coin counted to see if it agreed with the foreigner's permit to land. This is more annoying as there is no duty either on the export or import of treasure. Complaints have been made by many merchants to their respective Consuls regarding this useless red tape-ism.

The steamship Ocean Queen, which was wrecked some time ago on the west coast, has been got off and after a thorough overhaul at Yokoska, has again put in an appearance at our port. She has changed her rig and name, and is now called the Daniel Jean Richards, and flies the Hawaiian colors.

The Japanese are about to dispatch an expedition, consisting of two or three ships, around the world.

Two large fires—one in Yedo, and one in Yokohama—have raged during the past two weeks. Twelve hundred houses and thirty-nine lives have been lost.

A large fire broke out in the Yoshiwarra, destroying a good many houses, and twenty persons are reported to have been burnt or drowned.

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company have extended their line to Hakodadi, and steamers will hereafter make regular monthly trips.

Holiday Fare.

Those Who have no family circle where they can keep Christmas and New Year's holidays, can fare sumptuously at Jones' Oyster Palace, next door to the California Theatre. There they can find every luxury of the season: the choicest wines, and the most experienced of cooks and attendants. The private rooms for dinner and supper parties, are the admiration of all who have seen them. Y

THE LONG AGO.

Annie and I, we loved each other,
In the sweet days of the long ago;
Plodding home from the school together,
In the Autumn sunshine and Winter snow.

She was as blithe as a midsummer fairy,
Free from care as the winds that blow
Over the blooms of the Western prairie,
In the dear days of the long ago.

I was a lad uncouth, yet kindly,
Bashful with others and rough, I know;
But I worshipped each curl on her dear head blindly,
And thrilled at her voice in the long ago.

Nuts that I gathered, and roses, I gave her;
Treasured the ribbon that fell from her hair;
And longed for some wonderful danger, to save her
(Like knight of old) from the fearful snare.

Often I tarried when lessons were over,
Braving the smiles of the roguish girls
As they trooped along over the fragrant clover—
Watched for somebody's yellow curls.

Only to carry her books and her basket,
Only to tread the path by her side
O'er the sunburnt meadow; 'twas little to ask, yet
With crimson blushes my cheek was dyed.

Often I stole from under my lashes
A sidelong glance at her hands of snow;
Or caught the gleam of her blue eyes' flashes,
And watched the blushes come and go.

Hearts had we as light as a feather,
Little we reched of care and woe,
As we trod the old school-path together,
Annie and I, in the long ago.

Years ago did our pathways sever,
She to the West, to the Northward I.
Does she recall the bright days ever,
When we loved each other, Annie and I?

Though years are fled, with their sorrows laden,
Often I dream of the long ago;
I see in my musings a little maiden—
Over my heart steals the self-same glow.

The silken curls fall in golden showers,
And softly gleam the azure eyes;
As she takes from my hand the withered flowers
With a look of sly, yet pleased surprise.

Gone are manhood's struggles and trials,
Gone are the years of care and woe!
And we're walking the old school-path together,
Annie and I, in the long ago.

N. E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in this celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

SYNOPSIS OF SCENERY AND INCIDENTS.

PROLOGUE.—Anteroom at Duromé's Chateau new. The night of the 15th of February, 1776. The Banker's private party. An uninvited guest. The forged note. The gambling debt paid.

THE RED POCKET BOOK.

The family jewels. The unknown artist, the banker's bargain. "Any sacrifice but honor." The assassin's work.

The Red Pocket Book.

Act I—After storm and Battle. THE GOOD SHIP MINERVA in mid ocean (new). Introducing mechanical effects never before produced on any stage. A tale of love, the gentleman and the sailor; a recipe for courage; a speck upon the sea, a vessel in distress; the recognition; the convict. Fire! Fire! Fire! The sinking ship; a brave bear in trouble, a woman true to the core, the boats and raft. TERRIBLE EXPLOSION! last of the Minerva!

Act II—Coast of Africa (new). The shipwrecked lovers, their hut on the beach, a strange visitor; the Wild Man of the Woods; an unexpected arrival; the lost ones found, the father and child; Maurice the convict, deserted. "His road is not ours," a brave girl's resolve; the old sailor's threat; the shot. The Caravan. Tableau.

Act III—A Country Chateau (new). Arrival of the Admiral, the proposition, Helene pleads for her first love, the accepted suitor; the wanderer fallen by the wayside; true hospitality knows no distinction. THE DEAD ALIVE, a father sues for the honor of his name; two poor wounded hearts, a brave man's sacrifice; the separation; farewell forever.

Act IV—Kerveguen's mansion; the marriage fete. THE GRAND SALON, illuminated with its two hundred and fifty Wax Tapers; the Bridal Gift, the first gleam of light, the unexpected guest, the odious contract signed. Death the price, the gleam of light bursts into day, the family motto—"Heaven alone can save us;" a startling revelation; the madman.

Act V—Gardens of the Chateau by moonlight (new). The pavilion; the fountain; Faustin and his bottle; "when the wine is in the wits are out;" the miser and his godson; master and dupe; diamond cut diamond, Folbert's desperate game—"life the stake;" the star of love lights the path of danger; the fatal mistake; the dupe the victim, the motto—"Heaven alone has saved us." The proof of innocence.

FIGARO ON THE CALA. PACIFIC RAILROAD.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed ever day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

300 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

200 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

Sickly Sentiment.

Here is one of those sick paragraphs which go round and round the country press like a horse in a mill:

God made both tears and laughter, and both for a kind purpose; for laughter enables mirth and surprise to breathe freely, so tears enable sorrow to vent itself patiently. Tears hinder sorrow from becoming despair, and laughter is one of the very privileges of reason.

Idiots laugh and so do hyenas. Crocodiles cry and whales enjoy their blubber. A man has no right to cry at all and a reasonble man seldom laughs; he may smile, but the loud guffaw marks a man as one who is not much above the beast. The faculty of shedding tears was given to women to enable them to get new bonnets from their husbands.

News from Los Angeles.

By papers from Los Angeles we learn that the Zanja, on First street, was broken into. The Express says that Los Angeles can't get on without the Zanja, and consequently the Zanja must be reconstructed. Of course, every one must be aware that serious consequences must result from the destruction of the Zanja. Those who are so ignorant as not to know what a Zanja is can consult a Spanish dictionary.

The National Guard!

Henri Mailhac thus defined the French National Guard.

The French National Guard is composed of good and bad.

The bad attack society; The good do not defend it.

A Lugubrious Fashion.

The latest freak of fashion in Paris is to wear a small showy coffin suspended from the watch chain. Some of these melancholy "charms" have arrived in San Francisco.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere. Q

Another Fiend.

The city is overrun with fiends, burglars, hoodlums and the like—and the doings of such men as Burt Reilly, the King of the Hoodlums, have become so familiar to us as to create but little or no public sensation. But the Bulletin horrified the community last evening by recounting the particulars of a most atrocious assault on a poor little boy, a resident of the Mission, by an animal which has heretofore been considered not only harmless, but has been held up to us as the very model of all gentleness and docility. It is not for us to explain how a sheep could have been so ferocious. Let the Academy of Sciences, or some other body, investigate this case and report on that. Before copying the item let us premise that it any of our readers, from any cause whatever, would avoid experiencing that peculiar heart-sinking feeling, that nauseating sensation, that shock to the nervous system which follows the reading of thrilling deeds of horror, they had better not read the annexed paragraph. We proceed to quote from the Bulletin:

A FEROCIOUS SHEEP.—Yesterday afternoon a little boy, while playing ball at the Mission, threw the ball over a high board fence and at once proceeded to get over after it. He had secured his treasure, and was about to return, when he was suddenly attacked by a large sheep which knocked him down and butted the little fellow severely two or three times, when a Chinaman, employed at the house drove the sheep off. The child was more frightened than hurt, but will probably not throw his ball again over in the stamping ground of that sheep.

History does no record but one sheep more ferocious than that: That is the one which "killed the butcher," and this one must be a direct descendant from her. Kill her! Cook her mutton! She has bad, "ferocious" blood in her. Don't let her endanger the lives of any more little boys with her "butts."

A Bungler.

The Los Angeles papers have an account of how one Michael Brannan "attempted" to commit suicide, to-wit:

Placing the muzzle of his six-shooter to his temple, Brannan pulled the trigger—and the bullet passed upward through his hair and lodged in the wall near the ceiling. Five shots altogether were fired by this sanguinary Brannan at his devoted head, but each one of the bullets passed through his hair and lodged in the wall of the cellar, two near the floor and three close to the ceiling.

We don't believe the man wished to commit suicide, at all, but was in the habit of shampooing his hair in the manner described.

Cruelty to Animals.

A young Indianapolis lady, sick with consumption, was told that if she would get a young puppy and raise it, the animal would take the disease off her hands, and she would get well. She did so, and as the dog grew, it was noticed that he acquired a hacking cough, while the young lady grew rapidly better. In the meantime, however, she had become very much attached to her canine benefactor, and did everything that could be done for him. It was no use; the emaciated beast soon shuffled off, and the young lady is now in robust health. The question is, would Bergh approve of such a remedy?

The Stylish Hat Store.

The reason why the establishment at No. 647 Washington street is called "THE" HAT STORE is because, for the style of its hats and the moderation of its charges, it stands without a rival. Go to "THE" HAT STORE, 647 Washington street (the second hat store below Kearny), and examine the large stock of the latest styles of hats. K

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is worth much as a man. The greatest posts in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street above the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of epicures.

The Maid of Erin Renders it lively For a Bold Fenian Leader.

John O'Mahoney, one of the famous Fenian leaders, or who at least used to be one of them, procured a few days since the arrest of an Irish woman named Catherine O'Neil, in New York. John's course has not altogether satisfied his more enthusiastic compatriots from the Emerald Isle, and Catherine had an unpleasant way of considering herself a heaven-elected instrument to punish him by hooting at him and insulting him when she saw him. When she was confronted with him at the station-house, she addressed him in this manner:—

"O'Mahoney, you vile and cowardly traitor, do you remember when I was a girl in my father's home in Ireland, that there was a reward of £640 offered for your head? Do you remember that I saved you! And now on villainous traitor, you have me dragged here. May God and his angels in high heaven curse you, you traitor; John O'Mahoney."

Then, rising to her feet before the officers could stop her, she seized the chieftain by his long hair, and would have annihilated him, had not the sergeant and several officers separated them. The man who intended upsetting the British Empire, was placed hors du combat by one of his own country women.

Common Law.

A Kansas paper revives amusingly how Gen. Sherman failed as conspicuously in law, as he succeeded brilliantly in war. In the early "jayhawking" days, the General made a slender livelihood in Calhoun County, and once when he had prepared himself most elaborately, it is related that a "long lank, lean genius," leaving his ox team, came before the court as his competitor. The General summed up grandly, quoting freely from an immense pile of books placed carefully before him, and citing the English common law to prove his point. The "bull-whacker" followed him, and ridiculed his precedents and scouted at his books. He said it was an insult to the court to read from "the common law of England," and declared that "if we were compelled to take any of that aristocratic British law," he wanted the very best Her Majesty had, and none of her common law. That was enough: the justice's face was set, and the General lost his case. It was the last he ever tried in Kansas.

LA PERICHOLE
SYNOPSIS OF ARGUMENT:
Two street singers, a comic Lumain a very distressed condition at the Viceroy's birthday and during all-festival held in his honor. Wearing with little encouragement from the populace who prefer the ancient learned dogs to their music, they become much discouraged and separate, one to commence singing for the other to keep, being too tired and foot to proceed further. On the return of Pequillo his companion has vanished, and he thinking himself abandoned, takes a miserable view of life and becomes desperate. The Governor of the city, requiring a person to fulfil a command of the Viceroy's, gives him a good liquor with drugged liquor, which acts as a goad on the brain of a man half starved and results in a terrible case of intoxication. Here then make a Benedict by the drunken Governor (in fact all Lima is more or less inebriated) but discover him, instead of being espoused to a stranger lady he has married his companion, the new favorite as he supposes of the Viceroy, hostage to ... Too story being rendered so full in Kelly and Leon's translation, more of an argument is scarcely needed.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

"The Red Pocket-book" with its thrilling sensational scenery the sinking of the Minerva, gorgeous palace scene, strong situations and intensely interesting story, will be played this evening and at the matinee to-morrow. This play is the hit of the season.

California Theatre.

According to announcement, the Japanese Embassy, accompanied by the Hon. C. E. De Long, and C. W. Brooke, were present last night, during the representation of "Rouge et Noir," and appeared much interested in the play. "Rouge et Noir" will be performed again to night, and will constitute the entertainment at the matinee to-

Alhambra Theatre.

The public must not forget that the engagement of the admirable Leon is fast growing to a close and should see and hear as much of him as possible while he remains. "La Perichole" is the most lively of all the burnt cork operas which have been produced, and attracts a large and fashionable audience nightly. It will be played at the matinee to-morrow when the price of admission will be half the regular rates.

Bella Union.

After a capital first part, the comic ballet of "St. Valentine's Day," is performed; this is followed by an interlude of song and dance, and the evening's entertainment concludes with the extravaganza, "The Queen of the Air," in which the company will appear.

The Oxford.

The new company at this popular place of amusement met with a very hearty greeting last night, and appeared in an entertainment which gave general satisfaction. Those who have never seen Mlle Forestelle, the contortionist, should visit the Oxford during her engagement. Her performance is unlike anything ever attempted by a woman before.

Theatre Comique.

Frank Jones, the Lively Moke; Johnny Tuers the most eccentric of Ethiopian comedians; Jake Wallace, the California comedian; Mike Quinn, the popular character actor and banjoist, and a large company of male and female minstrels will appear to-night in a lively variety entertainment.

Persona s.

Mr. T. E. Jackson and Miss Josie Langley arrived overland last evening, under engagement to Manager Bert of the Metropolitan Theatre. They will not appear until after "The Red Pocket-Book" is withdrawn—which promises to be some time.

Billy Emerson will re-appear at the Alhambra on Monday evening next. Harry Norman, an old San Francisco favorite will put in a re-appearance at the same time.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Not a Satisfactory Experiment.

Here is a bit of grotesque humor from New Orleans; Mr. Gray discovered a non-explosive illuminating fluid. To show how safe the new compound was, he invited a number of his friends to meet him at his rooms, where he had brought a barrel of the fluid, which he at once proceeded to stir with a red hot poker. As he went through the roof of his house, accompanied by his friends, he tried to explain to his nearest compagnon du voyage that the particular fluid in the barrel, had too much benzine in it; but the gentleman said he had an engagement up higher, and couldn't wait for the explanation. Mr. Gray continued his ascent until he met Mr. Jones, who informed him that it was not necessary for him to go up higher, as everybody was coming down; so Mr. Gray started back to be with the party. Mr. Gray's widow offers for sale the secret for the manufacture of the non-explosive fluid at a reduced rate as she wishes to raise money enough to buy a silver handled coffin with a gilt plate, for the late Mr Gray. No cards.

Holiday Fare.

Those Who have no family circle where they can keep Christmas and New Year's holidays, can fare sumptuously at Jones' Oyster Palace, next door to the California Theatre. There they can find every luxury of the season: the choicest wines, and the most experienced of cooks and attendants. The private rooms for dinner and supper parties, the admiration of all who have been them. V

First Premium Millinery.

The last Mechanics' Fair awarded the first premium for superior taste and elegance of workmanship in the millinery line, to Mrs. Cowles of the "New House," 114 Third street. Mrs Cowle's stock is unsurpassed by any in the city, and her prices are very reasonable. BH

The following is going the rounds of the press headed "embarrassing position:"

"I say conductor, do you know that good-looking lady there, with a b.o.?"

"Yes, I have seen her a few times."

"By Jove she's splendid!"

"Yes, I think she is."

"I would like to occupy the seat with her."

"Why don't you ask her?"

"I don't know but it would be out of order"

"It would not if she was willing to have you occupy it. Of course you claim to be a gentleman."

"Oh, certainly! If you are acquainted with her, give me an introduction. That is if you have no objection."

"Certainly not."

Fixing his hair, moustache and whiskers, in becoming style, he followed the conductor, who, on reaching the seat where the lady sat said—with a peculiar twinkle in his eye:

"My Wife, Mr.———, of New York, who assues me that he will die before reaching Detroit if he does not form your acquaintance"

The gentleman stammered, stuttered, grew red in the face, faltered out some excuse, and returned to his seat, leaving the lady in company with her husband to enjoy the joke.

Now there is many a fellow whom this would not have "phased" at all. We know one who would have said with perfect nonchalance, "yes, Madame it is true I assure you!" and have taken his seat by her side at once. That man had no nerve. There is no harm in admiring a pretty woman, even if she is married; and we don't know any sensible man who would be offended at being told his wife was pretty.

How to be Unsuccessful.

1st—Consult Tom, Dick and Harry in matters of business, and follow, not the best but the latest advice given.

2d—Instead of marching straight over trouble with a firm front, crouch and let it march over you.

3d—Have no mind of your own, no self-reliance. Be unstable and shifting as the sand on the sea shore.

4th—If you are knocked down to-day, conclude that your place is on your back to-morrow, and the next day and so on.

5th—Because it rains to-day and is dismal, make up your mind that it is going to be rainy and dismal forever.

6th—Never look among your clouds for silver linings, for rifts through the blue sky and the sunshine beyond.

7th—Follow these directions closely, and failure will follow your footsteps like a blood hound; in adversity you will be as worthless as an old rotten sheet in a gale of wind; when fire comes, as it must, you will find all the metal you ever had in you turned to dross; and in the fire, you know, dross never purifies or refines—it only burns.

Why does a coat grow larger when taken out of a carpet bag? Because when you take it out you'll find it increases.

Ease and Luxury.

Lotteries.

The Marysville Appeal says: "What has become of all the schemes which were promulgated but a few months since, and by which every man, woman and child who bought a ticket was to become suddenly and immediately rich? What has become of the San Rafael, Marin County concern? We have got some tickets in that concern. We would like to know if it is defunct, and if so, when did it die? Will the Marin Journal please answer? What has become of the Free Labor Exchange Musical Festival, tickets $1? Will the Bee inform us, or Union or Record? Being religiously irreligiously inclined, we have nothing at stake in that concern, though some of our friends have, therefore we seek for information What has become of the Grand Musical Festival, Calavaras county? Will the Calavaras paper inform us? We have a friend who has two tickets therein, for which he paid coin which should have gone to the support of his family. He wants to know what is the matter with that lotttery. He is interested therein, we are not. Then there is the Brooklyn. What has become of that scheme. We have no interest in it, but our wife has. And the San Juan—well, that has been drawn, and we have the list. Who will inform us regarding the others.

The Cow That Ruined Chicago.

Somebody has presented the editor of the Columbus Journal with the cow which ruined Chicago. The Journal says that accompanying this, is a picture of the identical "Misthress O' Leary all so frisky, that wanted some milk to water the whisky, that milked the cow with the onaisy pins, that kicked the lantern to Smithereens, that set the stable all a fire, that roared and hurrooed higher and higher, that painted hell upon the clouds, that hung above like pallid shrouds, that swallowed up De Koven street, that gobbled everything you'd meet, that lay between there and the lake, that stopped the fire its thirst to slake, that gave the chance to little Phil, thot never was shtanding still, when there was any chance for fightin', who tuk his segar for a lightin' and blew the fire out with powder." [Here the machine broke down.]

A SONG.

Women, wine, birds and flowers
While away our pleasure hours.
Women strew our path with light;
Wine assists the fancy's flight;
Birds, like fairies, float around;
Flowerets, blooming deck the ground.

Oh! how sad would be man's lot,
If on earth all these were not!
Gloom would sit upon each brow
Smiling soft with pleasure now;
Naught could give the soul delight;
All would be eternal night.

Like philosophers of old,
Rigid, formal, canting, cold,
Man would grow in every clime,
Through all ages, through all time!
In the remnant of our race
Naught of grandeur could we trace!

Then, oh! snatch the day of youth.
Time of purity and truth—
Seize the hour for pleasure given,
Nor refuse the gift of Heaven.
Else, when age shall creep o'er thee.
Love will view thy wreck—and flee.

The Milan (Texas) Telegram says: "We have been asked why we stopped publishing the list of marriage licenses issued by the clerk. Because a great-big-stand-up-in-the-mud, out there in the sand hills, said we published his daughter as married when she wasn't, and that he would hit us on the head hard enough to knock our ankles out of joint for it. Is this explanation satisfactory?"

G. HOLLAND.

CITY AND COUNTY HOSPITAL, San Francisco, June 20th, 1871.—I should judge that the I X L Bitters must be a very efficient remedy in Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and similar complaints, being composed of a number of vegetable drugs which are principally used in diseases of that nature, and are of the greatest efficiency in their cure.—F. H. ENGLIS, M. D., Ass't Resident Physician, Apothecary C. & C. Hospital.

STATE ASSAYER'S OFFICE, San Francisco, July 21st, 1871.—I have made a careful examination of your I X L Bitters, and have found them entirely free of deleterious mineral substances.—Yours etc., [illegible] State Assayer.

Beware of Counterfeits! None genuine without the signature of Dr. Henley across the top of each bottle. For sale everywhere.

DR. CHAS. H. TOZER'S
PRIVATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE
N. E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

SYNOPSIS OF SCENERY AND INCIDENTS.

PROLOGUE.—Anteroom at Dufrome's Chateau (new). The night of the 15th of February, 1776. The Banker's private party. An uninvited guest. The forged note. The gambling debt paid.

THE RED POCKET BOOK.

The family jewels. The unknown artist; the banker's bargain. "Any sacrifice but honor." The assassin's work. The Red Pocket Book.

Act I—After storm and Battle. THE GOOD SHIP MINERVA in mid ocean (new). ☞ Introducing mechanical effects never before produced on any stage. ☜ A tale of love: the lady, the man and the sailor; a recipe for courage; a speck upon the sea; a vessel in distress: the recognition; the convict. Fire! Fire! Fire! The sinking ship; a brave heart in trouble, a woman true to the core, the boats and raft; TERRIBLE EXPLOSION! last of the Minerva!

Act II—Coast of Africa (new). The shipwrecked lovers, their hut on the beach; a strange visitor; the Wild Man of the Woods; an unexpected arrival; the lost ones found; the father and child; Maurice the convict; deserted; "his road is not ours;" a brave girl's resolve; the old sailor's threat; the shot. The Caravan. Tableau.

Act III—A Country Chateau (new). Arrival of the Admiral, the proposition. Helene pleads for her first love; the accepted suitor; the wanderer fallen by the wayside; true hospitality knows no distinction: THE DEAD ALIVE; a father sees for the honor of his name; two poor wounded hearts; a brave man's sacrifice; the separation; farewell forever.

Act IV—Kerveguen's mansion; the marriage fete. THE GRAND SALON, illuminated with its two hundred and fifty Wax Tapers; the Bridal Gift; the first gleam of light; the unexpected guest; the odious contract signed; Death the price; the gleam of light bursts into day; the family motto—"Heaven alone can save us;" a startling revelation; the madman.

Act V—Gardens of the Chateau by moonlight (new). The pavilion; the fountain; Faustin and his bottle; "when the wine is in the wits are out;" the miser and his godson; master and dupe; diamond cut diamond; Folbert's desperate game—"life the stake;" the star of love lights the path of danger; the fatal mistake; the dupe the victim; the motto—"Heaven alone can save us." The proof of innocence.

We frequently hear people remark that they would like to purchase a house, if they were able to do so. There are doubtless, in this city thousands in this situation. The San Francisco Co-operating Land and Building Association has entered the field expressly to aid this class of people in acquiring homes. Any person who is able to pay rent can, with the assistance of this Association, in a short time become the possessor of a house. The office is at 305 Montgomery street. Call there and get further particulars. T

Holiday Fare.

Those Who have no family circle where they can keep Christmas and New Year's holidays, can fare sumptuously at Jones' Oyster Palace, next door to the California Theatre. Good Plays and Bad.

The Boston Saturday Evening Gazette, whose opinions on dramatic matters are always sensible, has the following:

We were speaking to a manager the other day about bad plays, when he interrupted us in the midst of a sentence, overflowing with dignified invective and caused a verb, which we were on the point of providing with a nominative, to pine in solitude through all coming time. "My dear fellow," he said placing his hand soothingly on our shoulder and looking at us with an air of considerate pity, "we cannot tell whether a play be good or bad until it has been performed."

"But," we remonstrated, "reading it."

"Reading? Nonsense!" was the retort. "It must be acted. If it succeed it is a good play; if it fail, it is bad."

"My good sir," we urged with a laugh suggestive of our determination not to be taken in by any such loose reasoning as that "bad plays often succeed and good plays often fail."

"No play that succeeds is bad, and no play that fails is good," replied our companion with a languid look, intended to do service for an expression of weary impatience.

"But trashy plays—," we remarked, determined to gain our point.

"Ah! that is another affair," he continued "You mean to say that trashy pieces should not be played. My dear boy the public will have them. It is not our fault that theatrical entertainments are not of a higher standard. We cater to the public taste, and if the public taste demands trash, trash it must have. When it demands plays of merit it will get it. When trash brings crowded houses, and merit is rewarded with empty benches, it does not require any great penetration to decide upon a choice. The man who conducts a theatre for the sake of improving the public taste, has more money than he knows how to spend."

"But the interests of Art!" we urged.

"Dollars!" retorted the manager, shaking his pocket.

"And the foundation of a purer standard."

"Dollars!"

"Intellectual culture!"

"Dollars!"

We confess this was discouraging; but we had one more hope, and we hurled it at him expecting he would writhe and succumb beneath its awful import:

"The Æsthetic!"

"Bosh."

We felt we had no other arrow left. We were vanquished, and stood helpless before our antagonist, who proceeded as follows:

"I repeat, success is the only token of merit. A trashy play may be a bad literary effort, but it may prove an excellent money investment."

"Ay, but where one succeeds, a dozen fail," we meekly suggested.

"True, but when one succeeds, it pays for all the other failures," was the reply.

This was all very discouraging, but we still persevered.

"But why not try the same experiment with good plays? A dozen of these may fail, and one succeed, as well as if they were bad. I mean trashy."

We were weak enough to believe we had him there, and our question was unanswerable. Judge of our utter condition of crush when he replied:

"Well, bring us a good play, and we will try the experiment."

This was a poser. It baffled all logic. Where one good play is written, twenty bad ones see the light—and the public must have novelty. They are not choice of the quality of the amusement offered, provided its seasoning is sufficiently high. There are plays and there are plays! It is a perplexing problem why one bad play should succeed, when an equally bad one fails; or why a good play should fail at all. Public taste is inexplicable. Nothing could be of a lower order of literary merit than "Under The Gaslight," and yet it had an immense success, owing, of course in a great measure to the sensational nature of its railroad scene.

"Under the Willows," was quite as bad, and a little worse, and yet it incontinently failed. "The Streets of New York" is another case in point. It is one of the most absurd of pieces—bombastic in language, improbable in plot, weak in construction, and commonplace in incident, crude, childish and unmitigatedly nonsensical—and yet it has had an extraordinary lease of life. It has, to all appearances, begun a new career of prosperity at the Museum, where it will probably run for some weeks to come. It has few redeeming points, and yet the public are greedy for it. Put it upon the bills of a theatre at any time and it is certain to draw at least a week's good houses. According to the logic of our friend, the manager, "The Streets of New York" is a good piece, because it has proved a success. Well, and why not? The public are pleased; and the manager is pleased. What more is wanted? They are the parties most interested. It takes two to make a bargain, and if both parties are satisfied with the transaction, who else shall have the right to complain? Theaters are not kept open for the critical few, but for the uncritical many. Novelty is constantly demanded, and much that is bad, and little that is good is on hand to supply it. For one piece like "Caste," we have fifty like "The Streets of New York;" but the latter, after the lapse of nearly twenty years, can draw crowded houses, while the former's prosperity has run to its full length. Let us hold the managers blameless. To the public belongs the fault.

Golden Hair.

We often hear of "golden hair," in fact that is the fashionable color now, but all are not aware that human hair is worth its weight in gold. Yet it appears that Felix Pyatt, 424 Kearny street, has such an immense stock of this costly commodity on hand, that he throws it away. The following, which appeared in the Morning Call a short time ago goes to prove this:

Felix Pyatt, for throwing human hair into the street in front of his store, will appear for sentence.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—"Rouge et Noir" will be played at the matinee to-day, and this evening for the last time. Next week Madame Veneta will appear in her impersonation of Lady Macbeth and also in "Deborah," the original of "Leah the Forsaken." Madame Veneta plays the character of Deborah splendidly in German, and as it is one of those characters in which a foreign accent heightens rather than detracts from the effect, will, we are sure, make a success when she plays it in English.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—This house has been crowded every night during the week and large and fashionable audiences have testified their admiration of the beautiful scenery, wonderful stage effects and fine acting in the play of "The Red Pocket-book" by the most liberal applause. The scene of the sinking ship is nightly encored, and if they could have it so the audience would demand its representation three times. This very attractive play will be played at the matinee to-day, this evening, to-morrow evening, and will run for many nights to come.

ALHAMBRA.—This afternoon Mrs. Charles E. De Long and her fair charges, the fair Japanese Princesses, who have come to this country to be educated, will visit the Alhambra and will certainly be delighted with the beautiful music of "La Perichole" and the admirable singing of Kelly, Leon and others engaged in its representation. The same bill will be played to-night and to-morrow night, and on Monday night a considerable change will be made in the programme. Billy Emerson will appear, brighter and more original than ever, after his few weeks of relaxation, and Harry Norman, the tenor, an old-time favorite, will make his re-appearance, having returned from an extended tour in the United States and England.

BELLA UNION—The entertainment prepared for this evening is a capital one. There will be a sparkling first part; this will be followed by an interlude in which Ed. Montague will present his act of "The Crystal Pyramid;" Maggie Knight in new songs; Carrie Armstrong and J. H. Larkin in a new and original song and dance; Carrie Chapman a fancy dance; Miss Josephine a song and dance; Mat Kelly and Tommy Bree, the act of "Ten-Pin Johnny;" Chris Mathews a fancy clog dance, and Eugenia Garretta, a song and dance. The comic pantomime of "The Cobbler and Tailor" will be given, and the performance will conclude with the local extravaganza of "The Phantom Steamer; or, the Mermaid of the Cliff."

THEATRE COMIQUE.—A capital Saturday night's bill has been prepared for this favorite place of amusement. Among other features may be mentioned the clever burnt cork opera of "Oh Hush; or, the Virginny Cupids," with Johnny Thorn in his great character of Cuff. The management announce the engagement of the favorite actress, vocalist and danseuse, Miss Cherry Belle, who will make her first appearance on Monday night.

THE OXFORD.—M'lle Ferrestelle, the female contortionist, performs feats so strange that they must be seen to be believed. Amelia Dean and her band of female minstrels appear in an attractive programme of songs and dances. James Cotton, Charles Moran, Sally Thayer, Carlova and many others whose names appear on our first page will also take part in a varied entertainment. Next Friday the energetic manageress, Miss Amelia Dean, is to be the recipient of a testimonial benefit, when many volunteers will appear.

BRAYTON HALL, OAKLAND.—Calvin B. Mac Donald, the well-known journalist, at present the leading light of the Oakland News, will this evening be the recipient of a complimentary testimonial at Brayton Hall, Oakland. A very fine and varied entertainment will be given. Miss Viola A. Pomeroy, who has since her debut in San Francisco gained much popularity in other parts of the State, will sing; Joaquin Miller, the poet will read one of his own compositions. Charles Warren Stoddard will read an original poem; Miss Regenia Backle, Mrs. L. E Ogleby, George Cawlton, Professor Schraubstadter, Professor Wm. Yaradley, and others, will give a vocal and instrumental olio, and Calvin B. Mac Donald will relate some experiences in the life of a journalist. Brayton Hall will thronged with the intellect and culture of the State.

MAGUIRE'S OPERA HOUSE.—This pioneer temple of the drama will be opened to the public next week for one evening at least. Signor E. Bianchi will receive a complimentary benefit. "Il Trovatore" will be performed with the beneficiary as Manrico, Miss Annie McKenzie as Leonora, and Signora E. Bianchi in the character of Azucena. Signor Luigi Contini, late baritone of the Lyster Opera Troupe in Melbourne, will make his first appearance on this occasion and fill the role of Count di Luna. Maguire's Opera House should be thronged with the music-loving public of San Francisco.

NEW COMPANY FOR THE ALHAMBRA.—The Alhambra's new company will consist in part of the following tolent: Fayette Welch, comedian and end-man, will arrive here on Wednesday. Bob Hart, an Ethiopean comedian of celebrity at the East; J. H. Milburn, a serio comic artist and character delineator, and Harry Stanwood, a good comedian, and said to be the best banjo player in the world, are all under engagement, and will leave New York to-morrow overland for this theatre. Mr. Maguire has not been idle since his arrival at the East.

FOR VIRGINIA CITY.—A really good minstrel company will start on Tuesday from this city and commence a season at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, on Wednesday evening. The troupe consists of S. S. Purdy, M. Ainsley Scott, Fostelle, Frank Jones, Arthur Stanley and Frank Stanwood, with a brass and string band under the leadership of Professor Boam. Mat Leland is agent of the company.

CHARLES WHEATLEIGH. — This talented actor, always a favorite in San Francisco, arrived here last night and will commence an engagement at the California Theatre on Monday week. He has brought with him "John Garth," "Horizon," and "Divorce." J. H. Snyder, associated for some time with Mr. Wheatleigh in management in this city, has come with him on this occasion.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on views (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

W. K. T. AND W. H.—The California Theatre can seat 1,643 people, and has standing room for about 500 more. The Metropolitan Theatre can seat about 1,700, and has standing room for about 500.

—FUNERAL OF W. H. SEDLEY SMITH.—The late W. H. Sedley Smith, whose remains his friends and comrades yesterday sadly laid in the earth, was at the time of his death sixty-five years of age. He was born in Wales, and adopted the profession of the stage in England. The greater part of his professional life was spent in Boston, where he was stage manager of the Museum for twenty years. For the last three years he was stage manager of the California Theatre. The remains of the veteran actor, so highly respected and generally loved by the dramatic profession, were committed to the tomb yesterday—all the members of the California Theatre Company following. The pall-bearers, chosen from among the members of the Company and attaches, were: Mr John McCullough, Mr. Fred. Lyster, Mr. Henry Edwards, Mr. Wm. A. Mestayer, Mr. W. Porter, Mr Fred. Franks, Mr. E. J. Buckley, Mr. E. Leathes, Mr. C. Schultz and Mr. R. J. Preston. Mr. Stebbins delivered a discourse in which he pronounced an eulogy on the general good qualities of the deceased. The body was placed in the receiving-vault. It will be embalmed and sent to Boston.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—"Moll Pitcher" was presented at the Metropolitan Theatre on Monday; on Tuesday "The Bronze Horse;" on Wednesday, Mrs. Williams who made her debut successfully in "Frou Frou," played Juliet and did pretty well, the Sacramento papers say. On the following evening she played Lady Gay Spanker in "London Assurance." On Friday "Ours" was produced. Mrs. W. R. Williams appears in "Frou Frau" at the matinee to-day.

LOS ANGELES.—The Merced Theatre was opened on the first, for a benefit to "The California Minstrels," and Miss Fanny Young appeared in "Statue Blanche."

VIRGINIA CITY NEV.—Professor Fowler has been lecturing, all the week, at Piper's Opera House.

RENO, NEV.—Professor Fowler is to lecture at Dyer's Theatre on the 24th.

EUGENE CITY, OR.—Purdy & Vincent's Minstrels gave the latest entertainment the Eugene City people enjoyed.

SAN JOSE.—The Lewis Brothers gave entertainments of mesmerism, magic and tableaux vivants at the Opera House, on Monday and Tuesday evenings. The Guide and the Mercury speak most highly of the performance.

OMAHA, NEB.—Edwin Forest played at the Academy of Music, on the 4th and 5th, appearing in "King Lear." On the 6th a performance was given for the benefit of the Sisters of Mercy. The "Cricket on the Hearth," and "The Streets of New York," were played with John A. Stevens and Miss Florence Noble in the leading roles. Joe Murphy and "Help" were underlined.

PORTLAND, OR.—G. B. Waldron and troupe are playing a most successful engagement at Oro Fino Theatre, and giving a great variety of plays. On the 9th, the drama of "The Creole" was produced, and "Narcisse" was underlined as in preparation. The first numbers of the Dramatic Chronicle, the programme paper of the Oro Fino Tehatre, have come to hand; it is a bright little sheet.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS

In New York at the Grand Opera House, W. J Florence is playing Obenreizer in "No Thoroughfare"....At Wallack's, a slight change in the cast of "John Garth" was made on Jan 2d, Mr. John. Brougham appearing for the first time in his own drama, in the character of Gregory Deerham, owing to the illness of John Gilbert. "John Garth" still runs...."The Black Crook" draws good houses at Niblo's....The last nights of "Divorce" at the Fifth-avenue Theatre are announced; it was to be followed by Miss Agnes Ethel in "Frou-Frou"....A new drama by W. S. Higgins entitled "Out of the Fire," was produced at Woods Museum, on January 1st, with Susan Denin and J. B. Studley in the leading roles. It is in a prologue and four acts, and may be pronounced one of the most effective of the recent sensational dramas....D. S. Wambold, Birch, Backus and the rest of the San Francisco Minstrels appear in songs, ballads and acts....Ella Wesner is causing a sensation at the Theatre Comique by singing the song which Charles Vivian has made famous —"Ten Thousand Miles Away"...."Julius Cæsar" is still running at Booth's Theatre... "Humpty Dumpty" at the Olympic....William Worrell, the clown, and Siegrist with his trained dogs and little boys are at Nixon's Circus at the Globe Theatre....Geraldine had a fall at the the Union Square Theatre of this city while practicing the trapeze on the morning of the 20th. She fell into the orchestra; cut her lips and bruised her head and body badly....At Tony Pastor's the Hernandez Pantomime Troupe continue to give performances; Mr. Maffit, aerial gymnast, has joined the company ...Bryant's Minstrels have revived "Shoo Fly"....The St. James Theatre, corner of Twenty Eighth street and Broadway, was to be opened on the 8th for a season of three months by James Steele Mackaye.

At the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, the successful military drama of "Not Guilty," with its admirable scenic and spectacular effects, continued to attract large audiences until the 15th inst., when Mr. E. A. Southern commenced an engagement.

The Boston Saturday Evening Gazette, in a notice of the performance at the Howard Athenæum, says: "Miss Jennie Worrell played the banjo for Professor Silvester's act of 'The Happy Old Nig.'" When did Professor Silvester take to burnt cork? We think it was rather unprofessional of him to play "The Happy Old Nig," with Charley Howard playing it in the same theatre.

The Welsh National Eisteddford appeared in concerts at Utica, 1st and 2d; Nellie Llwyvo Lewis, contralto; Mrs. Rachel Jones, soprano; Llwyvo Lewis, baritone; W. Ap. Madoc, tenor; R. C. Williams, bass; Mario Hartley, pianist and harpist; assisted by the Fair Haven Coral Society, John Owen, and the Cambrice Cornet Band.

Strakosch Italian Opera Troupe, Pittsburg, Jan. 5 and 6; Cincinnati, 8th; St. Louis, 15th; Louisville, 22d; Cincinnati, 29th; Columbus, Feb. 5 and 6th; thence to Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Toledo, Buffalo, Albany, and Boston, to re-open 19th; New York, March 4, until April 20th, when Nilsson will return to Europe.

During the fall of 1872 Henry Jarrett, now confidential agent of Miss Nilsson, will bring to this country Pauline Lucca, whose married name is Baroness Von Raden, and Arabella Goddard, the pianist, who is the wife of Mr. Davidson, editor of a London musical journal.

Yankee Locke was to commence an engagement at the Park Theatre, Brooklyn, Long Island, Jan. 8th, and produce for the first time a drama written for him by Fred Marsden, and entitled "Trampe; or, High, Low, Jack," founded on W. H. Thomas's novel of the "Bushranger's," a tale of Australian Life."

The professional sufferers by the Chicago fire have testified their appreciation of T. Charles Howard's efforts to expose the Frauds in connection with the professional relief fund by presenting him on Christmas morning, at the Globe Theatre, in that city, with a substantial testimonial consisting of a medal and chain valued at $80, the names of the donors including all the sufferers who were in Chicago at the time of the calamity.

Walter Bray, while performing at New Orleans on Dec. 16th, was presented with a gold watch and chain, with a gold medal attached, said to be valued at $265. The watch bore the following inscription: "Presented to Walter Bray by John Carroll, stage manager of the Olympic Varieties."

Judge Dowling's real estate venture in the purchase of the N. Y. Theatre Comique property has not thus far proved remunerative. Though Josh Hart is popular with a certain class, his popularity fails to draw remunerative audiences to the Theatre Comique.

The Rand Sisters—Rose and Olivia—with a company under C. B. Bishop, opened at Richmond on the 1st.

John Collins returned to his home in Philadelphia after closing December 23d at New Orleans.

Olive Logan still travels with "Nice Young Men," notwithstanding she is married. She is cruising westerly.

The Opera House at Lynn, Mass., has been leased to a carpet dealer, but is not yet in his possession. A thousand dollars' worth of scenery has been added to Music Hall there, and a $1 200 act drop is to be painted.

The receipts of the Strakosch Italian Opera Company, with Nilsson as prima donna, for forty-one nights and matinees in New York and Brooklyn, were $169,9 7 86.

Avery Smith, who has accumulated a monster fortune in the circus business, and is numbered among the wealthiest millionaires of the country, is about retiring from the business, and proposes to sell all his effects from a length of seats to a ring-tailed monkey.

Miss Matilda Heron received a matinee benefit at Niblo's Garden, on Friday, January 19th, tendered her by by a committee of dramatic artists and managers. The receipts were over $3000.

Shiel Barry, who was to have commenced at Wood's Museum, Jan. 8th, did not arrive from England, all the steamers being delayed far beyond their usual time.

Miss Matilda Phillipps, daughter of Adelaide, has appeared with great success at the town of Cividale, Italy. She took the character of Azucena. The Italians praise her method and her voice, which, they say, reminds them of Alboni's. Miss Phillipps had been in Milan only four days when an engagement was offered her.

Lucca will be the next grand operatic star after Nilsson. Her best parts are Valentine in "The Huguenots," and Selaika in "L'Africaine."

Joe Murphy was to commence an engagement at Leavenworth on Jan. 15th.

The Pittsburgh Leader mentions in high terms of praise, James Collins and Martha Wren, lately performing at the Varieties Theatre in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Bandmann and Mr. William Creswick were at Trimble's Opera House, Albany, up to the 6th.

Robert McWade is at the Fifth-avenue Opera House, Pittsburgh.

Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau played in Houston, Texas, on December 26th.

John E. Owens is at the New Orleans Varieties Theatre.

Bonfanti at the New National Theatre, Washington.

M'lle Nilsson will return to Europe worth $400,000—half of which she made in this country. It cannot be said of her that she took it all away, for she has proved her admiration of America by investing nearly all her American profits here.

"The Streets of New York," with Frank Mayo in the part of Badger, was to follow the English Opera at the Boston Theatre.

The Globe Theatre, Boston, produced "Eileen Oge" with one hundred and fifty persons behind the foot-lights. In the hay-making scene a ton of hay was used.

Hackett, the actor, was a baron. In the London Court Journal of Oct. 12th, 1839, appears the following: "Died at New Orleans, U. S., on the 22d of Aug. last, of yellow fever, Baron Hackett, of Hackett's Town, a native of Holland, whose ancestor emigrated from Ireland. He was an old aide-de-camp to the Prince of Orange, and served with distinction in the French army, particularly at the battle of Waterloo and the siege of Antwerp. The Baron of Hackett's Town was originally one of the Irish peerages that have become dormant, and the dignity devolves upon the cousin-german of the late Baron, Mr. Hackett, the American comedian, at present in London."

The Boston Saturday Evening Gazette, speaking of the performance of London Assurance, at the Globe, says:

Mr. J. T. Raymond appeared as Mark Meddle, and at once established himself in the high esteem of the audience. His acting of the part was creditable to him in many respects, and in none more than in his total forgetfulness of all stage traditions connected with it, and in his daring to strike out into an interpretation for himself. It was fresh, original, and brilliant, thoroughly humorous, yet in general, wise exaggerated, and entirely free from that self-consciousness with which it is too often performed. Mr. Raymond made no effort to force the part into undue prominence, and the consequence was that he gave a consistent, natural, and spirited piece of acting, that was at once clever and artistic. There can be no doubt of his success, or the favorable position he is destined to fill in the estimation of the public.

The same paper is after him with a sharp pen for gagging in "The School for Scandal." It says:

Mr. Raymond played Crabtree with great zest and humor; so well, indeed, that it pained us he should have marred it by the interpolation of so many ill-timed "gags," some of which, though harmless in themselves, seemed intolerably coarse by the side of Sheridan's refined and sparkling wit.

Cure him of that, oh! gentle critic of the Gazette, and then send him back to California, where we shall all be glad to see him again.

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

Our news from London is up to Dec. 14th. The Drury Lane pantomime, announced for 26th, was to be "Tom Thumb; or, Harlequin, King Aathur and the Knights of the Round Table," by E. L. Blanchard; the ballets arranged and the panto mime produced by John Cormack, under supervision of F. B. Chatterton. Miss Neilson, the late heroine of "Rebecca," was to take her benefit 16th as Rosalind in "As You Like It," and in the fourth act of "The Lady of Lyons."..... The Haymarket, "Fish Out of Water" and "Pygmalion and Galatea" continued....At the Princess's, "Little Dicky Dilver with his Stick of Silver" was to be the pantomime.....Adelphi, "Notre Dame" continued.....Lyceum, "Bells" and "Pickwick," as before.. ...Olympic, "Woman in White" and "Boot on the Right Leg."....Strand—John A. Clarke closed 16th. "Arion, or the Story of a Lyre," by F. C. Burnand, to be the Christmas piece.....At the Prince of Wales, "Caste;" "Queen's, "Tempest." .....Concert Garden was to produce "Bluebeard" for Christmas, by H. J. Byron.....At the Gaiety the Boucicaults were to close 16th, when old burlesques were to be run the following week. .....At the Vaudeville, "Camaraderman and the Fair Badoura" continued.....Globe, "Partners for Life" and farces as before.....Sadler's Wells, for 23d, pantomime of "Old Mother Hubbard and her Wonderful Dog, Mother Shipton and her Comical Cat, Jack and Gill, and the extraordinary adventures of Master Tommy Tucker and Little Miss Moffet." Illustrated by Dyk Wynkyn.....At the Surrey, for 23d pantomime of "The King of the Peacocks; or, Harlequin Tom Tiddler's Ground and the Queen Barley Sugar."....At the Royal Court, "Coals of Fire" and fairies as before..... Royal Alfred, miscellaneous pieces; Grecian, the pantomime of "Zig-Zag;" at the Brittania, miscellaneous; at Astley's, the pantomime of "Lady Goldiva." Standard, pantomime; at the East London, pantomime of "Little Bo-Peep;" Alhambra, the pantomime of "Happy-go-Lucky," in which 200 performers, five principal dancers, and a double set of pantomimists were to appear.

Mrs. Walter Montgomery advertises to star in the characters of Juliet, Lady Macbeth, Hecate, Rosaland, Julia (in "The Hunchback"), Pauline (in "The Lady of Lyons"), and Meg Merriles. The Birmingham Daily Gazette says in a notice of her readings: "The Forest of Arden scene from 'As You Like It,' followed with the Cuckoo Song, which was warbled with such fine taste and expression that it met with a unanimous encore." People may be curious to see Mrs. Walter Montgomery but we cannot imagine her ever becoming a "popular" actress, even if she has talent.

Mr. Burnard has written a new burlesque for the Strand Theatre, London, called "Arion and the Dolphins."

A few theatres in Paris allow their drop scenes to be covered with advertisements, and introduce into the extravaganzas allusions to the establishments which patronize them. The dresses worn by the actresses are now described in an advertisement form in the journals, as well as the addresses of the makers of them.

M. Sardou's "Le Roi Carotte" is soon to be brought out in Paris in magnificent style, $80,000 having been expended in scenery and costumes.

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco. HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in the celebrated institutions, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST reached in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and success treatment and moderate charges to all."

Very Pleasant.

The Oakland Transcript describes a highway robbery in the following pleasing manner:

A resident of this city was interviewed last Tuesday night on Fourteenth street, as regards his "available means." He came to the conclusion to part with fourteen dollars, all he had, as the gentleman was very pressing in his "immediate wants." There is no doubt in our mind that the receiver intends to publish a biography of the charitably disposed individual. Our informant says he never gave so much money to a stranger before, but thinks he can identify him after the short acquaintance he has had with him.

Oakland highwaymen are nice gentlemen; Oakland hoodlums swear classical oaths and show the advantages of a classical education, and there is a literary air about the burglars and pickpockets; as to the drunks, they are generally classical scholars and members of the churches. Therefore, the papers speak politely of the criminal classes.

A Trade.

We find the following paragraphs in juxtaposition in an exchange:

The San Francisco Pioneer is edited by Emily Pitts Stevens.

The Hindoos have a female lecturer named Sree Rungamba Gara.

If the Hindoos are willing, we'll swap off Emily Pitts Stevens for Sree Rungamba Gara or throw poker dice who shall have the two.

Won't Internationalize.

The Communist refugees in London have started a paper called the Qui Vive. It declares the conversion of the English workingmen to Internationalism to be hopeless

The champion temperance man lives in Danbury, Conn. He has signed the pledge 83 times.

We frequently hear people remark that they would like to purchase a house, if they were able to do so. There are doubtless, in this city thousands in this situation. The San Francisco Co-operating Land and Building Association has entered the field expressly to aid this class of people in acquiring homes. Any person who is able to pay rent can, with the assistance of this Association, in a short time become the posessor of a house. The office is at 305 Montgomery street. Call there and get further particulars. T

Holiday Fare.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the 'Saddle Rock" is known everywhere. Q

The Nation of Shopkeepers.

[AS VIEWED THROUGH PARISIAN SPECTACLES.]

Nation curious! Cookery primitive and medicinal. I have to-day taste the pie of rhubarb, with fear of result happily not verified. I have also to a plate of the plum pudding, at one penny, in a cookshop. I have notice that the plum is LOT much found in this delicacy Britannic. The apple-dumpudding I have digest with difficulty after the others. It is well to have oply the one at the time.

***

I have visit last night the Argill Room, where there is plenty of dance, which I am told is of the most fashionable. Here the master of ceremony is decorated with the star. I am told that he is a lord excentric—paid an enormous sum so to act. Here I have round the Englishman to act in a manner strange, but characteristic. By the top part he shall be solemn as the mute, while the legs are doing what shall seem a can-can diabolical. It is thus he is amused but there remains the reflection always, is it that the head knows nothing of what shall occur at the other extremity?

***

In the enverons of London you shall find cabarets of elegance, but in a fashion local, denoting strange mania of taste. There are the tea-gardens where can only be taken the teas. I am assure there is also the coffee-garden. Perhaps there is also the garden-chocolat, but I have not receive information of it.

***

On a Sunday, in London, they ring the bell of the church. On a week-day it is not legal to ring the bell of the theatre, or of the dustman, or of the muffin, because the bell is what is call a nuisance. The bell of church on the Sunday is no nuisance, the more if you live to him quite opposite.

It Won't Do!

The following article, which is going the rounds of the press, won't do to publish in a juvenile work, for the purpose of teaching little boys to keep their faces clean. The oftener we see it the more convinced we are that it won't do!

A small child in Illinois climbed up upon a chair to wipe its face on a hanging towel. The chair slipped, and the child catching in the towel, was hanged by the neck and died.

If that child had been climbing up to steal a jam, it would have been all right, but he wasn't. He was a nice clean little child and wanted to wipe his face, and got hanged. Cleanliness was the cause of his death. He was an infant martyr. It is a comfort to reflect that he is a cherub now, and keeps his feathers clean without running any risk.

Reform Movements.

The young ladies of Waterville, Me., have organized an "Anti-Tobacco-Society," and will not tolerate the attentions of any young man who uses tobacco. As an offset, the young men have formed the "Young Men's Anti-Corset Association;" the members of which are pledged "To Have Nothing To Do With Anything That Wears Corsets." Revenge is sweet.

As Usual.

A hermit died in Connecticut the other day, who, for thirty years, had lived in a hole which he dug in the side of a hill. There was a woman at the bottom of it—we don't mean at the bottom of the hole, but of the man's strange conduct.

A Baltimore collector goes around in a wagon labeled: "Collector of bad debts." Poople don't think it improves their business to have his wagon standing before their doors too long.

Sharp Retort.

Mr. J. E. Murdoch played an engagement at a prominent theatre in a prominent Atlantic city not many years since, and when "Money" was put up he took the part of Lady Franklin from the actress who had played it for many years (Mrs. Germon) and cast it to a younger woman. Mrs. Germon naturally remonstrated with the stage-manager, but to no purpose. Finally she went to Mr Murdoch, who, after an extended argument, somewhat testily said: "Well to tell the truth, Mrs. Germon, Lady Franklin is not an old woman!" The irate actress scornfully proceeded to leave the presence of Mr. Murdoch, which she did with this parting shot: "Neither is Alfred Evelyn an old man."

A Surprise Party.

A Danbury, Conn., man saw his daughter into the cars, and passed round to her window for a parting look at her. While he was passing out, the daughter left her seat to speak to a friend, and at the same time a prim-looking lady who occupied the seat with her moved up to the open window. Unaware of the important change inside, our venerable friend hastily put his face up to the window and hurriedly exclaimed: "One more kiss, sweet pet!" In another instant he got a punch in the face from the point of a blue cotton umbrella, followed by the passionate injunction, "scat, you gray-headed wretch!" And he scattered!

Republicans in England.

The "Republicans" in England have made a beginning by burning a school-house at Knightsbridge. Schools and churches are as obnoxious to the English Republicans as the throne itself. The Anglophobiac Alta will wish them success in their good work, of course.

An Ambitious Eagle.

An eagle, to be true to the traditions of his species, pounced upon a pig at Tipton, Iowa, the other day, with the intention of carrying the porker to his eyrie. The pig couldn't see it, however, and incontinently slew the eagle. The bird measured seven feet across its wings.

The Hoodlums.

The "King of the Hoodlums," having been sent to jail, it is rumored that the hoodlums are about to follow the example of the French, declare a Republic and elect a President.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is worth much as a man. The greatest posts in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street above the Alhambra. AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

There will be crowding, and pushing and squeezing to get into the Alhambra Theatre to night, for Billy Emerson, the most popular of minstrels, makes his reappearance. This is enough; but we may as well mention that Harry Norman, the tenor and old California favorite, will make his appearance on this occasion, and that after a fine first part, and varied interlude, in which Billy Emerson the Reynolds Brothers, Miss Fanny Gibson, and Harry Norman will appear; and Kelly and Leon will perform an operatic burlesque. The performance will conclude with Kelly and Leon's burlesque entitled "Frow Frow," with Leon as Gilberte, Billy Emerson as Baron de Cambri, and Edwin Kelly as Henry Bartorys. Fun enough for one evening. The present week is the last of the engagement of Kelly and Leon's minstrels, so the public had better see all they can of them while they remain.

California Theatre.

To-night "Macbeth" will be performed with Madame Mathilde Veneta, the German tragedienne, as Lady Macbeth, and John McCullough as the Thane. To-morrow evening "Deborah" will be presented with Madame Veneta in the title role, in which she made a great success in German. Charles Wheatleigh will commence an engagement on Monday next, opening in "John Garth."

Metropolitan Theatre.

"The Red Pockebook" is running splendidly, but those who have not yet seen it should not put off doing so too long, as T. E. Jackson and Miss Josie Langley are soon to appear in new plays and "The Red Pocketbook" may be suddenly withdrawn to make way for them. The scene of the sinking ship is the theme of general admiration, and people go again and again to see it.

Maguire's Opera House.

It is so long since we have had any Italian Opera that our music-loving public will be delighted with the prospect of even one night. The box-office for the sale of tickets for Wednesday evening, when "Il Trovatore" will be performed for the benefit of Signor Bianchi, was opened this morning. If the public give sufficient encouragement, we think there is no reason why we should not have two or three extra nights. At any rate, Signor Bianchi is sure of a crowded house on Wednesday, as half the dress circle seats had been secured at the time we went to press.

Bella Union.

The man who cannot enjoy the varied and lively entertainment given at this theatre must be a cynic. The comic pantomime of "The Cobbler and Tailor," in which Samwelle, Montague, Minnie Fillmore, Tommy Bree, Maggie Brewer and May Leroy appear, is wonderfully funny and draws shouts of laughter from the audience. Carrie Armstrong and J. H. Larkin appear in another new Dutch song and dance; Maggie Knight in an eccentric Chinese act, and Carrie Chapman in a song and dance, and as Mehitable in the afterpiece, in which she is very amusing. A number of other acts, which are enumerated on our first page, make up a capital entertainment.

The Oxford.

Forrestelle, the wonderful female contortionist, Carlova, the Dutch Leon, Amelia Dean, Sally Thayer, the popular comic vocalist, Lizzie Harmon and a large company comprising many popular artists will appear in a varied programme this evening.

Theatre Comique.

To-night Miss Cherry Belle, actres, vocalist, danseuse and magician, will make her first appearance in San Francisco, having returned from a most successful engagement in Oregon. A feature in the programme to-night will be tableaux vivants, in which the ladies of the company will appear.

The Mac Donald Testimonial.

The literary and musical testimonial tendered to Calvin B. Mac Donald, editor of the Oakland News, at Brayton Hall, Oakland, on Saturday evening, was a great success. The musical portion was well rendered by the University Quartette, Mrs. Ogilby and Viola A. Pomeroy. Charles Warren Stoddard and Joaquin Miller read selections from their own poems, and at the close, the Chronicle says the beneficiary "made a happy acknowledgment." We should think so. There were about a thousand persons present—the literary and social elite of Oakland—and if the eloquent "Thunderer" couldn't make some happy remarks on that occasion, we don't know when he could. Mr. Mac Donald was, prior to accepting his present position, for over two years editorially connected with this journal, and we are more than pleased at his being the recipient of such deserved appreciation at the hands of the Oaklanders, and his literary friends.

Carl Formes.

We announced some months ago that Carl Formes intended to come to San Francisco with a German Opera Troupe. A letter just received from him states that he will not be able to come before April.

Two Bricks to Begin With.

In a city in Western New York, renowned for its crowded churches on Sundays, there was one called by way of eminence, the brick church. It was the first church built of brick in the city. Its congregation had increased so that the church could not well accommodate the crowd. It was old-fashioned and behind the times. At length it was resolved to build a new church. Meeting after meeting was held, but the prospects of a new church grew more and more discouraging, until the most hopeful grew disheartened and were ready to give it up. One morning after a discouraging meeting had been held, the pastor's door-bell rang very early. On opening the door, the servant found a little boy who inquired for Dr. S.——. The servant told him he had not come down, and demanded what he wanted. "I want to see Dr. S——," answered the boy. Presently Dr. S—— came to the door, and found a small boy, with a wheel-barrow three times as large as himself, holding two bricks, which he said he "brought to build the new church with!"

The Doctor put on his hat, and walked out into the street, saying to every man he met: "The church will be built; the first load of bricks is on the ground." And it was built—a large, and beautiful church. Who shall despise the day of small things?

Sirenes at the Point.

The Saucelito Herald, of the 13th, says: The Government has appropriated ten thousand dollars for the construction of two sirenes, not whistles, as fog alarms at the Point, and also for the construction of a road to the Light House. The distance between the two places is about 1,500 feet in an air line. A road has been graded along the rough sides of the point, and in many places bridges have been thrown across the ravines. The slide, which occurred, pushed out the end of one of these bridges and lodged it low down, so that it stands in a deep incline. The foundation does not appear to be injured. The whole structure can be replaced in one week by two men. The damage is summed up in the destruction of about seventy-five feet of pipe, laid to carry water to the Point. As the road now stands it affords all necessary accommodations as a foot trail. The works at the Point are all prepared for the reception of the machinery. When completed it is said that the shrill piercing sound of the sirenes can be heard at a distance of twenty-five miles.

Death of a Critic!

One of the oldest and ablest musical critics and publisher and proprietor of the Weekly Review, New York, Theodore Hagen, is dead. The disease was that old complaint of persons in the journalistic profession, a heart complaint; and although Mr. Hagen had not yet reached his forty-second year, yet a life of the most stirring kind made fearful inroads upon his constitution. He came to New York over twenty years ago from Germany, and has occupied ever since a prominent position as an artist, manager, and musical critic.

Golden Hair.

We often hear of "golden hair," in fact that is the fashionable color now, but all are not aware that human hair is worth its weight in gold. Yet it appears that Felix Pyatt, 424 Kearny street, has such an immense stock of this costly commodity on hand, that he throws it away. The following, which appeared in the Morning Call a short time ago goes to prove this:

Felix Pyatt, for throwing human hair into the street in front of his store, will appear for sentence.

OUR PORTION.

There is dew for the flow'ret,
And honey for the bee;
And bowers for the wild bird,
And love for you and me!

There are tears for the many,
And pleasures for the few;
But let the world pass on, dear,
There's love for me and you!

There is Care that will not leave us,
And Pain that will not flee;
But on our hearts, unaltered,
Sits Love, 'tween you and me!

Our love, it ne'er was reckoned,
Yet good it is and true;
It's half the world to me, dear,
It's all the world to you!

JUDGE NOT IN HASTE.

Ne'er be hasty in your judgment—
Never foremost to extend
Evil mention of a neighbor,
Or of one you've called a friend!
Of two reasons for an action,
Choose the better—not the worst;
Never let the meaner motive
Be the one you urge the first.

Judge not with detracting spirit,
Speak not with disdainful tongue;
Nor, with hard and hasty feeling,
Do one human creature wrong!
Words there are that, sharp as winter,
Strip the little left to cheer—
Oh, be yours the kinder mission,
Prone to soothe, not cause, a tear!

Rough on Revels.

[Cincinnati Commercial Washington Letter.]

I heard a good story told of the colored ex-Senator from Mississippi, the other day. Revels, while in the Senate, was petted somewhat by the New England people, and, I fear, somewhat spoiled, for he had not been in the Senate a fortnight before he had adopted the practice of Mr. Sumner, of never receiving any cards while the Senate was in session. Every other Senator, if he gets a card from a person, goes out into the hall to see him. Mr. Sumner instructed the doorkeepers never to bring him a card during the sessions of the Senate, and Mr. Revels followed his practice and became, of course, a little unpopular. But that is nothing to the purpose. Revels received many invitations from New England to lecture. Of course he couldn't make a decent lecture, and he was no speaker, but he was a colored brother and a Senator, and they made the most of him. He was, as all know, in the Senate but a short time, yet he made it pay. He was rarely in the city, and accepted all the invitations to lecture that came to him. While being made the most of in Massachusetts by the old abolition element, he frequently heard the name of Mr. Garrison. He finally asked some of his newly-made friends who "this man Garrison" was. They answered in the greatest astonishment:

"Why, don't you know William Lloyd Garrison, the great Abolitionist?"

"No," he replied, "I don't think I know him. Where is he from?"

"Why, he lives here, in Massachusetts?"

"Oh, I don't mean that," replied the great Senator; "I mean, where was he a slave?"

I believe the answer to this question was never given.

Effects of the Cholera in Russia.

One of the most peculiar and melancholy phases which the ravages of the cholera have developed among the people of inner Russia is the tendency of poor, ignorant and uncultivated peasants to resort to heathenish and superstitious customs to protect them from the epidemic. The most sickening horrors are related of them. Their priests, too, encourage them in these rites, and in almost every case extort rewards for their services in the artifices indulged in. Christian and Jew alike are sunk in the degradation, and while the disease is carrying off its victims by the scores, barbarous scenes are being enacted among the dying and dead, and in the graveyards as well as in the houses of the unfortunate sufferers. The further east, says a correspondent, that one travels, the most prevalent he finds scenes of this character. Numbers have given up the Russian orthodox belief and embraced Mohammedanism, in the belief, possibly, that it may produce some change for the better, but probably owing to the activity of Mohammedan propagandists, who work with might and main for converts. Be this as it may, one thing is certain, that the ravages of the cholera in Russia have had the effect of developing those heathenish practices to which we have thus briefly referred.

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

A PUMP ADVENTURE.

A Little Boy who will Never Lick Pump-Handles any More.

[From the New Albany Ledger.]

This morning, a little son of Mr. John Koch, on State street, met with an accident which should be a warning to all boys in the future. It seems that the little fellow went to the pump at the market place, and very foolishly touched his tongue to the iron handle, to ascertain, we presume, if it was cold. Of course the result was not only fearfully, but extremely painful. The tongue, being very moist and warm, and iron being a good conductor of heat, the moisture and heat were immediately withdrawn from the latter by the cold handle, and it froze tight. The little fellow endeavored to withdraw his tongue, but could not. Several gentlemen went to his rescue, but it required the most careful handling to loosen the boy's organ of taste from the iron. They ejected saliva upon the handle, and rubbed it with their hands fully five minutes before they succeeded, and then a piece of the skin of tongue, about the size of a nickel, was left on the handle, leaving the surface of the tongue where it had come in contact with the handle as white as though it had been seared with a red-hot iron. During the time the boy was fast he gave vent to his excruciating agony in loud and continuous screams.

PRIVATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE

N.E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scene of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

TUESDAY.....JANUARY 23, 187

Death of Colonel B. F. Washington.

At 9 o'clock last evening a prominent citizen and honest man passed away from our midst while yet in the prime of life. Col. B. F. Washington came to California in 1849; was elected Recorder of Sacramento in 1850, and Mayor in 1852. He was subsequently editor of the Placer Times, and Transcript in this city for a number of years; was Collector of this Port from 1856 to 1860, and held the position of editor of the Examiner at the time of his death. His last official capacity was that of President of the Tide Land Commission under the Haight administration. Colonel Washington was a vigorous and forcible writer, and as his record in life was a straight-forward, honest one, so in his writings he said what he thought, honestly and fearlessly. In every capacity he has proven able and courteous, and no breath of slander can tarnish his integrity.

Colonel Washington's disease was the rheumatic gout, which attacked his brain, and caused his death. His funeral will take place at 2 o'clock P. M. to-morrow from his late residence, 933 Sacramento street, near Powell.

Curious Name.

The Hartford Travelers' Journal says:

There is a new secret organization in this city called "The Society of Shells," whose membership is a very large one, and many of our influential and prominent citizens are said to be connected with it. Its objects are to dispense charity and the good things of this life.

This is a very curious name for a charitable association. We shall hear of "The Benevolent Oysters" and "The Charitable Clams" next. What is there charitable about a shell? Any one would suspect "The Society of Shells" of being actuated by s(h)ell-fish motives.

We frequently hear people remark that they would like to purchase a house, if they were able to do so. There are doubtless, in this city thousands in this situation. The San Francisco Co-operating Land and Building Association has entered the field expressly to aid this class of people in acquiring homes. Any person who is able to pay rent can, with the assistance of this Association, in a short time become the possessor of a house. The office is at 305 Montgomery street. Call there and get further particulars. T

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Carville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere. Q

Why Women Wed.

Some close observer of our social relations having looked about his married female acquaintances, ventures to give the following list, with an attempt to indicate the reasons which influence too many to marry.

Number one has married for a home. She got tired of working in a factory, or teaching school; she thought married life on earth was but moonlight walks, buggy rides, new bonnets, and nothing to do.

Well, she got tired of her home, whether or not she got tired of the incumbrances this deponent does not positively know.

Number two married because she had seven young sisters, and her papa with a narrow income. She consulted the interests of her family. Perhaps she would have better have consulted her own interests by taking in washing, or going out by the day to work.

Number three married because Mrs. sounded better than Miss. She was twenty-nine years and eleven months old, and another month would have transformed her into an old maid. Think how awful that would have been.

Number four married because she wanted somebody to pay her bills. Her husband married for precisely the same reason; so they are lamenting at leisure.

Number five married because Fanny White had a nice husband, and she wasn't going to be left behind. Pity if she couldn't get married as well as other folks.

Number six married because she was poor and wanted riches. She never counted on all other things that were inseparable from those riches.

Number seven married because she would like to travel. But Number seven changed her mind afterward, and all the traveling she has done has been between the well and back-kitchen door.

Number eight married out of spite, because her first love had taken to himself a second love. This piece of retaliation might have done her good at the time, but in the long run, number eight found it did not pay,

Number nine married because she loved her husband with all her heart and soul. And, she loves him still. And will probably continue to love him and is the happiest wife in the world—so she says.

We have the right motive at last—one which, when sanctified by desire and affection is above all others.

What Would You Say?

A French dramaatic author was reading to a nice little actress, a part which she had to play in one of his pieces,

"Do pay attention, my dear," cried the nervous author, "You must throw yourself into the situation. You are in a scene with the viscount when the door suddenly opens. It is Hector. You cry "Ah!"

"I understand very well. Ah!"

"No, no, that won't do. See here. Suppose that I am your lover, we are together. Your husband comes in. What would you say."

"I know. I'd tell him to get out."

Idiot!

Muffington, after reading the following paragraph in a daily paper:

"Four people meet a violent death every day in New York."

Asked: "Who are they?"

Tyrannical Trades Unions.

The working-men howl at the capitalists who they say oppress them; but when they have the power are more tyrannical than the most bloated capitalist that ever breathed. Here is a letter received last week by an employer in this city:

SAN FRANCISCO Jan 18th 1871

MR BLAKE Wee the undersign committee have sworn that you shall not have an apprentice boy to lern the Tailoring Trade Wee shall give you till Saturday to discharge him if you dont something severe will happen you can take this for good or bad

The Washington Critic has the following sensible remarks on the action of mechanic's unions to which is owing in a great measure the existence of such large number of worthless, idle boys in this city:

The refusal of mechanics' unions to reconsider their unreasonable and inhuman restriction, whereby their own sons are denied the opportunity of learning the trades of their fathers, is one of the mysteries of the age. We have before alluded to this; for we feel that the prosperity of the country the interest of humanity, and the welfare of coming generations, all demand that the shutting out of boys from learning the trades ought to cease, so they may be trained to become good workmen, and be able to learn an honorable mode of living.

Wants to be an Angel!

The Umpqua Ensign, Roseburgh, Oregon, which has just reappeared after suspending publication for some months has the following:

There is a calf near Oakland, in this county, owned by Mr. Aaron Harvey, that sports a nice little pair of wings. These wings crop out just behind the shoulders, are about the size of turkey wings and very much resemble a picked turkey wing, but are covered with hair. It is important we suppose to say that this strange bird-calf was born on the night that Susan B. Anthony lectured in Oakland, whether or not the "elevating" process reaches quadrupeds we cannot say.

A Happy Family.

A Hartford girl knocked her mother down with a rolling pin, and in turn was choked by her father, until her tongue hung out of her mouth. In a short time mother and daughter recovered, and pitched into the old gentleman with rolling pin and table forks, nearly ruining his arm with the latter. The daughter then threw all the dishes out of the window, and raised particular Jerusalem.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 37 Bush street above the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of epicures.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

A tremendous audience greeted Billy Emerson on his making his reappearance last night. Every inch of room was occupied; and the dress-circle was radiant with pretty and fashionably-dressed ladies. On making his appearance, Billy received a perfect ovation, and there were loud calls for a speech. The minstrels did a little bit of singing while the overture was being played "Willie, we have missed You," which was received with renewed applause. Harry Norman's fine clear voice was heard to advantage in "Called by the Angels," in the first part, and in "Nobody's Darling," in the interlude; he was encored on both occasions. Emerson surpassed himself in the first part, keeping the audience in a continual roar of laughter. Referring to his trip to the East, he said: "I saw Charley Howard," this brought forth loud applause showing that the San Francisco public do not forget old favorites when they leave. In the interlude Emerson first appeared in an ultra-fashionable costume, and sang "The Grecian Bend," then, in another dress as The German Sausage Boy, made another change "Walking Down Broadway" then, and sang a new and original song which was exquisitely comical "Don't give The Name a bad Place!" and was even then not let off the stage, until he sang "Seven Out." Kelly and Leon were wonderfully funny in their burlesque operetta entitled "Lischen and Fritchen" concluding with the side-splitting cat duet. The Reynolds Brothers gained three encores for their grotesque song and dance "The Gens-d-Armes;" and Miss Fanny Gibson sang "Il Balen," in her usual pleasing style. This feast of mirth and music of which we have only given a mere sketch, concluded with a shockingly ludicrous burlesque, "Frow Frow," in which Leon tore all the sentiment of the play to pieces, and made the audience laugh immoderately. No description can do this last named performance justice; it must be seen. The same bill will be played to-night.

Metropolitan Theatre.

"The Red Pocketbook" continues to crowd this house nightly. The tremendous leap of Hashish Ali, the Arab boy of Pyland's equestrian troupe in the character of the wild man excites the greatest astonishment. The caravan scene is very effective. The music for this scene as well as for the whole play is original, having been written expressly for it by J. H. Dorhmann, the leader of the orchestra. The English horn solo by Mr. Mundwyler is generally admired. "The Red Pocketbook" will be played till further notice.

California Theatre.

Last night Madame Mathilde Veneta, the German tragedienne, made her third appearance in the character of Lady Macbeth. We have already spoken of Madame Veneta's acting in this role and of the manner in which the other parts are played. To-night the play of "Deborah," the original of "Leah, the Forsaken" will be presented with Madame Veneta in the title role. All who visit the California Theatre this evening will see a powerful and artistic performance of this character.

Maguire's Opera House.

So many seats are already taken that it is certain that there will be a large and brilliant assemblage to-morrow night, when Signor Bianchi will take his benefit, and the ever popular opera of "Il Trovatore," will be produced with the excellent cast published on our first page. The box-office is open for the sale of tickets to day, and those who have not done so should secure seats.

Bella Union.

A great programme is presented at this popular place of resort. It consists of a first part of popular songs, amusing witticisms and lively walk-around, an interlude of songs, dances, gymnastic feats, character acts and comic pantomime, and a musical extravaganza conclude the evening's amusement.

The Oxford.

An entertainment consisting of popular songs, amusing jokes, laughable negro acts and feats of contortion, is given at this house nightly and the variety offered is such that all tastes must be pleased.

Theatre Comique.

After a capital first part, an interlude of feats of magic, the Ethiopian opera of "Oh! Hush; or, the Virginny Cupids;" the act of "Weary Travelers" and many others and a number of attractive tableaux vivants are presented. Miss Cherry Belle and Annie Lemar were well received on their first appearance last evening.

Extra "Red Pocket-Book" Matinee.

There will be a matinee performance of the "Red Pocket-Book" at the Metropolitan Theatre to-morrow. This will give ladies and children living at a distance who do not like to attend the theatre in the evening, an excellent opportunity to see this splendid spectacular play. The tickets will be 50 and 25 cents—half the evening prices.

BEFORE NOW.

How Henry Ward Beecher Used to Live.

Henry Ward Beecher defined on Friday night the true Christian as a man who was melodious inside and out, and who was always humming and singing and thanksgiving. When he said this, in his easy, offhand, manner, his face lit up with a smile, the joy he spoke of shone on his own countenance. He showed how, as our life goes on and our material prosperity increases, we lose the spirit of thanksgiving, and, in speaking of his own experience said: "When I first begin preaching and had but two rooms, I felt more grateful, I think, than I do now, for all the comforts of my house. I went away from Cincinnati to preach in Lawrenceburg, a wretched little village. I had no patrimony; all I had was my salary, and that amounted to $400. [Laughter.] I went on that which cost me $300, and I had exactly 18 cents when I came back. I remember I never slept on a spare bed of a friend of mine then, but I felt deeply grateful for it. It was then I had two rooms; one was kitchen, cellar and sitting-room; the other, parlor, study and bedroom. [Laughter.] The cellar was made by putting things under the bed. [Laughter.] When Judge Barnard gave me his cast-off clothes to wear I was grateful for it, although—he being a slim man while I was rather developed—it was a tight fit. And still I could have said, "I, the son of Lyman Beecher, President of a Theological College, here in a sneaking little village, with no church, no elder, and no one to make an elder out of." [Laughter.] I remember when I went out to destitute places to preach I had a deep sense of gratitude for the blessing of being permitted to preach the Gospel.

TO MARRY MY WIFE,

The Difference.

An Irishman, one morning went out very early in search of some game on an estate where the game laws were strictly enforced. Turning a sharp corner, whom did he meet but the gentleman who owned the estate, Paddy, seeing the game was up, coolly advanced toward the gentleman and said:

"The top of the morning to your honor, and what brought yer out so airly this morning?"

The gentleman replied by saying:

"Indeed Paddy, I just strolled out to see if I would find an appetite for my breakfast"

And then eyeing Paddy suspiciously said:

"And now Paddy, what brought you out so early?"

Paddy replied:

"Indade yer honor, I jest shtrooled out to see if I could find a breakfast for me appetite."

Golden Hair.

We often hear of "golden hair," in fact that is the fashionable color now, but all are not aware that human hair is worth its weight in gold. Yet it appears that Felix Pyatt, 424 Kearny street, has such an immense stock of this costly commodity on hand, that he throws it away. The following, which appeared in the Morning Call a short time ago goes to prove this:

Felix Pyatt, for throwing human hair into the street in front of his store, will appear for sentence.

BUTTER.

A Very Good Story of the French War.

I have already stated the difficulty of making discrimination between plunder and requisition, at least in certain cases. As to wine, there was no difficulty, as the following explanation will make manifest: "Children," the officer would say on entering a deserted house, "there must be no plunder. We are no barbarians. Let us set those swine-hounds an example. What we find, and really do want, of course we must have; but be very particular in taking nothing that you do not want." Well, of course, every body wanted wine, no doubt about that; but as to other things, we poor, weak individuals were left each to the monitions of his own erring conscience. I make a slight mistake—everybody wants money too, but our chiefs inculcated that money, if found, must on no pretense be taken. This maxim, I have reason to believe, was generally followed. At any rate, the abstraction of money would have been deemed unhandsome, and were the appropriation discovered, would have brought restitution and punishment. A Lieutenant of ours was and butter with us was scarce. So, one day, the report having reached him that a certain widow lady had butter and cheese in some store hidden, my friend made a small patrol. Coming to the house, "Madam," said he, "You have butter, and I require it." "Butter have I none," quoth Madam. "Madam may err," replied my friend, 'humanity is fallible. I will see and judge for myself." So alighting, he entered and very soon came upon an enormous chest. "The keys, Madam," said he. The lady demurred, but under threat that the ark would be violated in case of need, the key was brought and the chest opened. No sooner did my friend begin to explore the contents than Madam became violently perturbed, and when he came to a heavy money-bag she screamed outright. He poised it in his hand for an instant, then returned it to the lady. "Money I do not take," said he, "butter is what I seek—butter, butter!" Still turning out the contents, he presently came to a net-work purse full of gold coin. "Neither do I want this," said he, "I cannot eat it." Restraint so great, so unexpected, fairly conquered Madam. She gave him butter and cheese, too, glad to be rid of him.

VERY FOND OF BUTTER,

A Novel Ceremony.

We find the following in the San Diego Union, of the 31st ultimo:

The ceremony of choosing compadres and comadres for the coming year—a custom peculiar to the people of Spain and Mexico—is to be performed upon the advent of the new year by some of the ladies of this city. The custom is an old one, and its origin dates back many years. The manner of its performance is as follows:

The names of ladies and gentlemen known to be mutually acquainted are written upon slips of paper and deposited in hats, the name of a lady being drawn simultaneously from one hat with that of a gentleman from another, the two whose names are thus drawn to be compadres and comadres to each other for the year. The obligations incurred toward each other by the relationship are very simple. The gentleman is to be the escort of the lady on any, and every occasion that she may desire; and she, in turn, must consider herself engaged for any, and every entertainment which he may wish to attend. Of course the relationship can be dissolved by mutual consent, either temporarily, or permanently, during the period for which the agreement was made. The custom is an agreeable one in this particular, that it insures to both lady and gentleman an escort or companion, thus doing away with the disagreeable incidents which sometimes occur through not having partners to entertainments. And it also secures to the lady having a compadre the positive certainty of having some one to dance with at every ball.

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bonton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

GIVING THE DEVIL HIS DUE.

Said tipsy John to his railing wife,
As staggering home at night,
O'ercome by the might of beer and gin,
He came in a woeful plight;
"Don't be too hard in your charges, love,
I'm a little to blame tis true;
But give the devil his due, my love,
Ah, give the devil his due."

His helpmate gazed on his wavering form,
As vainly he essayed
To retain his seat in a treacherous chair,
And readily answer made;
"To give the devil his due, my love,
Is perfectly right, 'tis true;
But what would become of you, my love,
Ah, what would become of you?"

Her Sensations.

A lady says the first time she was kissed she felt like a tub of butter swimming in honey, cologne, nutmegs, and cranberries. She felt as if something was running through her nerves on diamonds, escorted by several little Cupids in chariots drawn by angels shaded with honeysuckles, and the whole spread with melted rainbows.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco. HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "Honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

Metropolitan Theatre.

The play of the "The Red Pocketbook," with its thrilling scene of the sinking ship which surpasses the sensation scene in "Arrah-na-Pogue," and in fact all others ever witnessed on the San Francisco stage, will be played at the extra matinee to-day and again this evening. Friday evening Mr. Stetson will take his farewell benefit.

California Theatre.

Last night an appreciative audience witnessed the play of "Deborah" with Madame Veneta in the titlle role. She was much more successful in this character than in that of Lady Macbeth: the manner in which she delivered "the curse" drew loud applause and her acting of the par: throughout was splendid. Madame Veneta received able support from Henry Edwards, W. A. Mestayer Miss Ellie Wilton and other members of the company. "Deborah" will be played again to-night. To-morrow evening the drama of "The Romance of a Poor Young Man" will be performed.

Maguire's Opera House.

To-night, the opera of "Il Trovatore," always a favorite with the San Francisco public, will be performed for the benefit of Signor Bianchi with the following cast: Leonora Miss Annie McKenzie: Manrico, Signor Eugenio Bianchi: Conte di Luna, Signor Luigi Contini: Azucena, Signora E. Bianchi: Ines, Mme Mabel Contini: Ferrando Signor Ronconieri: Ruiz, Mons. Charles. This opera has been carefully rehearsed, and will be produced with a full chorus and orchestra under the direction of Prof. George T. Evans. To Signor Bianchi, the public of San Francisco are indepted for many seasons of Italian Opera, and they will express their acknowledgment of his enterprise by crowding Maguire's Opera House to-night.

Bella Union.

A new ballet pantomime, new local extravaganza, popular songs, original dances, and diverting negro acts, make up a capital entertainment. Miss Ella La Rue, who was a favorite here some time ago and has since made rapid progress in her profession, has just arrived from the East and will commence an engagement at the Bella Union Theatre on Saturday.

The Oxford.

The management of this lively place of amusement announce "thirty-seven acknowledged artists" as appearing nightly in a varied programme of songs, dances, acts and tableaux. There is always something new and amusing at the Oxford. Friday night benefit of Amelia Dean, when a number of volunteers will appear and an extra performance will be given.

Theatre Comique.

Cherry Belle in feats of magic has made quite a hit at this establishment; the Ethiopian opera of "Oh Hush; or, the Virginny Cupids" is capitally performed, the tableaux vivants are well arranged and the performance gives general satisfaction.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

A Cobra in Love with a Woman.

A very extraordinary and astonishing incident was lately reported to have occurred a few miles from Beypore, the particulars of which are as follows:

A native female, of a very attractive appearance, of the carpenter caste, while sweeping the yards of her house, heard a hissing noise behind her. As she turned to see what it was, she found to her terror a large cobra advancing toward her. Before she had time to call any one to her assistance, or even to go from the place, the serpent darted at her like lightning, and coiled around one of her legs, and in the twinkle of an eye darted higher and higher, till it brought its open hood in contact with her face, there moving it to and fro like a screen. In this pitiable and frightful position she had to remain for nearly one or two days without being able to lie or sleep. None but females could approach her to feed her with milk and plantains, when the cobra turned its head to one side and gave her ample time to nourish herself; but on any man stepping into the compound, the cobra would hiss fearfully and ugutate its bold round her body in such a manner as to make her feel breathless. Many were the conjurors who came to relieve her from the frightful condition, but none succeeded in removing the huge serpent from her person, till latterly a Nair was brought from the interior, who after performing certain charms and spells, succeeded in disentangling the poor woman of her venomous lover. The snake quietly crept back into the bush whence it came, and the woman is now doing well. The above wonderful occurrence is now a general talk among the natives of the place.

Who's Your Hatter?

This is the question of the day. The fact is that a number of superlatively excellent silk hats, glossy in texture, elegant in form and light as gossamer are seen surmounting the ambrosial locks of the masculine leaders of fashion. When one of these is asked the question which heads this paragraph, he invariably replies "Stapleton." stapleton has not long been in business at 124 Kearny street, but his and store are already famous. •

Pacific Hidden Treasure Company.

We wish to call the attention of enterprising capitalists, to the last opportunity of obtaining shares in this company. The directors have decided to place the remaining shares for sale at a premium of 100 per cent on account of the necessary expenses required to make the expedition complete. We understand that some of the leading men of this city are deeply interested in the success of this enterprise. This company has had many evils to contend against since its inauguration, chief of which has been the evil reports spread through the press. A few weeks ago through the columns of one of our contemporaries, an outrageous attempt was made to blast this great undertaking as a public delusion, and to dishonor the reputation of Capt. Welch and his wife. The consequences of this malicious attempt to destroy public faith in the enterprise were entirely contrary to the expectations of its authors. Luckily for the P. H. T. Company, the veracity of the paper in which the report appears is very much doubted by respectable citizens, and instead of depreciating the stock, it brought the company into still greater notoriety, and the shares were disposed of rapidly.

Captain Welch, who is the leader of this expidition, is well known as one of the most skilful navigators on the coast, having traversed these seas for upwards of 30 years. The Captain is fully assured of success. Mrs. Welch is a remarkably intelligent woman for her age—being over 70 years—and nothing strikes the intelligent mind more as to the certainty of success, than to behold a woman past the span of mortal age desirous of embarking on a perilous enterprise. Parties desireus of obtaining shares, or parts of shares, should apply at once at the office, 105 Montgomery street, Room 4, up stairs. *

Minor Morals for Married People.

[From Punch.]

"The last word" is the most dangerous of infernal machines. Husband and wife should no more strive to get it than they would struggle to get possession of a bomb-shell.

Married people should study each other's weak points, as skaters look out for weak parts of the ice, in order to keep off them.

The wife is the sun of the social system. Unless she attracts, there is nothing to keep heavy bodies—like husbands—from flying off into space.

The wife who would properly discharge her duties, must never have a soul "above buttons."

The liberties of England have been won by mutual concessions. Let the husband who would acquire a privilege of asking friends to dinner without notice remember this when his wife hints at a new bonnet. The wife's wants is the husband's opportunity.

Notwithstanding the assertions of mathematicians, the marriage ring is the circle in which husband and wife have the problems set them of making all things square.

THE MARKET VALUE OF SONG.

Jenny Lind—Nilsson—Wachtel.

To the Editor of the New York Post:—In your paper of Thursday I find the following paragraph:

"Mr. Carl Rosa publishes the following note: 'I see it is said that the greatest pay ever received by a singer was $22,000, paid to Nilsson for twenty nights of opera in New York. I have paid Wachtel $30,000 for the same period in a New York engagement.'"

I respectfully refer the managers of the above singers to the history of my life, published by the American News Company, wherein seventy-five pages are devoted to the Jenny Lind enterprise in America. It is there shown that I paid the Swedish Nightingale $208 675 for ninety five concerts, which gives an average of $2,196 per concert, or $43,920 for twenty nights. I also paid all the expenses of Miss Lind, her companion and servants from England, and all their hotel and travelling expenses up to the last concert, besides furnishing her always with a private coach and horses. Truly yours,

P. T. BARNUM.

438 Fifth avenue, Dec. 29, 1871.

We may add that Mr. Barnum received for the ninety-five concerts given by Jenny Lind, $712,161 34, an average of $7,496 43 for each concert. The largest receipts for ten nights were respectively, $17,864, $16,479, $16,028, $14 266, $14,208, $12,599, $12,385, $12 519, $12,174, and $11,848; total for ten evenings, $140,365. This occurred in 1851, when one thousand dollars were certainly as much to the larger part of the community, or of a concert audience, as twice that amount would be now.

Woman in Disguise.

The White Pine News says: There is no class of men among us more industrious than the wood-packers or—woodbiners we will call them. Up early and out late, they and their donkeys wade and tumble through the snow, with cargoes of fuel from the mountain side. For several months past a slender, boyish-looking woodbiner has been noticed with one of the wood trains. This woodbiner had but few words to say to any one, attended to business (driving the animals) faithfully, and when the day's work was done disappeared to be seen no more until time for the next day's labor to begin. A week ago the train was coming down the mountain loaded with wood as usual. The animals pushed through the snow drifts with difficulty, and it required constant attention to keep them from throwing their loads. On the grade above Moody's point, several of them mixed up together in a snow-drift, scattering fuel in all directions. Our woodbiner in endeavoring to extricate the animals, was thrown down and trampled on, and when taken out of the drift by one of the packers was insensible, and packed to the house on the edge of town. The coat and vest were taken off to ascertain the extent of the injuries received, and it was discovered that the young woodbiner was a female. Painkiller and camphor (the only remedies at hand) were applied, and she was restored to consciousness. In the evening she was removed to the house of the sister of one of the packers, where she now remains. We visited her last evening for the purpose of learning something of her history; but could not learn anything beyond the fact that she once lived at Folsom, California, and had run off from home in consequence of brutal treatment from her step-father.

A Justly-Enraged Editor.

A well known Tennessee editor, having no faith in professional correspondents, went to Washington a few weeks ago, intending to write a series of letters from the capital of the nation to his paper in Tennessee. Almost as soon as he arrived, he began to collect matter for his first letter, and a magnificent letter he wrote, too. One paragraph was devoted to an excellent clergyman of Washington, of whom he wrote as "a pretty-aged minister," and he calmly awaited the arrival of a copy of his paper which should contain the letter. When the paper came, he sat down to read the "Washington Correspondence," and about the first thing that struck his eye was the paragraph alluding to his friend, the minister. Fancy his feelings as he read, instead of "the Rev.—— is a pretty-aged minister," "the Rev.—— is a putty-eyed minister!" That Tennessee editor did then "Greeley" until the air turned blue, and, he went to his hotel, packed up, and departed for Tennessee on an errand of death. The funeral expenses of the compositor will be paid by the Typographical Union.

Golden Hair.

We often hear of "golden hair," in fact that is the fashionable color now, but all are not aware that human hair is worth its weight in gold. Yet it appears that Felix Pyatt, 424 Kearny street, has such an immense stock of this costly commodity on hand, that he throws it away. The following, which appeared in the Morning Call a short time ago goes to prove this:

Felix Pyatt, for throwing human hair into the street in front of his store, will appear for sentence.

HOW TO GET RICH.

Put on the airs of an eight-keyed flute,
If you're only a penny whistle:
Pass where you can for a garden rose,
If you're only a wayside thistle.

Blow, whenever you blow your horn,
So people can understand
That you may be sharp, but you won't be flat
In society's great brass band.

Pass the plate or the hat in church
With the usual Sabbath air,
But move with a mild, religious squeak,
That people may know you're there.

If you carry a nose six inches long,
(And a beak can scarce be longer)
Believe it a sign of perception strong,
And the longer it is, the stronger.

But if in the order of nasal tubes
Your organ is brief in measure,
Then, brevity being the soul of wit,
Consider your pug a treasure.

Love your neighbor—but mark the force
Of the gospel rule of grace—
The more you admire yourself, my friend,
The higher your neighbor's place.

Clink your dime in the Deacon's pan,
As if you were throwing gold,
And give, with an eye to the business hope
Of reaping a hundred fold.

Whether your reading is little or great,
Quote right, or never quote;
Polish your uppers, though down in the heel,
And never endorse a note.

Always advance best hand, best foot,
(Best hand, best foot, your own,)
And thus you may feast on the fat of the land,
While others enjoy the bone.

M...S PLEASANT TONIC AND APPETIZER.

The inventor of this really wonderful TONIC after a series of years and experiments, has succeeded in bringing before the public all that can be desired of a pure Tonic and Recuperator.

CERTIFICATES:

I have carefully tested and examined your I X L Bitters, and find that they cannot fail to be beneficial as a tonic and promoter of digestion. G. HOLLAND.

CITY AND COUNTY HOSPITAL, San Francisco, June 20th, 1871.—I should judge that the I X L Bitters must be a very efficient remedy in Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and similar complaints, being composed of a number of vegetable drugs which are principally used in diseases of that nature, and are of the greatest efficiency in their cure.—F. H. ENGELS, M. D., Asst. Resident Physician, Apothecary C. & C. Hospital.

STATE ASSAYER'S OFFICE, San Francisco, July 21st, 1871.—I have made a careful examination of your I X L Bitters, and have found them entirely free of deleterious mineral substances.—Yours etc., ... State Assayer.

DR. CHAS. H. TOZER'S PRIVATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE

N. E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its walls, and, inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

Does the maniac of the Bulletin think that it is the business of a stage "old gentleman" to move the audience to laughter at will? Did he ever see the audience laugh at W. H. Sedley Smith? Scat!

No Nonsense.

A marriage is published in the Buffalo papers to which is affixed the words, "no cards, no nonsense." Then the marriage won't be satisfactory. Who the deuce would care for making love in a sensible way? And at what marriage, which was one of love, did ever the fair bride and gallant groom act like sensible people? We are afraid if there was "no nonsense" there would be fewer marriages. Matter-of-fact marriages don't turn out well.

Shameful Subterfuge.

In Baton Rouge, Louisiana, a newly-married couple went to sleep with a revolver under their pillows, for fear of rats. In the night, the husband, with the remark: "Villian, you shall never harm my Araminta," blew Araminta's back hair out through the roof of her mouth. He pretended to be overwhelmed with grief, but it is generally believed that she had a glass eye of whose existence he had had no previous intimation.

Oh Yes!

Julia Ward Howe says: "Those grim and rugged outlines of theology so familiar to most of us are the work of the masculine mind. Woman in the pulpit will, I hope, carefully guard all that is just and valuable, but she will clothe and soften it with sympathetic coloring." Yes. Just so! Touch it up with rouge and pearl powder and make the devil himself presentable.

Holiday Fare.

Those Who have no family circle where they can keep Christmas and New Year's holidays, can fare sumptuously at Jones' Oyster Palace, next door to the California Theatre. There they can find every luxury of the season: the choicest wines, and the most experienced of cooks and attendants. The private rooms for dinner and supper parties, the admission of all who have seen them. V

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the 'Saddle Rock" is known everywhere. Q

Pacific Jar Friendly.

We were friend Charley Cockles used to be an inveterate "lushington." As he required a considerable quantity of whisky to stimulate him into an enjoyable condition, the greater portion of his income went for drinks. He was careless of his personal appearance, not particular about his lodging, and by no means an epicure with regard to his board. About a year ago Charley after a severe attack of gastratis, which he not unreasonably laid to inordinate drinking, determined to become a total abstainer. Since then he has improved in personal appearance, dresses well, lodges comfortably and eats good dinners. The other day we congratulated him on the change and observed that he had certainly been a gainer by renouncing whisky-drinking. He replied, "I am not sure of that."

"Why," we said, "You wear good clothes now."

"When I drank, old ones were as good."

"You have good lodgings?"

"When I drank I was comfortable anywhere."

"You have an appetite for your food and dine well?"

"When I drank I did not care for eating."

"Well," we asked, "Don't you really think you are better off."

"Oh yes," replied Charley, "I must say that, but because I have given up whisky I'm not going to abuse it. I enjoyed my drunks amazingly. Whisky was food, clothing and lodging to me at one time and and it is so to many still. Therefore when a fellow stops me in the street and asks me for two bits to get a bed with. I do not refuse it because 'he'll spend it for whisky.' I know how it is myself. It is perfectly cruel to refuse some men whisky. I can do without it, am better without it, but it is a wonderful invention, and a man if he is drunk all the time is pretty comfortable."

Divorce Under the Commune.

The Commune, which separated Paris from the rest of France, separated also married people who wished it with very little trouble. They had not even to break a pitcher as do the bohemians in "Notre Dame de Paris." One married or unmarried one's self just as one took a hack for a drive. Desiring a divorce you came before a delegate and signed a declaration like the following, just reproduced by the Moniteur:

CONSENT OF A HUSBAND.

Commune of Paris. Republic of France. Liberte, Equalite, Fraternite.

At the request of my wife I authorize her to dispose of the room and furniture which we had in common, and I authorize her to dispose of herself at her own free will. I make the stipulation that she shall make no demand on me of any kind nor interfere with my liberty. We regain by mutual consent our full and entire liberty as if we had never been married. Salut.

CONSENT OF THE WIFE.

I acknowledge the receipt of permission to dispose of the goods which were held in common by my husband and myself.

I agree for my part never to interfere with him in any way.

I leave him full and entire liberty. Salut.

Polite to the last! Salut. There need be no ill-feeling. Go your way and God bless you. What a pity the Commune did not succeed. Woodhull & Claflin would have certainly gone to Paris.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 437 Bush street above the Alhambra. Advice to Little Girls.

Good little girls ought not to make mouths at their teachers for every trifling offense. This retaliation should only be resorted to under peculiarly aggravated circumstances.

If you have nothing but a rag doll stuffed with sawdust while one of your more fortunate playmates has a costly China one, you should treat her with a show of kindness, nevertheless. And you ought not to attempt to make a forcible swap unless your conscience would justify you in it, and you know you are able to do so.

You ought never to take your little brother's "chewing gum" away from him by main force. It is better to rope him in with the promise that you will give him the first two dollars and a half you find floating down the river on a grind stone. In the artless simplicity natural to his time of life he will regard it as a perfectly fair transaction. In all ages of the world, this plausible fiction has lured the obtuse victim to financial ruin and disaster. If, at any time you find it necessary to correct your brother, do not correct him with mud—never, on any account, throw mud at him, because it will spoil his clothes It is better to scald him a little, for then you attain desirable results. You secure his immediate attention to a lesson you are inculcating, and at the same time your hot water will have a tendency to remove impurities from his person and possibly the skin in spots.

Good little girls always show marked deference for the aged. You ought never to 'sass' old people unless they 'sass' you first. —Mark Twain.

An Early Caller.

In a trial before Baron Pigott, in England recently, a witness described himself as of a profession or trade of the existence of which neither his lordship nor the barristers in court seemed to be aware. The witness said:

"I am an early caller. Why," added the man, "I calls different tradesmen at early hours, —from one till half-past five in the morning, and that is how I makes my living. I gets up between twelve and one, I goes to bed at six, and I sleeps till the afternoon."

"But surely you don't call any person at one o'clock?"

"Yes; I calls bakers between one and two: but I hain't had no bakers on my list for the last two months. The bakers is the earliest of all."

What a view of life in London! What ways there are of making a living in that vast city! Only think of the trade of "early caller," and a man of about twenty-five settling down to it!

Don't wait, but go before the rush to buy your holiday candies. Go to George Haas & Co's, No. 20 Kearny street. He has the finest supply in the city. N

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Maguire's Opera House.

This old popular temple of the drama, which has been too long closed, was opened again last night, when Signor Bianchi was the recipient of a complimentary benefit. The house was positively crammed, every inch of room being occupied and the dress circle filled with the fashionable audience which Italian opera always draws. "Il Traviata" was performed, Miss Annie McKenzie (Mrs. Bradshaw) making her first appearance on the operatic stage on this occasion. Miss McKenzie has a handsome, expressive countenance and graceful figure, which impressed the audience favorably, and exhibited a self possession, not to say nonchalance, remarkable in a debutante. Her voice is a pure, sweet soprano of limited power, and in the first acts of the opera she did not display its full capabilities. In the last she achieved a veritable triumph, singing with charming expression, taste and feeling, and acting well, and succeeded in rousing the audience to a most enthusiastic recognition of her talents, being recalled in the middle of the act to receive their congratulations. For a novice Miss McKenzie's performance of the trying role of Leonora last night was remarkably good. She has of course faults: one is a habit of marking time while singing by moving her head, which is unpleasant and which she will soon learn to correct. Signor Bianchi's performance of the role of Manrico is familiar to all our opera-goers, and he executed many portions of it last night as well as ever he did; in the last act he as well as everyone else warmed up and sang splendidly. Signora Bianchi, if her voice is not quite as fresh as when we last heard her, has at least lost none of her dramatic fire, and acted the role of Azucena most effectively. Signor Luigi Contini has a light baritone voice rather too light for the Conti di Luni, but he, too, redeemed some shortcomings in the first acts by his singing in the last. Madame Contini, who is evidently a novice on the operatic stage, has an attractive personal appearance and appeared to advantage as Inez. Signor Roncovieri was good as ever as Ferrando, and Mons. Charles all that could be be desired as Ruiz. The orchestra under Prof. Geo. T. Evans did well; the chorus was by no means the best that could be got together, and did not give full effect to the anvil chorus. However, we would not come down with the dust for Kellogg, so we must accept what Italian opera we can get for a dollar (the price of admission to a circus) and be thankful for it. The success of the performance last night will we hope encourage Signor Bianchi to give us another night, when we hope that the public will see to it that he is reimbursed for his time and trouble. The large attendance last night was most gratifying in many respects; it proved that our public appreciates and has not forgotten the services done it by Signor Bianchi, that a taste for Italian opera still exists and also that they are glad to see Maguire's Opera House once more open.

Metropolitan Theatre.

Large and fashionable audiences were in attendance at this theatre yesterday at the matinee performance and that given in the evening, and all were delighted with the "Red Pocket-Book," with its thrilling plot, good acting, gorgeous scenery and marvelous mechanical effects. It will be performed to-night and to-morrow night. E. T. Stetson, who, to please our public, has been hanged nearly drowned, and gone through all kinds of trials and tribulations (in the play), will take his farewell benefit, which will certainly be a bumper.

Alhambra Theatre.

This theatre is the favorite resort of beauty and fashion of the city, as the crowded dress circle proves every night. Billy Emerson is more fresh, funny and extravagant than ever; Harry Norman's sweet tenor is admired by all; Kelly and Leon, who are too soon to leave us, are unapproachable in burlesque; the Reynolds Brothers are immense in song and dance, and for merit and variety, the entertainment given at the Alhambra Theatre, can scarcely be equalled at any theatre in the United States.

California Theatre.

Madame Venetta repeated her great impersonation of Deborah last night. To night "The Romance of a Poor Young Man" with John McCullough in the part of which he plays so well will be given. Those who like sentiment, will enjoy enough in this play while the admirers of sensation will be gratified by the terrific leap from the tower.

Bella Union.

The programme at this very popular resort is extremely well arranged. It commences with a first part; this is followed by an interlude in which Maggie Knight, Carrie Chapman and many others appear. Then comes the comic pantomime of the "Cobbler and Tailor," by Samwells, Montague, Lon McCarty and others. After this another interlude of songs and dances, acts, Dutch songs and dances by Carrie Armstrong and J. H. Larkin, and other popular performances, and the extravaganza of the "Phantom Steamer, or the Mermaids of the Cliff," ends up the entertainment. Miss Ella La Rue will make her first appearance on Saturday.

Theatre Comique.

Another new bill has been prepared for this wide-awake establishment this evening. After a good first part there will be "Italian airs by a native artist," Jake Wallace, ballad by Cherry Belle Irish Lilt, by Rose Vincent, ballad by Annie Lamar, acts by Jake Wallace, Tommy Ross, and Mike Quinn; tableaux vivants and an amusing afterpiece.

The Oxford.

Mlle Forestelle, the great female contortionist, is the reigning star at this establishment, and performs most extraordinary feats. Amelia Dean, Carlova, the Dutch Leon, Lizzie Harmon, and over a score of other performers appear. To-morrow night is set apart for the benefit of the manageress, Amelia Dean, when an extra bill will be given, and many volunteers appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Leap Year.

The following is the statute in the old Saxon code referring to leap year: "Albeit, as often as leape yearre dothe ocourre, the woman holdeth prerogative over the menne in matters of courtships, love and matrimonie; so that when the lady proposeth it will not be lawful for the man to say her nae, but shall entertain her proposal in all gude courtesie."

Verdict in the Libel Case.

The jury returned a sealed verdict in the case of Russell vs. De Young, which has been on trial for several days in the Fifteenth District Court, for the defendants. This verdict shows plainer than any yet given, the utter folly of sueing a newspaper for libel. Libel suits don't pay.

POETRY VERSUS POULTRY.—"Does Isaac manifest any taste for poetry, Mrs. Partington?" asked the schoolmaster's wife while conversing on the merits of the youthful Partingion. The old lady was basting a chicken which her friends had sent her from the country. "Oh, yes," said the old lady, smiling; "he is very partially fond of poultry, and it always seems as if he can't get enough of it." The old spit turned by the fire place in response to the answer, while the basting was going on. "I mean," said the lady, "does he show any of the divine afflatus?" The old lady thought for a moment. "As for the divine flatness, I don't know about it. He's had all the complaints of children; and when he was a baby he fell and broke the cartridge of his nose; but I hardly think he's had this you speak of." The roasting chicken hissed and spluttered, and Mrs. Partington basted again.

Who's Your Hatter?

This is the question of the day. The fact is that a number of superlatively excellent silk hats, glossy in texture, elegant in form and light as gossamer are seen surmounting the ambrosial locks of the masculine leaders of fashion. When one of these is asked the question which heads this paragraph, he invariably replies "Stapleton." Stapleton has not long been in business at 124 Kearny street, but his and store are already famous.

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

An Anecdote of Whewell.

The mass of facts—the minutiæ of general knowledge—which may be acquired by attention and retained in the memory, is something absolutely startling. We have often doubtless noticed the accuracy with which a Post-Office employe fills his boxes, or the rapidity of the experienced compositor in setting up type. This is carried so far that it may almost be termed mechanical.

An anecdote told of Whewell, Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, is illustrative of this. His general information was so extended that he completely overwhelmed the Fellows in conversation at the hall dining table. This, naturally enough, rather exasperated them, and consequently it was determined in solemn conclave that a subject should be chosen, for discussion at table some day, which should be beyond the range of Whewell's information—something, in fact, which would be almost impossible for him to have studied. The topic selected was "Chinese Music;" the facts being taken from some old reviews. Never was so much study accomplished by hard-working under graduate cramming for examination. On the critical day the subject was gracefully introduced and made the theme of a protracted conversation. It was observed, triumphantly, that Whewell took no part in the conversation. They thought that at last they had floored him. But no; after exhausting themselves, Whewell was appealed to for an opinion on some debated point. He merely remarked, in his usual didactic style: "Ah, gentlemen, I see you have been reading the articles in the —— quarterly. When I wrote those articles I was imperfectly, and, to some extent, incorrectly informed regarding the matter." He then went on to disprove their statements and supply fresh data. Imagine ye pheelitix of ye learned Fellers!

A Famous Doctoress

The celebrated lady doctor—Miss Fowler—in practice in New Jersey, was recently married, and is now Mrs. Ormsby. She is a sister of Fowler, the phrenologist, and has met with extraordinary success as a medical practitioner of the homeopathic school. Her income from her practice has for years past been from $15,000 to $20,000 per year. She treats patients of both sexes; has the names of over 600 families on her practice books, and has more business than all the half dozen male doctors of the place put together. In carrying on her profession she drives between forty and fifty miles every day. She is remarkably successful as a doctor. She is a handsome woman of forty, clear-headed, stout-hearted, strong-willed, vivacious and intellectual. Her husband is a New York merchant.

THACKERAY AND A "BOWERY" BOY.—Wendell Phillips, in his lecture on "Street Life in Europe," gives one little instance of street life in America. Thackeray, on his visit here many years ago, was anxious to see a genuine Bowery Boy, and a friend pointed out to him one leaning against a lamp-post, with his hands in his pockets, his "soap locks" carefully regulated over his eyebrow, and his cigar tilted upright between his teeth. Thackeray was delighted, and determined to "interview" the monster. So he strode with his manly, sweeping gait, carrying that ever present benignancy of expression on his face, up to the "Boy" and remarked, very innocently, "Sir—excuse me—but I want to go to Broadway." The "Boy" returned the look with one equally benignant, and replied, "Well, why in —— don't you go?"

Golden Hair.

We often hear of "golden hair," in fact that is the fashionable color now, but all are not aware that human hair is worth its weight in gold. Yet it appears that Felix Pyatt, 424 Kearny street, has such an immense stock of this costly commodity on hand, that he throws it away. The following, which appeared in the Morning Call a short time ago goes to prove this:

Felix Pyatt, for throwing human hair into the street in front of his store, will appear for sentence.

TO MY CIGAR.

Yes, social friend, I love thee well,
In learned doctors' spite;
Thy clouds all other clouds dispel,
And lap me in delight.

What though they tell, with phizzes long,
My years are sooner pass'd?
I would reply, with reason strong,
They're sweeter while they last.

And oft, mild friend, to me thou art
A monitor, though still;
Thou speak'st a lesson to my heart,
Beyond the preacher's skill.

Thou'rt like the man of worth, who gives
To goodness every day,
The odor of whose virtue lives
When he has passed away.

When in the lonely evening hour,
Attended by but thee,
O'er history's varied page I pore,
Man's fate in thee I see.

Oft as thy snowy column grows,
Then breaks and falls away,
I trace how mighty realms thus rose,
Thus tumbled to decay.

A while, like thee, earth's masters burn,
And smoke and fume around.
And then, like thee, to ashes turn,
And mingle with the ground.

Life's but a leaf adroitly roll'd
And time's the wasting breath,
That late or early we behold,
Gives all to dusty death.

From beggar's frieze to monarch's robe,
One common doom is pass'd:
Sweet nature's works, the swelling globe,
Must all burn out at last.

And what is he who smokes thee now?—
A little moving heap,
That soon like thee to fate must bow,
With thee in dust must sleep.

But though thy ashes downward fall,
Thy essence rolls on high;
Thus, when my body must lie low
My soul shall cleave the sky.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "Honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

Hygienic and Phrenological Journal.

We have received the first number of Dr. Smith's Hygienic and Phrenological Journal, which will be published monthly. The work is sensible and well-written. "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country" was proved a true saying lately. Dr. Barlow J. Smith, who has been a resident of this city for a long time, has devoted a lifetime to the study of Phrenology, yet when Dr. Fowler came here the people rushed to see him as if they had never been afforded an opportunity to learn anything about phrenology before. Those who wish instruction in a very interesting science, which no sensible man entirely disbelieves, should subscribe for this journal.

Sensible.

Rev. Dr. Ewer, who considered Protestantism a failure, has, with thirteen ladies, seceded from Christ Church, New York, and will, it is supposed, establish an Independent Episcopal Church, where the confessional and other advanced forms of ritualism will be observed without opposition.

It was a good move to take thirteen ladies with him. If Dr. Ewer has picked out the prettiest he will be sure of a congregation of males for his new church, no matter what doctrines he may preach. A friend of ours has been by turns an Episcopalian, a Unitarian, a Baptist, a Catholic, a Jew, and (in Constantinople) a Mahommedan, all on her account.

Railroad Reform Needed.

Artemus Ward alludes to a very slow railroad as a breeder of injustice, and tells of a convict who was started to go to the jail at the other end of the road, but got so old while going that he didn't answer the description when he got there. Speaking of the same road, he once told the conductor that the cow-catcher should be on the other end—there the danger lies. "You can't overtake a cow," said he, "but what's to hinder one walking in the back door and biting the passengers."

"Here lies a man who never had an enemy!" Then here lies a man who never had an idea.—Wendell Phillips.

Note for Darwin: In time, the mulberry tree becomes a silk gown—and a silk gown becomes a woman.

Holiday Fare.

Those Who have no family circle where they can keep Christmas and New Year's holidays, can fare sumptuously at Jones' Oyster Palace, next door to the California Theatre. There they can find every luxury of the season: the choicest wines, and the most experienced of cooks and attendants. The private rooms for dinner and supper parties, are admiration of all who have seen them. V

First Premium Millinery.

The last Mechanics' Fair awarded the first premium for superior taste and elegance of workmanship in the millinery line, to Mrs. Cowles of the "New House," 114 Third street. Mrs. Cowle's stock is unsurpassed by any in the city, and her prices are very reasonable. BH

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere. Q

A Woman for President.

An Eastern editor, contemplating the probability of having a woman President, discourses eloquently. Hear him:

"We hope so, if she's pretty. What fun to be under petticoat government, without any immediate danger of a broomstick or a scolding?

"Every good-looking chap would have a chance for office then. How glorious to be closeted alone with the fair executive of the nation, on business of a private and confidential nature! The old custom of kissing hands might be revived; and from the hands to the lips isn't such a great distance, you know. The Presidentess must either be a widow, or a maiden lady, so as to give an ambitious fellow a chance. Her bust in marble, and her portrait on canvas would look well, displayed all over the country, instead of some low-browed rooster, with stubbed beard and the air of an ordinary cuss. The fair head of the nation would of course set all the fashions. Her administration would inaugurate an era of love and elegance to the utter confusion of dusty politics.

"Let us have a woman President by all means, say we. The electioneering will be rich when two rival women candidates are up for the highest office in the gift of the people. Fancy one of them a comely female, and the other a lean, lank, scrawny specimen of womanhood. We should have torch-light processions, with banners bearing such mottoes as "Full Bosoms Forever."

"Down with Powder and Paint."

"Hurrah for Full Garters."

"No Withered Shanks for Us."

"Pretty ankles are the Nation's Bulwarks."

"No Cotton Breast-Works for our Country's Defences."

"To Arms, ye brave," (when they are fair and dimpled) —and so on.

At the polls huge placards would be seen with such legends as:

Vote for Full Corsets, and Lovely Women."

"Give the Kissing Candidate a Chance."

"Go for the Belle of the Nation," etc.

"These will be high old days in the history of our Republic, and we may live (?) to see them. We speak for the berth of Private Secretary.

That is our Rule.

The Salt Lake Footlights says: "The handsome acknowledgement by FIGARO of our local article on the Nathan peculiarity, speaks well for the impartiality of our esteemed exchange, and we fully endorse the sentiment: 'Before you judge hear both sides of the question.'"

If a correspondent sends us a communication from some far-off city, we cannot of course be sure that he writes without prejudice; but are always ready to publish any exceptions that may be taken if they appear reasonable.

Such is Fame.

The Chicago Daily Hotel Reporter says Mrs. O'Leary's reputation did not support her worth a cent. She nearly starved to death before the lack of living material was discovered by some kind-hearted ladies.

Pacific Hidden Treasure Co.

This company has this day been incorporated under the laws of this State. All persons having Certificates of Stock in the old Association, are requested to call immediately on the Secretary, who, upon surrender of the certificate, will issue new Stock in the Incorporated Company. The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street above the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of epicures.

Dogberry On Hamlet.

The Mayor of a well known town in Blankshire became the patron of the theatre under Mr. M—y's management, in 1850, and gave a hundred guineas for a box for the season. This liberality did not arise from any particular taste for dramatic literature, or any other kind of literature; but he paid thus handsomely for the box, because he was a liberal man, liked going to the play, and his predecessor in office paid the same sum, and he would not be out-done. He attended every night, was always pleased, and very friendly with the manager. One night M—y M—y made his appearance in "Hamlet," a play which the Mayor has never seen; and in the mad scene Hamlet appeared with his dress in disorder; the Mayor took offense at the exhibition, and declared to his wife and family who were in the box with him his conviction that the actor was drunk, and he would have no such doings if he could help it. So, accordingly, he went round to the stage, and waited at the side till the end of the scene when he thus addressed the tragedian:

"Mr. M—y, till to-night I looked on you as a respectable man, and now I see you are given to drink, for no sober man would go before a respectable audience with his shirt-frill hanging about like that, and his stockings down. Why, you ought to be ashamed of yourself!" The tragedian, astonished at the ignorance of his patron said: "My dear sir, you are quite mistaken, I assure you. I only adhere to the author's instructions in respect to the disordered dress, to show—" "Who wrote this play?" demanded the Mayor. "Good gracious!" exclaimed M—y, do not you know Shakspeare wrote it?" I can't say that I do!" replied the Mayor, 'but I will take care that he writes no more for this house as long as I have anything to do with it, and so you may tell him."

An Abyssinian Prince.

The Chronicle in its report of the speeches at the Japanese Banquet makes Samuel Williams talk of "Rosselaw, Prince of Abyssinnia," who lived in a happy valley. Of course Samuel Williams did not mention any such prince or the shade of another Samuel whose surname was Johnson would have appeared to reproach him. "Rosselaw!"

Very Particular.

The Edinburg Review relates an anecdote of M. de St. Beuve. He once fought a duel. When the principals took their positions it was raining hard. Sainte Beuve had his pistol in one hand, and with the other he held his umbrella. The seconds protested: "I have no objection to being killed," said he, "but as to being wet—no!"

Don't wait, but go before the rush to buy your holiday candies. Go to George Haas & Co's, No. 20 Kearny street. He has the finest supply in the city. N

THE SONG OF THE WAVES.

We are born of the infinite, measureless sea,
Children of laughter and fears;
Our chant rolls on eternally,
With the burden of hopes and fears;
We laugh as of old with our countless smile,
And the heart of man is glad the while.

We are ocean's offspring; the sea-god's will
We do at his bidding alway;
We sport in the sun, and our crests are still;
And the children as they play
By the glistening marge of our mighty sire
Have never a thought of the sea god's ire.

We laughingly carry on laughing breast
The delicate shallop above;
By our glittering spray the keel caressed
Can only tell of our love;
And the careless crew on their seaward path—
Little know they of the sea-god's wrath!

But stranger and sadder sights know we,
And sadder sounds do we hear;
The note of the strong man's agony;
Our waters the dead man's bier;
When ocean's heart is with wrath possessed,
Speed we our father's stern behest.

And a sadder song than tongue may tell
Could we sing of mortal woes;
Of our wrathful revel—the water's hell—
What time the death-wind blows.
When the spirit of death is upon the sea,
Death's fit instruments then are we.
By tempest maddened, or lulled in play,
The sea god's bidding we do alway.

Shocking.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

To-night E. T. Stetson, who, during his engagement at the Metropolitan Theatre, has become a great favorite with the San Francisco public, will take his farewell benefit; and the "Red Pocket-Book" will be performed. Mr. Stetson desires to have—and doubtless will have a bumper benefit. "The Red Pocket Book must very shortly be withdrawn, to make way for T. E. Jackson, low comedian and character actor, and Miss Josie Langley who will make their appearance in two new pieces next week. This popular play with its grand scenic effects will form the matinee entertainment to-morrow.

California Theatre.

"The Romance of a Poor Young Man," was capitally played last night. John McCullough as Manuel quite gained the sympathy of the audience for that poor but honorable young man. Miss May Howard faithfully represented the character of Marguerite; Mrs. Sophie Edwin, of whom we see too little on the stage, was very good as M'lle Helouin; Henry Edwards excellent as Dr. Desmarets, and Owen Marlowe gave a polished representation of Mons. Bavaunes. The sensation leap was effectively performed and the play went off satisfactorily. It will be played again to-night and at the matinee to-morrow.

Alhambra Theatre.

The many admirers of the famous Kelly and Leon must remember that the engagement of these talented artists is fast drawing to a close. They will appear to-night in a burlesque operetta and also in a burlesque of "Frou-Frou." Billy Emerson is acknowledged by the profession and the public to be "the chief." New York may keep Birch, Backus and Bernard while we have Billy. His new character songs are received nightly with immense applause, and his acting as the swell Baron de Canbri in the concluding piece is wonderfully funny. The same excellent bill which has drawn immense houses every evening this week will be played in full at the matinee to-morrow.

Bella Union.

The comic pantomime of "The Cobbler and Tailor" keeps the audience continually laughing, the capital make-up and clever acting of Samwells and Montague making it a great success. First part, interlude and afterpiece all receive their due share of applause, and such is the variety and excellence of the programme that all who spend an evening at the Bella Union are well entertained. Miss Ella LaRue will make her appearance to-morrow evening.

The Oxford.

To-night Miss Amelia Dean the spirited manageress of this place of amusement will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit. In addition to the regular company, Charley Vincent will make his first appearance since his return from Oregon. A new programme will be presented. The management announce as in rehearsal, a new and original burlesque entitled "Our Own Red Pocket-Book."

Theatre Comique.

To-night Johnny Kelly will make his reappearance; Mike Quinn will appear as the Musical Moke; the amusing farce of "The Arrival of the U. S. Mail" will be performed; the clever and versatile Cherry Belle will appear in feats of magic and ballads, and a number of tableaux vivants and other attractive performances will be given.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Golden Hair.

We often hear of "golden hair," in fact that is the fashionable color now, but all are not aware that human hair is worth its weight in gold. Yet it appears that Felix Pyatt, 424 Kearny street, has such an immense stock of this costly commodity on hand, that he throws it away. The following, which appeared in [the Morning Call a short time ago goes to prove this:

Felix Pyatt, for throwing human hair into the street in front of his store, will appear for sentence.

Pyatt's should be a good place to buy chignons and tresses cheap, and it is.

All persons in want of Furnishing Good should make a note that at SEGUIN & CHARLEBOIS's, 706 and 708 Montgomery street, can be found the largest and cheapest assortment of goods in that line in the city. Star shirts of the best quality for $1 50; woolen overshirts, drawers, undershirts, half-hose, handkerchiefs, at prices below the lowest in the city. 706 and 708 Montgomery street, one door from Washington, east side. T

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

A New Thing in Oysters.

Joe Giusta, 105 California Market, fronting on Sommer street, serves freshly opened oysters at gentlemen's residences at any hour requested on Sunday mornings. Leave orders and get Giusti's fresh opened oysters to eat on Sundays, not the stale ones opened on Saturday.

If you want to buy a watch or any article of jewelry or silverware, go to A. Hirschman, 133 Kearny street, who keeps none but good articles, with small profits. His guarantee is reliable. Watches carefully repaired. G

The Mitchell Thimble Skein Farm Wagon is the best; over 500 sold on this coast. Mills & Evans, Agents, 508 Market street. BH

Our Portland Letter.

PORTLAND, Oregon, January 20, 1871.

DEAR FIGARO:—Unlike a certain morose Prince of Tyre, whom chronicles say would not speak, your correspondent at length unfolds himself.

Do not imagine, however, that Portland during the present wet and very disagreeable period, is the most pleasant or desirable spot to Winter, your informant assures you otherwise. A business man's coat here during the Winter season is rarely if ever dry, an almost incessant rain has rendered out-door vocations unendurable for the last three weeks, and unless, to use an Oregon expression, one's feet are webbed, the only alternative remaining (during the present season) to one not wishing to have his clothes soaked is to stay in doors and find entertainment in witnessing the drizzling and tiresome fall of the offerings of Pluvius until very lately. News items have not been very abundant, and all California and Eastern papers have been read with avidity. California laborers and others, who follow open air avocations, undoubtedly experience a great deal more comfort than those who follow similar callings in this State. Oregon is a splendid agricultural and timber country, but it is by no means the working man's paradise. Two dollars and a soaking is the laborer's pay here, while in California, one seldom, if ever is compelled to work in rain.

Here everyone works, sluggards will not thrive; everywhere, as far as the sight can reach, is seen the remarkable progress being made. The primeval aspect of the country is fast fading away, and civilization marches with rapid strides. All the hotels appear to be well patronized, but where all the people come from, it would be hard to say—unless one undertook the trouble of questioning each individually, that though, would not return a proportionate quid pro quo for the pains, Money seems to be abundant—hardly anyone complaining of impecuniosity,—something alone which speaks in volumes for the country. In one of your late numbers, you mention the Waldron Company as having opened on the 27th of December in "A Long Strike," It was not so, the opening play was "Hamlet" to as large an audience as ever entered the Oro Fino Theatre. Long before the doors had opened, the passage leading to the entrance was packed by eager ticket-holders. The play, contrary to the prediction of creakers went off as merry as "the chimes of a marriage bell. The day following the opening one, every paper in this city paid high tribute to Mr. Waldron's acting of the Melancholy Dane, and predicted a very successful season; so far their predictions have been more than verified, a repetition of "Hamlet" being called for the opening week. Mrs. G. B. Waldron, Robert Fulford, and William Barry are considered great favorites with our theatre-going citizens; and are highly spoken of by the press; without a single exception, particular tributes have been paid to Mrs. Waldron's Ophelia; and, the Laertes of Fulford, and Barry's Gravedigger, are too well known to need praise. The parts of Horatio, the King, Queen, and Polonius, were well rendered by Messrs. Cleaves, Bird, Mrs. Bird and J. B. Robinson. Three more persons have been added to the company since their arrival here, two of whom are ladies. Misses Annie and Minnie Pixley, both charming ladies, and both much admired for their ease and grace on the stage, the third person is Richard Clinton, quite a promising young man well known here. The interval up to the present time has been filled with "A Long Strik" running to crowded houses, Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoon. At night "Kathleen Mavoureen"—Mrs. Waldron as Kathleen and Mr. Waldron as Terence. Monday, Schiller's "Robbers"—Mr. Waldron receiving three calls before the curtain during one act. For ease and grace of portraiture as Charles De Moore, Mr. Waldron could be only surpassed with great difficulty. Mrs. Waldron's Amelia, and Mr. Fulford's Francis were most artistic efforts. "Nobody's Child," "Naroisse," "The Creole," "Nick of the Woods," and "Othello" have been produced. During the latter play Mr. Waldron received a perfect ovation from the auditors for his great portryal of the jealous Moor. The following constituded the cast: Cassio, Cleaves; Iago, Fulford; Desdemona, Miss Annie Pixley; Montano, Clinton, Roderigo, Barry; Ludovico, Fortier; Duke, Robinson; Emelia, Mrs. Bird. The season has proved so far one of the most successful yet inaugurated at the Oro Fino Theatre. This letter though not all that could be desired this mail will be somewhat improved on when again your correspondent writes. He is bound to see Oregon, though the appeasing of such a curiosity would necessitate an ascent of Hount Hood, whose snow-capped apex can be seen some forty miles distant, towering far up towaards the sky.

Loose Lion in a Dressing Room.

A performance not down on the bills occurred during the visit of Noyes' circus to Austin, Texas, recently. While the keepers of the lion were removing her from the cage to the band wagon, preparatory to the parade on the streets, her majesty managed to make her escape from custody. The admiring crowd of spectators, struck with terror, fled precipitately. The lioness first attacked a mule, springing on its back; but the animal proved to be a regular Texas "pitcher," and threw her royal highness some two or three rods over his head. Discomfited here, the savage beast attacked a horse, seizing him by the throat, and succeeded in inflicting some ugly wounds before she could be beaten off. Followed by her keepers, she then retreated to the tent adjoining the circus, and used by the company as a dressing-room. The occupants upon her appearance did not stand on the order of their going, but left, some of them up the center pole, which they climbed with more agility than they had ever exhibited in any performance. Having cleared this apartment, the lioness rushed from the tent, mounted a couple of fences and attacked two horses, but before she could do any damage she was captured and secured by her keepers. During all this time the vicinity of the circus was cleared of spectators, and the side shows lost their attractions.

How Particular!

There is one editor in California who is particular about his Latin. He edits the Oakland Transcript and thus complains:

An annoying typographical error occurred in yesterday's issue. The omission of the dipthong in the word "quœris," smashed to smithereens a Latin quotation.

If you must be so particular better spell it "quæris." We think a would look better than æ, would'nt it?

LISTENING ANGELS.

Blue against the bluer heavens
Stood the mountain calm and still;
Two white angels, bending earthward,
Leant upon the hill.

Listening, leant these silent angels,
And I, also, longed to hear,
What sweet strains of earthly music
Thus could charm the ear.

I heard the sound of many trumpets,
And the warlike march drew nigh;
Solemnly a mighty army
Passed in order by.

But the clang had ceased; the echo
Soon had faded from the hill;
While the angels, calm and silent,
Leant and listened still.

Then I heard a sinter clamor;
Forge and wheel were clashing near,
And the mowers in the meadow,
Singing loud and clear.

When the sunset came in glory,
And the day of toil was o'er,
Still the angels leant in silence,
Listening as before.

Then, as daylight slowly vanished,
And the evening mists grew dim,
Solemnly from distant voices
Rose a vesper hymn.

But the chant was done, and lingering
Died upon the distant air;
Yet from the hill the radiant angels
Still were listening there.

Silent came the gathering darkness,
Bringing with it sleep and rest;
Save a little bird was singing
In her leafy nest.

Through the sounds of war and labor
She had warbled all day long,
While the angels leant and listened
Only to her song.

But the starry night was coming,
And she ceased her little lay.
From the mountain-top the angels
Slowly passed away.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

No, Thank You!

The Chicago Sun says:

That luxury of all luxuries, sausage, has recently been introduced into San Francisco. In consequence of the immence demand, the dog supply has suddenly given out, and it is now feared that the patent sausage mill firm of that city will be obliged to suspend operations, until pending negociations for the dead dogs in Chicago prove successful.

We have had sausages in San Francisco for many years; and a year or two ago our Board of Supervisors, to encourage the manufacture and lower the price of the article, gave permission to the pound keeper to slaughter all dogs found running in the streets without muzzles. Now those for whice taxes ar not paid are killed and made into sausages. As we have heard that small pox prevails among the dogs of Chicago we don't want any of them just at present.

Whom to Marry

Miss Kate Stanton is giving a lecture on "Whom to Marry," and these are her conclusions—first to men: Marry a large woman, one who wears at least a number five shoe; marry a healthy widow, with healthy children, rather than a young girl, for she has had the advantage of experience; but best of all, marry an old maid; though she is difficult of access. To women: Marry a healthy man, especially a fat man, round like a pumpkin; but do not marry a gossipy man (unless he is a reporter or an editor, who is forced professionally to be a gossiper). Above all, don't marry a drunkard, a gambler, a quack doctor, or a defamer of women!

A crazy man having got into the gallery of the Senate of the United States, during a rambling debate, was taken out, the Sergeant At Arms telling him that he was "out of place in that gallery;" "That's so," said the lunatic. "I ought to be on the floor with the Senators."

Baron Alderson, learned, gentle, and good could make puns, and had much drollery. A juryman once said that he was deaf in one ear. "Well, then," said Alderson, "you may leave the box, for it is necessary that jurymen should hear both sides."

Noank, Connecticut, boasts of a three-eyed cat, and inquires; "How is that for eye?"

Holiday Fare.

Those Who have no family circle where they can keep Christmas and New Year's holidays, can fare sumptuously at Jones' Oyster Palace, next door to the California Theatre. Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere. Q

A Chinese Wedding.

The local of the Marysville Appeal does up a Chinese wedding in the following style, slinging in bits of poetry with a lavish hand:

On the 19th, the Rev. Dr. Fillmore united in the holy bonds of matrimony—"Melican fashion"—Mr. Ah Quock, to Miss Ling Gin, all of Marysville. The high contracting parties were formerly residents of the Flowery Kingdom, lineal descendants of the Son. The bride is young and fair, and the breezes of but two short months have kissed her peach-blown cheek since her fairy feet trod the soil of her birth. (Milton). She came to this country to better her fortune as other women do. (Shakspeare). And here Ah Quock met her. It was the old, old story—old as the hills,—but new unto him. (Dryden). He came, he saw, he conquered. (Washington's farewell address). The fair one yielded, and they were united by that tie indissoluable, (see treatise on acids). But the course of true love never did run smooth. (Hyatt, on horses). And this case is no exception to the general rule. (see Blackstone on races). Yesterday, the old herridan who claimed the fair damsel for her prey. (See Watts on prayer). Came to Mrs Postons where Ah Quock and his bride were, and demanded the fair one as her own. (see Kent on rights of property). As Mr. Quock had long been engaged in Mrs. Poston's service, and as he was married there, the lady very correctly denied the right of the old jezable to reclaim the girl, and sent her away. But she would not be sent away worth a cent, but sat down on a chunk by the side-walk, and beat her breasts and howled in the most artistic style. Didn't she howl?

The tears in torrents ran
From out each bissed eye,
O'er leathry cheeks of black and tan
Oh, "how is that for high?"

exclaimed Farley, of the Amateur Minstrels, as he joined the crowd collecting around the distracted female Chinaman. While we were mildly rebuking him for his levity, Sheriff Woods came along; and, with the aid of Roberts, marched the old beldame off to durance vile, and Ah Quock was left in possession of her whom he had sworn to love, honor, and protect. Virtue hath its own reward.

The Baltimore Sunday Bulletin.

The Baltimore Programme of the 6th has the following which we cordially endorse:

The Sunday Bulletin makes its appearance this week in a new and attractive dress of type, a tolerably satisfactrry evidence of the success which has attended that highly amusing and pleasant paper. It is incomparably the best weekly and literary journal ever published in Baltimore, and the prosperity which it now enjoys it richly deserves. Mr. W. M. Laffan, the intelligent and witty editor, who as Mr. Gelasma, is known to everybody in Baltimore, has succeeded by his judicious management in making it what it is, and we wish it during 1872 a continuance of the popularity it enjoyed throughout 1871.

Mr. Laffan was for some time on the editorial staff of the San Francisco Bulletin.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street above the Alhambra. A Rich old Book.

In one of the wards of this city is a manuscript volume, well worth the perusal of all students of human nature. It is what is called a "canvassing book," and contains the names of voters in that ward, gathered before the election, with appropriate comments over each one. Some of these remarks display the "little weaknesses" of humanity in a striking manner, and illustrate a phase in electioneering strategy. For the benefit of the uninitiated I have jotted down a few minus the names:

Mr. A., fond of beer. Pile it into him. Beer is bound to fetch him.

"——, on Pacific street. Badly stuck after ——. She can make him do what she pleases. Call and see her."

"——, very fond of going to the theatre. but poor. A "season ticket" till after the election might bring him. Worth trying."

"——, gets highly patriotic after his fifth horn of whiskey. Rush him up then. If he drinks more he's lost. "Old ——, a curiosity. Can't be influenced. Waste of time to try it."

"——, very vain. Can be flattered into anything. Particularly proud of his hand."

"Mr. S., Leavenworth street. Extremely interested in Spanish hens. Think a full blooded pair or two would bring him to the "scratch." Feel for him."

"——, has a great weakness for snuff. Think he can be led by the nose."

The Rarity of Christian Charity.

A train of cars left the Erie depot not many weeks since bearing the offering of our charity to the poor sufferers in Chicago. One who has been freely styled a bad man, drove round the city soliciting donations of clothing, etc., to go by that train. Day and night he labored to expedite the mission of mercy. His success was great. The train sped away, and the fame of it reached to every home and hamlet in the land. The bad man now lies dead in our midst, and his sins stand up in gloomy array about his bier. What a group they will make! It is according to the fashion of this world's charity to judge him by these sins, but when God judges him that "Chicago Relief Train" won't be forgotten.—Ex.

Kindly Explained.

Dumas, on meeting a friend one day, congratulated him on the success of a piece of his, then playing at the Gymnase. "Yes," replied the other, "there was 4,000 francs in the house last night." Dumas replied that the house would not hold that amount. His friend persisted until Dumas replied: "Oh, well! it might have been; perhaps the spectators were all lean persons."

Don't wait, but go before the rush to buy your holiday candies. Go to George Haas & Co's, No. 20 Kearny street. He has the finest supply in the city. N

"A Bloody Fool."

The word "bloody" has nothing in itself which can be considered improper, but it was a favorite epithet of censure in the mouths of a very low class in London, and therfore the reporters, when recording the utterances of that class, had the habit of "gutting" it. And as use is second nature, it came to pass one day that a grand sentence of Sir Robert Peel's appeared in the Times after this ludicrous fashion: "Then the genius of anarchy arose, and waving her b——y hand," etc., etc. Walter, the editor summoned the delinquent in haste and wrath and distributed to him with much energy, sundry fragments of the butt-end of his mind.

"But, sir," pleaded the delinquent, "it's a coarse word, you know."

"Yes," growled the proprietor, "it is coarse. If I were to call you a bloody fool, it would be coarse, but it would be true."

A Darkey Divine Rebuked.

"Brudder Jacksing," a colored devine of Burlington, N. J., was once preaching to his "deluded bredderin," when all of a sudden, getting much excited, and picking up the elegant new Bible which reposed before him for the first Sunday, held it poised in mid air for a moment, when down it came like a thunderbolt to its former resting-place.

This is noticed instanter by one of "de belubbed," who, thinking perhaps the whole proceeding totally wrong, immediately exclaimed, in a voice loud enough to be heard all over the room.

"Brudder Jacksing, if yer wants ter try dat speriment again, why, please take de ole Bible!"

Umbrellas Are Property.

Here is a Philadelphia Justice of the Peace reversing one of the most cherished and common beliefs of good society by deciding the illegitimate appropriation of an umbrella to be a crime. Heretofore everybody has been accustomed to bidding farewell to that indispensable piece of personal property when it was loaned to any one, and the man who returned a borrowed umbrella has generally been regarded with something of the suspicion that would attach to a mild-mannered lunatic. But this legal functionary has had before him the wrongful possessor of an umbrella, and has actually held him in six hundred dollars' bail for trial. Take warning, all umbrella kleptomaniacs! There is such a thing as a right of property in the article.

SYNOPSIS OF SCENERY AND INCIDENTS.

PROLOGUE.—Anteroom at Duromie's Chateau (new). The night of the 15th of February, 1774. The Banker's private party. An uninvited guest. The forged note. The gambling debt paid.

THE RED POCKET BOOK.

The family jewels. The unknown artist; the banker's bargain. "Any sacrifice but honor." The assassin's work. The Red Pocket Book.

Act I—After storm and Battle. THE GOOD SHIP MARGARET in mid ocean (new). ☞ Introducing mechanical effects never before produced on any stage. ☜ A tale of love, the lawless and the sailor, a recipe for courage; a speck upon the sea, a vessel in distress; the recognition; the convict. Fire! Fire! Fire! The sinking ship; a brave heart in trouble, a woman true to the core; the boats and raft. TERRIBLE EXPLOSION! last of the Minerva!

Act II—Coast of Africa (new). The shipwrecked lovers, their hut on the beach, a strange visitor; the Wild Man of the Woods; an unexpected arrival; the lost ones found; the father and child; Maurice the convict; deserted: "this road is not ours;" a brave girl's resolve; the old sailor's threat; the shot. The Caravan. Tableau.

Act III—A Country Chateau (new). Arrival of the Admiral; the proposition. Helene pleads for her first love; the accepted suitor; the wanderer fallen by the wayside; true hospitality knows no distinction. THE DEAD ALIVE; a father sues for the honor of his name, two poor wounded hearts; a brave man's sacrifice; the separation; farewell forever.

Act IV.—Kervegnen's mansion; the marriage fete. THE GRAND SALON. Illuminated with its two hundred and fifty Wax Tapers; the Bridal Gift, the first gleam of light; the unexpected guest; the odious contract signed; Death the price; the gleam of light bursts into day; the family motto—"Heaven alone can save us;" a startling revelation; the madman.

Act V—Gardens of the Chateau by moonlight (new). The pavilion; the fountain; Faustin and his bottle; "when the wine is in the wife are out;" the miser and his godson; master and dupe; diamond cut diamond; Folbert's desperate game—"life the stake;" the star of love lights the path of danger; the fatal mistake; the dupe the victim; the motto—"Heaven alone has saved us." The proof of innocence.

SATURDAY.....JANUARY 27, 1871

We frequently hear people remark that they would like to purchase a house, if they were able to do so. There are doubtless, in this city, thousands in this situation. The San Francisco Co-operating Land and Building Association has entered the field expressly to aid this class of people in acquiring homes. Any person who is able to pay rent can, with the assistance of this Association, in a short time become the possessor of a house. The office is at 306 Montgomery street. Call there and get further particulars. BG

Russ House Carriages,

Sam Moore, proprietor, Any style of team, with all the latest improvements, at reduced rates. Careful and gentlemanly drivers in all cases. Leave orders at the Russ House, BG

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Rockaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the stables, 1016 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

A New Thing in Oysters.

Joe Giusta, 105 California Market, fronting on Summer street, serves freshly opened oysters at gentlemen's residences at any hour requested on Sunday mornings. Leave orders and get Giusti's fresh opened oysters to eat on Sundays, not the stale ones opened on Saturday.

Golden Hair.

We often hear of "golden hair," in fact that is the fashionable color now, but all are not aware that human hair is worth its weight in gold. Yet it appears that Felix Pyatt, 424 Kearny street, has such an immense stock of this costly commodity on hand, that he throws it away. The following, which appeared in the Morning Call a short time ago goes to prove this:

Felix Pyatt, for throwing human hair into the street in front of his store, will appear for sentence.

Pyatt's should be a good place to buy chignons and tresses cheap, and it is.

All persons in want of Furnishing Good should make a note that at SEGUIN & CHARLEBOIS's, 706 and 708 Montgomery street, can be found the largest and cheapest assortment of goods in that line in the city. Star shirts of the best quality for $1 50; woolen overshirts, drawers, undershirts, half-hose, handkerchiefs, at prices below the lowest in the city. 706 and 708 Montgomery street, one door from Washington, east side. An Old Burton Theatre Bill.

Old Theatre bills, premising the company a good one, always recall most pleasant reminiscences to old theatre-goers, and bring back fresh recollections of the days when the mind was keenly susceptible to the enjoyments of dramatic performances. The company at Burton's theatre, New York, in 1849, was a good one, and the mere list of names in the following bill will recall to some of our readers, at least, many personal memories of their dramatic triumphs. Through the kindness of Mr. Frank Rea, who was a member of Burton's Theatre for the season of 1849, we are enabled to present to our readers the following bill of the evening of July 14th 1849:

BURTON'S THEATRE,

To give additional effect to the Tragedy, an entire new set of Dresses will be supplied by the celebrated Costumer, Mr. J. G. Taylor.

A capacious Windsail will be placed in the Theatre, rendering the building delightfully cool and pleasant.

Prices to theatres have advanced double since that performance was given, and salaries in a greater ratio. Twenty-two years have worked great changes, even in this little company. Fourteen out of the twenty-two persons enumerated in the above programme have since made their exit from life's stage. William E. Burton, the celebrated comedian, died in New York, in 1860. Fanny Wallack an actress of fine culture and natural abilities, sister to Lester Wallack, died in Scotland. Charles Moorhouse, her husband, also died in Scotland. W. B. Chapman, for many years on the California stage, died a few years ago in Europe, where he had gone for medical treatment. Mrs. Hield died in New Jersey. Mary Taylor "our Mary," so great a favorite with the New Yorkers, died in New York in 1866. George Loder, the composer, then musical director of the company, years afterward went to Australia as conductor of the Lyster Opera Troupe, where he died in 1869. J. C. Barnet, the treasurer, and R. Mathews, H. McDouall, Charles Gallot, N. Lewis, Thompson and Milot are all dead.

Of the living, John Brougham, the veteran actor and author is residing in New York. Charles Pope and J. K. Mortimer have occupied for years prominent positions on the stage in various cities of the Union. Mr. Pope twice visited California in the early days; and Mr. Mortimer is acknowledged to be one of the best stage gentlemen in the profession. Frank Rea, known as "the best preserved man on the stage," is a resident of this city. James Martin and Lyonel Bernard are engaged in Mercantile pursuits in New York. James Dowling who did double duty as Priest and Second Actor on this occasion is now stage manager of the Bella Union. Mr. Dowling has resided in this city for some twenty years, and is well known to everyone in the profession here. Miss Flynn, who played the Player Queen—now Mrs. McDouall—was a sister of Tom Flynn, the Irish comedian, and is now a member of the company at Booth's Theatre, New York, engaged for old lady parts.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—E. T. Stetson was complimenced by a full house on the occasion of his benefit last night. The wonderfully taking play of "The Red Pocket-Book," went off splendidly, and the applause was loud and frequent. This piece will be played at the matinee to-day, this evening and to-morrow evening. An extra night may be given on Monday, in order to give those who have not yet seen it one more chance; but it must positively be withdrawn in a very short time to make way for "Miriam's Crime," and the new and original extravaganza of "Gossamer;" in which pieces E. T. Jackson and Miss Josey Langley will make their first appearance.

ALHAMBRA.—This afternoon, to-night and to-morrow night will be the three last occasions on which the inimitable Leon will appear at the Alhambra Theatre. Crowds will flock to this popular resort to take a last look at this wonderful impersenator of female characters, and to listen once more to the famous cat duet between him and Kelly. Billy Emerson, who sends the audience into fits of laughter nightly, will sing his best songs Harry Norman his most plaintive ballads and the performance will conclude with the very extravagant burlesque of "Frou-Frou." On Monday a number of new artists will join Emerson's Minstrels and a fresh and original programme will be performed.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—"The Romance of a Poor Young Man" was repeated last night, and played in excellent style. It will be played at the matinee to-day, and to-night the programme will consist of the same play with an Irish farce of "Paddy's Mischief." 'John Garth" will be produced on Monday, in which Charles Wheatleigh will make his re-appearance after a number of years absence, before a California audience.

BELLA UNION—To-night Miss Ella La Rue, who was formerly quite a favorite here, and has since her departure played at many of the variety theatres in the Western States, will make her reappearance in the petite farce of "Turning the Tables," supported by Lon McCarty, who will introduce an entirely new and original stump speech and Ella La Rue will also perform on the banjo, on which instrument she is said to be very clever. John Brougham's musical estravaganza of "The Corsair," altered and adapted by James Dowling, will conclude a varied enterttainment

THEATRE COMIQUE.—Cherry Belle, Magicienne, danseuse, vocalist and actress, pleases the patrons of this house, the tableaux are pretty, the acts lively, and the fun does not flag a minute from the time the curtain rises until midnight.

THE OXFORD.—Miss Amelia Dean had a bumper benefit last night, and the performance went off capitally. Charley Vincent received a hearty welcome on making his appearance in the character of Old Jeff, and gained much applause. An extra attractive bill has been prepared for to-night.

PLATT'S HALL.—On Wednesday evening a number of leading members of the dramatic profession—the profession often ahead of the churches in hearing and responding to the cry of the suffering and needy—will give an entertainment at Platt's Hall for the benefit of Mrs. Ernst and her destitute children, and the noble Emil Roussey, who has sacrificed his life it is feared by saving numbers of his fellow-creatures from a watery grave. The following have volunteered for the occasion: John McCullough, Joseph Raynor, Henry Edwards, Charles Vivian, H. Sinclair, H. H. Gardiner, Owen Marlowe, Prof. Plummer, James Neill, J. Davis, J. S. Swan, Mrs. Marriner, Mrs. Owen Marlowe, Miss Dingeon, Mrs. H. Sinclair, and the Sisters Les Petites Darlings.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—To go to bed on beautiful moonlight nights such as people can, if they choose, enjoy at present, shows a want of appreciation of "the finest climate in the world." Don't go to bed, but hire a fine team, wrap yourself up in a buffalo robe, and spin along the road to Capt. Foster's famous hostelry, gaze on the ocean by moonlight, and then enjoy a cozy little supper prepared by the Captain's famous chef de cuisine. This is the way to enjoy life. Go to the Cliff House by moonlight.

THE LAEMLEIN SISTERS—These accomplished pianists have returned to San Francisco after a tour through the Eastern States, during which they won golden opinions from all sorts of people and forced even critical Boston to acknowledge their talent. A testimonial concert will be given as a welcome home at Platt's Hall on Tuesday evening, when the sisters will appear assisted by Miss Helen C. Dingeon, Gustave Heinrichs, and the quartette of the Musical Institute. The fine programme to be performed may possess by referring to another column.

ACCIDENT TO JAMES COOKE.—We learn by letter received by Mr. Astredo that Mr. Cooke, so long connected with Wilson's and other circuses on this coast as clown, broke his ankle at Savannah (Ga.) on January 2d. After turning a leaping somersault over a number of horses he alighted with one foot off the mattress, with such force as to break his ankle. Mr. Cooke was forced by this accident to relinquish his engagement and return to New York.

"JOHN GARTH."—On Monday night John Brougham's latest production, "John Garth," which is meeting with tremendous success at Wallack's, New York, as may be seen by referring to our summary of New York news in another column, will be produced at the California Theatre, and the ever-popular Charles Wheatleigh, who has always catered so well to the taste of the theatre goers of San Francisco, will make his re-appearance before them.

"GOSSAMER."—This is the title of a new and original musical fairy extravaganza by J. H. Dohrmann, leader of the orchestra at the Metropolitan Theatre. Wilkins, the talented scenic artist, has been at work for some time past on beautiful and elaborate scenery for this play which will be produced with Miss Josie Langley in the leading role and a full corps de ballet at the Metropolitan Theatre sometime next week.

THE GARRICK DRAMATIC CLUB.—On Thursday evening the Garrick Dramatic Club was organized by the election of the following officers:

President, W. S. Edwards; Vice President, A. A. Wheeler; Secretary, Edward A. Abell; Treasurer, Harry Olmstead; Stage Manager, S. D. Sullivan; Directors, J. Allen and S. H. Daniels.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

A CRITIC AT FAULT.—The "local" of the Call who was sent to report a raffle for the benefit of St. Ignatius College on Thursday night must needs try his pen at musical criticism and a nice mess he makes of it. After puffing the lady vocalists he says:

The violin solo was the most indifferent performance of the evening. We have never heard the "Carnival of Venice" played so badly in public before. But the performer was encored shewing that the audience was in the best of humor.

J. F. Spaulding was the violinist who played the piece referred to, having volunteered for the occasion. Under any circumstances it is bad taste to criticise an artiste when he volunteers for a charitable purpose; in this case there is apparent malice. Mr. Spaulding has many times played the "Carnival of Venice" in this city and always played it well; we do not believe he played it badly on this occasion. He was encored which was sufficient proof that he pleased the audience. It is a mean act to endeavor to injure the professional reputation of a musician and we trust that the Call's critical comments were an error of judgment, and not instigated by malice.

OPERA RUMORS.—Bianchi and troupe are trying to effect arrangements to give a short season of Italian opera at the Opera House during the forepart of February. Carl Formes, the grand, has signified his intention of bringing his troupe on early in the Summer, to give a season of Italian opera. He has an agent in this city canvassing the probable cost and results of the season. Madame Silly ("La Perichole,") wrote some time ago from Paris that she intended to bring a Parisian opera bouffe troupe on to New York in the Spring, and give a Summer season in San Francisco. M'lle Aimee, the fascinating, also has her eye on San Francisco for a Summer season with her opera bouffe troupe. M. Noe, one of the members of the troupe, writes on to a friend here that Aimee contemplates coming here in the Summer, but has not settled positively about it. It would be hard luck indeed if we didn't get one or two opera seasons out of so many proffered ones.

SNOWED IN.—The new people, spoken of in another column, as engaged in New York for the Alhambra Theatre, are snowed in, en route for this city, somewhere on top of the Rocky Mountains; and are probably sitting around a stove in some railroad car this fine morning toasting their shins, with the thermometer outside ranging some twenty degrees below zero, and chafing in spirit at their delay. It is lucky that the imperious Maguire remained in New York and did not come on with the party, or he would have probably frozen half their feet off ere this in trying to express them through ahead of the train on snow shoes. We can wait, and console ourselves with the idea that they will come on here when they get thawed out, and thaw out when they get here.

COGILL & COOPER'S MINSTRELS.—A company of minstrels has been formed under the above title. It comprises Cogill and Cooper, song and dance men; Geo. H. Foster, late of Emerson's Minstrels at the Alhambra Theatre, Ethiopian comedian; Harry Howard, banjoist, interlocutor and Ethiopian comedian; M'lle Forrestelle, the famous contortionist and variety performer; Hank Dobson and a company of musicians. The troupe started for Los Angeles by steamer yesterday, and will open at La Merced Theatre.

"DIVORCE"—This play is not among the number of new and popular plays which Charles Wheatleigh has brought. The San Francisco public can see it in about six weeks when Lawrence Barrett will arrive and make his appearance in this piece at the California Theatre.

T. E. JACKSON.—During the coming week T. E. Jackson, low comedian and character actor, will make his first appearance at the Metropolitan Theatre in one of Craven's charming domestic dramas entitled "Miriam's Crime."

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

OAKLAND.—Professor Plummer gave readings at Brayton Hall on Thursday evening. Some people in Oakland want more lively amusement than readings and lectures as the following which appeared in the Transcript of the 25th shows: "MR. EDITOR:—In your issue of last Saturday an article on a dramatic society in this city was published. We will inform the writer and the public in general that there is a dramatic association in this city. The company consists of old star performers and among the number is Mr. Owens of the Old Bowery Theatre in New York City, and who is now a resident of Oakland. In the first place there is no hall in this city suitable for a first class performance. Brayton's Hall is a very good one but the stage is not large enough, and the next thing a larger gallery is needed. The new Market Hall on Sixth street is preferable—but can be improved. Now why cannot some of our leading citizens build a theatre say as large as the Alhambra in San Francisco. If that can be done we will lease it from the parties, and give three exhibitions every week."

VALLEJO.—The Recorder of the 24th says: "The complimentary benefit tendered the bell-ringers last evening by our citizens was hardly a paying house although better than former ones. Their music was excellent and delightful to hear."

SACRAMENTO—At the Metropolitan Theatre, on Monday, "Ingomar," and the farce of "Mr. and Mrs. White," constituted the entertainment. On Tuesday, Mrs. F. M Bates appeared in "Camille," and on Wednesday, "The Last Days of Pompeii, or, the Witch of Vesuvius," was produced with new scenery and effects, including the eruption of Mount Vesuvius. James Proctor played Arbaces, Mrs. F. M. Bates Lydia, the blind girl, and Mrs. Stewart the Witch. This play will be performed at the matinee to-day, and until further notice. A concert was given at Turn Verein Hall on Tuesday Evening by Miss Moran and Miss Brissell, blind vocalists, and local talent. The Varieties was open with a joint stock company. Edgar, and Ethel Stanley, Mary Guabaldi, Johnny Campbell and others.

VIRGINIA CITY, NEV.—The Purdy, Scott, and Fostelle Minstrels, comprising as well as the three above mentioned, Frank Jones, Arthur Stanley, Charles Baker, Phillip Boam and a full band of musicians, made their first appearance at Piper's Opera House on Thursday evening. The company is a good one, and should play a good week's engagement. Mat. Leland is agent for the troupe.

SALT LAKE.—The talented juvenile tragedienne, Miss Rose Evans, took a benefit on the 19th, and appeared as Hamlet, Queen Elizabeth and Mrs. Honeyton, Juliet, and Leah, in acts from the four first named plays and in the comedietta of "A Happy Pair." Mr. M. Blumenthal, her agent, who is also an actor, played Mr. Honeyton. On the 20th "Lady Audley's Secret," and on the 23d "Court and Stage" was played. Miss Rose Evans will leave for San Francisco on or about the 30th.

RENO, NEV.—The Journal of the 20th has the following. "A number of our young men have organized themselves into a company for the purpose of giving concerts during the Winter. We know there is local talent enough here to make such performances attractive. The first concert will be given one week from next Monday, at Dyer's Theatre."

LOS ANGELES.—The only amusement the amiable Los Angeles people have had of late has been tarring and feathering a doctor. Cogill & Cooper's Minstrels will shortly open La Merced Theatre and try the power of music to soothe their savage breasts.

CHEYENNE, WYOMING.—Mr. McDaniel has lately made great improvements in his theatre. A Cheyenne paper says:

And this is what he has done. During the last two months he has raised the front of his whole building, 10 feet long, some 10 feet, and built a fine room 50 ft. x bar, and has added to the place a room 22 feet by 70. Passing into the centre of the establishment from the front, you enter the barroom which is 26 by 40 feet, with ceiling 12 feet high. Leaving the barroom, we passed into the hall of the Museum, which is 22 by 70 feet, with ceiling 12 feet high. This room has been fitted up for this special purpose, and has a private entrance from the street for ladies and children. Here we see an endless variety of curiosities, consisting of birds, animals, reptiles, and more than 1,500 elegant scenes, painted from natural scenery, of both the old and new world. We next pass into the theatre, where we find it has undergone a thorough renovating and will now seat 450 persons with perfect ease. The entrance from the street is very much improved and enlarged so that a crowd can make their way out in a very short time. The hall is now 22 by 70 feet, with ceiling 16 feet high, and is a very comfortable cozy place. All first class troupes passing through the country will be offered extra inducements to stop, so that our people may have an opportunity to witness the best amusements of the day. We hope all will patronize McDaniel as he is a great success, a great benefit to our city and deserves to be encouraged.

.....The Nathan troupe opened the 8th and played to such good business through the week, that Mr. McDaniel on the 15th reengaged them for another week.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York at latest dates "Julius Cæsar" was still running at Booth's.....The Spirit of the Times says:

"John Garth" is still the lion at Wallack's Theatre. Notably well presented in all respects, he can but receive respect and admiration. It is creditable to the taste of this community that so good a play shou'd be so well appreciated.

....."No Thoroughfare," with W. J. Florence as Jules Obenreizer, is a success at the Grand Opera House.....The Black Crook" still runs at Niblo's Garden..... "Divorce" at Fifth Avenue.....James Steele Mackaye, a pupil of Delsarte, took the St. James's Theatre and made his debut with his pupil, Miss Griswold, on the 8th. The play was "Micaldi," a dramatization of a story by Washington Allston. The Tribune thus speaks of the manner in which the dramatizer has done his work:

Worse fustian than he has thrown together in the illustration of this subject it has never been our lot to encounter. The play is totally devoid of action, and consists of nothing more than a series of interviews, usually between two persons, and usually nearly always accompanied by a torrent of talk; and the substance of it is always commonplace. A young man and a young woman love each other, and are married. Another young man interrupts their bliss, and by adroit duplicity, drives them to unforeseen and tragic woe. That is the whole matter, and no one needs to be told that it is the iteration of dullness.

Mr. Mackaye is said to have acted well, but he did not create a sensation, and the houses on the succeeding nights were very thin....."Shoo-Fly" and the burlesque of "The Black Brigands" were the attractions offered by Bryant's Minstrels..... The San Francisco Minstrels were running "Nilsson, the Black Nightingale."....."Humpty D. was running at the Olympic. The Carroll boys had appeared and failed to make a hit in song and dance business; little Jennie Yeamans was also in the piece.....Johnny Thompson, the "Lively Fraud," was to appear at Wood's Museum on the 22d.....James Collins and Martha Wren were at Tony Pastor's. At this house ladies are admitted free on Friday nights when accompanied by gentlemen.....Davies, the ventriloquist and the Lauri family were at the Union Square Theatre..... The Theatre Comique had a ventriloquist, called Hilton, who presented talking heads.....The Thirty-fourth-street Theatre has come to grief. Mr. Ranton, owner of the building, who lives in New Jersey, attempted on the 4th to seize it with a squad of New Jersey deputy sheriffs, for nonpayment of rent from Wm. H. Smith, the lessee and manager. Smith had provided himself with a number of men, who successfully defended the house on that occasion, but on the 5th his force was dislodged by the augmented squad of Ranton, and the house was closed. Smith owed $1,690 to the company, including $230 to the orchestra. Ranton talks of reopening on the 23d, with Harry Leslie as manager, but the matter is not yet settled. The building was erected as a market, but being unsuccessful as such, Smith, who kept an eating-house in the basement, suggested its alteration into a variety theatre, and offered to run it .....Charles Mathews reappeared at the Brooklyn Theatre on the 16th.....Marion Mordaunt appeared at the Park Theatre on the 15th in a new play.

Mrs. John Wood and Burlesque Troupe, engaged for Niblo's, sail from England on the 31st. Mark Smith has been engaged to play Powhatan in "Pocahontas" with Mrs. Wood.

Bandmann and Creswick opened at Wood's, Cincinnati, 22d, for two weeks.

John W. Ward, with "Through by Daylight," opened at the Bowery, New York, 15th, for one week; thence to Richmond 22d.

The New York Mercury says:

W. S. Higgins, author of "Out of the Fire," desires to contradict a report that the piece was dramatized from a weekly. Mr. Higgins claims that he spun it entirely out of his own head. The slaughter of the bedbug is a big sensation.

Edwin Booth has purchased the right for this country of Watts Phillips's comedy-drama, "On the Jury," now successfully performing at the Princess's, London. His business Manager, Mr. Macgonigle, advertises to sell the right to perform it throughout the Union.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers commenced at Houston, Tex., on the 15th for one week.

Ettie Henderson was at Toronto on the 8th, in a new play called "Fay, the Juggler's Daughter."

The Seventh-street Theatre, Phil., opened on the 8th, under the management of W. H. Smith. Company—Robert Craig, stage-manager and comedian; Joseph Barrett, Harry Rich, J. P. Louden, Kemble, Harkinson, Edwards, and Williams, and the Misses Emma Grattan, Julia Mornington, Lizzie Melville, Eugenie Stuart and others. The opening programme Craig's burlesque of "Faust and Marguerite," "The Widow's Victim," and "The Spitfire."

Ella Wesner closed her five week's engagement at the Theatre Comique on the 20th, and opens in Boston on the 22d, for three weeks. Thence to Philadelphia Varieties, Feb. 12th for two weeks: National Theatre, Cincinnati, 25th, two weeks; returns to New York, April 8th, for a few weeks and she starts out for four months' with Tony Pastor's Troupe from this city.

Lotta was at New Orleans on the 22d.

Lucille Western opened at St. Louis on the 22d.

C. W. Couldock played on the 15th at Troy.

Oliver Doud Byron is engaged to play at Wood's Cincinnati on the 22d prox.

Johnny Allen has associated with him in "Schneider," Little Mac, formerly of Bryant's Minstrels, and opens in Rochester on the 29th. Johnny Allen is securing through Col. Brown a full dramatic company for a travelling tour of four months Geo. Mitchell, heavy man; Mary Stevens and Alice Harrison will be with him. Commences for eight weeks at the Olympic, St. Louis, with Spaulding, Bidwell and Pope on their Southern circuit. The repertoire will comprise "Schneider," "Holtz' Farm" and "Nobody's Home."

Quite an excitement was caused in Mobile, Ala., on the 8th, by an attempt of Manager F. S. Keller to cowhide the local reporter of the Tribune. The affair grew out of an article published in that paper running down the management. From all accounts neither got the best of it, the former getting hit over the head with a loaded cane, and the latter receiving a couple of cracks over the back with a cowhide.

The Yeddo Japs, with the wonderful Gangero, were traveling in the West.

The New York Mercury chronicles the doings of Thomas Maguire and Billy Emerson in the East as follows:

Thomas Maguire, the pioneer manager of California, has been at the East for the last two weeks in search of talent for his minstrel band in San Francisco and for his Opera House in that city. Last week, in company with T. Allston Brown, he visited Philadelphia to look up attractions. While there Colonel Brown secured him J. H. Milburn, the comic vocalist, who starts on the 14th for a six months' stay in California. On the 21st Henry Stanwood, banjoist, also leaves that city for a six months' engagement under Mr. Maguire, and Billy Rice, end-man, will leave 15th. Charles Heywood, female impersonator, starts on the 21st. Add Ryman and Bob Hart also start in about two weeks; Sheridan and Mack are also engaged. Billy Emerson, who came here with Maguire, returned to California on the 8th, and Maguire was to leave 13th.

Charley Howard is at Fox's American Theatre, Philadelphia, for a four week's engagement. He is to leave on the 5th prox. for Trimble's Varieties Pittsburgh.

Wootten & Haight's Circus was at Charleston, S. C., on the 18th. At Albany, Ga., on the 1st, a hyena was transferred to a new cage, and a collar was placed on his neck to drag him. He slipped out of it. His keeper then entered the cage to adjust it, and the hyena sprung upon him. The man screamed and the fight was for life. The man's clothes were torn in shreds, but by great efforts he prevented his flesh being lacerated. He was rescued by some of the men, who attacked the hyena with crowbars.

Neil Warner and Grace Rawlinson gave readings at Raleigh, S. C., 10th and 11th.

Kate E. Griste, wife of the business agent, Chas. B. Griste, died at Worcester, Mass., 4th, of consumption, aged 28.

A $150,000 marble opera house is to be built in Kansas City.

Skiff & Co's "Burning of Chicago" Panorama is doing the Ohio river towns with good success; thence Virginia; thence Canada.

The Quincy Opera House was sold on the 3d under a deed of trust to secure the second mortgage bonds of the O. F. & M. Building Association. It was bid in for the bondholders at $20,000. The first mortgage and accrued interest amounted to $43,830. The property cost $100,000, exclusive of land.

Lingard and company appeared at Chicago, 22d, for a two weeks' engagement. The Duke Alexis recently attended Lingard's show at Detroit, and sent him a handsome ring—amethyst set in diamonds.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in this celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

In consequence of the rush to see "The Red Pocketbook" with its beautiful scenery and thrilling mechanical effects, continuing unabated, the management will present it for a few nights longer and at an extra matinee on Wednesday afternoon. To-night James M. Hardie will appear in the character of Maurice and will, we are sure, do it full justice. M. De Folbert, will be played by H. Colton, and George Hinckley will play Durome.

Alhambra Theatre.

There was very little chance of getting into the Alhambra Theatre last week for those who went after eight o'clock. Billy Emerson's new serio-comic song, "Don't give that Name a bad Place" is even more popular than his "Seven Out." A great bill will be presented this evening. The first part will conclude with the ever-popular "Carry the News to Mary." Harry Norman and S. Holdsworth will sing favorite ballads; the Kohler Brothers will perform their silver-cornet duet; Billy Emerson will appear in his new character song, and in two roaring farces; the Reynolds Brothers will present for the first time "Golden Showers," and altogether a most lively entertainment will be given.

California Theatre.

John Brougham's drama of "John Garth," which is having a tremendously successful run at Wallack's Theatre New York, will be produced and Charles Wheatleigh, the old time California favorite, who never fails to succeed in pleasing our public, will make his first appearance on the San Francisco stage. The piece we are sure cannot be better cast at Wallack's than it is at the California Theatre; and will, we anticipate, prove as great a success here as in New York. Charles Wheatleigh appears as John Garth. "Horizon," is in preparation; new and magnificent scenery is being painted for it by Porter.

Bella Union.

Miss Ella La Rue made her appearance on Saturday evening, and met with the hearty reception a San Francisco audience always accords to old favorites on their reappearance. The farce of "Turning the Tables," went off well, Lon McCarty causing much amusment by his original stump speech, with black-board illustrations, after the style of George Francis Train. Miss La Rue gained three encores for her banjo solos, all of which were new. After a varied programme of gymnastics by Samuells and Montague, ballads by Fanny Garretson, song and dance by Marie Zoel, character songs by the versatile little Maggie Knight, fancy jig by Miss Josephine, Dutch act by J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong, fancy dance by Carrie Chapman. William Brough's capital extravaganza of "Corsair," cleverly altered, and adapted by James Dowling was presented in good style with new scenery. H. D. Thompson, the villain of the piece, did some clever burlesque acting. Carrie Chapman was a capital Corsair, Lon McCarty as the Yankey turned Turk, was very good, and Minnie Fillmore, Clara Starr, Maggie Brewer, May Leroy, Obris. Mathews, and others all performed their parts well.

The Oxford.

To-night, the combination company of male and female minstrels under the able management of Miss Amelia Dean in a very varied programme; comprising the popular ballads of the day, graceful dancing and amusing acts. "The Red Pocket-Book" will shortly be produced.

Theatre Comique.

Jake Wallace, Mike Quinn, and Johnny Kelly, are a pretty lively trio, and keep the fun alive at this place of amusement. The versatile Cherry Belle's feats of magic are very clever and the tableaux arranged by her are much applauded. The "White Statue," with M'lle Blanche as the statue and Jake Wallace as Jake, is a feature in the programme this evening.

Platt's Hall.

To-morrow evening the talented Laemlin Sisters will be the recipient of a testimonial concert at Platt's Hall. The programme appears on our first page. There will be a large and fashionable attendance. Seats may be secured to-day at the hall without extra charge.

Benefit.

A great entertainment will be given for the benefit of Mrs. Ernst and family and Emil Roussey at Platt's Hall on Wednesday evening. It will consist of the petite comedy of "A Pretty Piece of Business," characters by Messrs. Owen Marlowe, C. Vivian, Miss Sophie Edwid, Miss Imogene Van Dyke (Miss Nickinson), and Mrs. Owen Marlowe (her first appearance); third act of "Othello" in which Joseph Raynor will make his first appearance in California; a ballad by Miss Helen Dingeon; eccentric delineations by Professor Plummer; "Shamus O'Brien" by J. O. Williamson; singing and dancing by the Sisters Darling; C. Vivian in his character songs; The Quarrel Scene from "Julius Cæsar," Henry Edwards as Brutus, John McCullough as Cassius; comic song by J. Davies; "Birdie's Lament, a new ballad by Josie Abecco; a ballad by Edmund Leathes, and imitations of Chinese characters by J. Swan. The entertainment will be under the direction of R. G. Marsh. Prof. Nichols will preside at the piano. Such an entertainment as this must draw an immense house and realize a large sum for the destitute families.

E. T. Stetson.

E. T. Stetson left this morning for Salt Lake City, where he will play an engagement of two weeks, opening in "Neck and Neck."

Paris an Uncomfortable Place for Americans.

Paris Correspondence of N. Y. Evening Post.]

Paris has become a very uncomfortable place to reside in, particularly for Americans Disguise it as we may, we are as heartily disliked now by all classes of French as we were once liked. From Mr. Washburne down they make no exceptions; and if in our dealings with the trades-people they cannot cheat us, then we "have come here to rob them, to take the bread out of their months." Here is a lady, Mrs. E., who ordered some dining-room furniture and window-curtains, to be trimmed with silk velvet. It was brought home, of cotton velvet, and the curtains were so narrow that when drawn they looked as though they were ironed down. As soon as they were placed, the man handed his bill for several thousand francs, and insisted on being paid. Mrs. E. said they were not made as ordered, and he must change them before she paid him. He insulted her, and a few days after summoned her to appear, and, on her not doing so, sent seven men into her house to take an inventory. On leaving they left a man in charge, obliging her to leave every door open that he might have free access and see all that was going on. Mrs. E. is obliged to have a lawsuit, although General Reed, our Consul-General, did all he could to arrange it. Now, this is one out of several that have come to my knowledge. I do not advise any American to come here to remain. The lower classes have become very insolent. The feeling that our Legation took the Germans under their protection and sent them out of the country rankles in their breasts.

Golden Hair.

We often hear of "golden hair," in fact that is the fashionable color now, but all are not aware that human hair is worth its weight in gold. Yet it appears that Felix Pyatt, 424 Kearny street, has such an immense stock of this costly commodity on hand, that he throws it away. The following, which appeared in the Morning Call a short time ago goes to prove this:

Felix Pyatt, for throwing human hair into the street in front of his store, will appear for sentence.

Pyatt's should be a good place to buy chignons and tresses cheap, and it is.

OH! WHY SHOULD THE SPIRIT OF MORTAL BE PROUD?

Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
Like a swift, fleeting meteor, a fast-flying cloud,
A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave,
He passeth from life to his rest in the grave.

The leaves of the oak and willow shall fade,
Be scattered around and together be laid;
And the young and the old, and the low and the high,
Shall moulder to dust and together shall lie.

The infant a mother attended and loved;
The mother that infant's affection who proved;
The husband that mother and infant who blessed,
Each, all, are away to their dwellings of rest.

The hand of the king that the sceptre hath borne;
The brow of the priest that the mitre hath worn;
The eye of the sage and the heart of the brave,
Are hidden and lost in the depth of the grave.

The peasant, whose lot was to sow and to reap;
The herdsman, who climbed with his goat up the steep;
The beggar, who wandered in search of his bread
Have fled away like the grass that we tread.

So the multitude goes, like the grass of the field
That withers away, to let others succeed;
So the multitude comes, even those we behold,
To repeat every tale that has ever been told.

For we are the same our fathers have been;
We see the same sights our fathers have seen;
We drink the same stream and view the same sun,
And run the same course our fathers have run.

The thoughts we are thinking our fathers would think,
From the death we are shrinking our fathers would shrink;
To the life we are clinging they also would cling,
But it speeds for us all like a bird on the wing.

They loved, but the story we cannot unfold;
They scorned, but the heart of the haughty is cold,
They grieved, but no wail from their slumber will come;
They joyed, but the tongue of their gladness is dumb.

They died, aye! they died; we things that are now,
That walk on the turf that lies over their brow,
And make in their dwellings a transient abode,
Meet the things that they met on their pilgrimage road.

Yes, hope and despondency, pleasure and pain,
We mingle together in sunshine and rain;
And the smile and the tear, the song and the dirge,
Still follow each other, like surge upon surge.

'Tis the wink of an eye, 'tis the draught of a breath;
From the blossom of health to the paleness of death,
From the gilded saloon to the bier and the shroud,
Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?

A Woman Sold for Four Dollars.

KINGSTON, (N. Y.), January 2.—In 1867 one Hendrickson, a resident of Rochester, in this county, sold his wife Sarah to John Barnart for four dollars. A bill of sale was made out and signed, and Sarah transferred to Barnart's house, where she lived happily with her purchaser for four years. Last week, however, she eloped with Levi Townsend. Barnardt, not wishing to be thus swindled out of his property, applied to the Court for redress, and a writ of replevin was granted him by Justice Merribew. On the day set down for the trial the Justice did not appear. The case will now be moved to an adjoining town for adjudication. Eminent counsel have been engaged on both sides. Joseph H. Westbrook, late Surrogate of Ulster County, is retained by the defence, and Daniel D. Bell by Barnhart. Bell is the party who was awarded $10,000 against General John A. Dix for imprisonment in Fort Lafayette during the war.

I have carefully tested and examined your I X L Bitters, and find that they cannot fail to be beneficial as a tonic and promoter of digestion.
G. HOLLAND.

CITY AND COUNTY HOSPITAL, San Francisco June 20th, 1871.—I should judge that the I X L Bitters must be a very efficient remedy in Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and similar complaints, being composed of a number of vegetable drugs which are principally used in disease of that nature, and are of the greatest efficiency in their cure.—F. H. ENGELS, M. D., Ass't Resident Physician, Apothecary C. & C. Hospital.

STATE ASSAYER'S OFFICE, San Francisco, July 21st, 1871.—I have made a careful examination of your I X L Bitters, and have found them entirely free of deleterious mineral substances.—Yours, etc., CHAS. ALEXANDER, State Assayer.

Beware of Counterfeits! None genuine without the signature of Dr. Henley across the top of each bottle. For sale everywhere.

PRIVATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE

N.E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco. HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs. Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in the celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 year previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

SYNOPSIS OF SCENERY AND INCIDENTS.

PROLOGUE.—Anteroom at Durome's Chateau (new). The night of the 13th of February, 1774. The Banker's private party. An uninvited guest. The forged note. The gambling debt paid.

THE RED POCKET BOOK.

The family jewels. The unknown artist; the banker's bargain. "Any sacrifice but honor." The assassin's word. The Red Pocket Book.

Act I—After storm and Battle. THE GOOD SHIP MIGNONETTE in mid ocean (new). Introducing mechanical effects never before produced on any stage. A tale of love, the lieutenant and the sailor, a recipe for courage, a speck upon the sea, a vessel in distress: the recognition: the convict. Fire! Fire! Fire! The sinking ship; a brave heart in trouble; a woman true to the core, the boats and raft. TERRIBLE EXPLOSION! last of the Minerva!

Act II—Coast of Africa (new). The shipwrecked lovers; their hut on the beach; a strange visitor; the Wild Man of the Woods; an unexpected arrival; the lost ones found; the father and child; Maurice the convict; deserted: "his road is not ours;" a brave girl's resolve; the old sailor's threat; the shot. The Caravan. Tableau.

Act III—A Country Chateau (new). Arrival of the Admiral; the proposition. Helene pleads for her first love; the accepted suitor, the wanderer fallen by the wayside, true hospitality knows no distinction. THE DEAD ALIVE, a father sues for the honor of his name; two poor wounded hearts, a brave man's sacrifice, the separation; farewell forever.

Act IV—Kerreguen's mansion; the marriage fete. THE GRAND SALON, illuminated with its two hundred and fifty Wax Tapers; the Bridal Gift, the first gleam of light; the unexpected guest, the odious contract signed, Death the price; the gleam of light bursts into day; the family motto—"Heaven alone can save us;" a startling revelation; the madman.

Act V—Gardens of the Chateau by moonlight (new). The pavilion; the fountain, Faustin and his bottle; "when the wine is in the wits are out;" the miser and his godson; master and dupe; diamond cut diamond; Folbert's desperate game—"life the stake," the star of love

Queer Law, Queer Lawyers.

Judge Hardy told the jury that if Ike Brokaw thought Evans was guilty with his wife he had a right to shoot him down. There would have been no necessity for Othello to commit suicide had Judge Hardy lived in his times. He would have cleared him of the murder of Desdemona, for he certainly thought she was guilty when he smothered her. Both Judge Hardy and Judge Campbell told the jurymen, sworn to find a verdict according to law and evidence, that in this case they must ignore the law altogether and thus perjure themselves, they must be guided by their feelings entirely. They said it was plain that Ike Brokaw was guilty of murder, it was proved that he deliberately shot down Bob Evans without giving him a chance for his life, but they must not heed this, they must say that he was "not guilty." If this "higher law" is to be followed, we do not see what use there can be for Judge Hardy and Judge Campbell. All the law a man needs he can carry in his breeches pocket in the shape of a self-cocking revolver.

They Think it Funny.

Several of the Japanese in Amherst go to the First Church Sunday School, but their teacher finds it difficult to interest them in sacred history without pictures representing the lesson, and sometimes they fail to get the exact meaning. For example, they consider the destruction of Pharaoh and the Egyptians in the Red Sea, as shown in the picture, to be a huge joke on the Egyptians. One of them said the other day, "Your mythology is even funnier than ours which the common people believe to be actually true." That young man should read Colenso.

Mistaken.

An exchange says; "Macbeth is supposed to have been deeply in debt, for in one of his soliloquies he disposes of no less than three duns. "If it were done when 'tis done t'were well it were done quickly.'" We thought everyone knew that Macbeth when he uttered that soliloquy referred to he manner in which he was about to cook Duncan's goose.

Marriage in High Life.

M. Loustalot, a confectioner in Vincennes is about to marry Princess Marmalade, second daughter of the late Emperor Soulouque. A confectioner to marry Princess Marmalade! It seems like a fairy tale!

Cause Enough.

A young lady requested to be released from her marriage engagement, on the ground that when she contracted it, she believed her lover to be a duck, but has since found him to be a goose.

Change the Name.

An exchange says: "Philadelphia makes more pills than any other city." All right. Let's call it Pillade'phia.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest posts in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 537 Bush street above the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of ep...es.

Go and See Them.

Theatrical Licenses.

Many of the towns in the interior are sadly off for amusements. Their inhabitants do not have a chance to see a play or enjoy a concert from one year's end to another. One reason for this state of things is that traveling in the interior is so expensive that a first class company starting from San Francisco, requires a considerable sum in the treasury, and seldom returns with even its original capital; all having been consumed in traveling expenses. Another check to traveling companies, is the unreasonable and exorbitant license they have to pay. Every theatre has to pay a State license of $600 a year, and when to this is added the city license, amounting to from $5 to $6 per night, the sum the actors have to pay for the privilege of performing, is absurdly large. We hope that the present enlightened legislature will do something for the drama in California, by passing an act reducing the State theatrical license to a reasonable sum. The amusement of the people, is in many countries thought of so much consequence that a large sum of money is annually set aside by their respective governments for that purpose. It is too much to expect the legislature of such a community of materialists as the people of of California to vote money for the encouragement of the arts of music, painting, or the drama—that will come some years hence—but we may hope that they will make a change in the oppressive law which deprives the citizens of many places in the interior of the State of a rational, improving and intellectual class of entertainments. Will not some member of either the Assembly or the Senate stand up as the Champion of the Drama, and call for a revision of the theatrical License Act?

Very Unkind.

The envious editor of the Petaluma Crescent says: "The editor of the Salinas Standard has taken to writing original stories for that paper. Here is an extract from "Don Herlands," his last literary effort. "Immediately collocating my scattered thoughts, and cooling my heated and bewildered brain in the gentle evening zepyyr that fanned my curly and ambrosial locks, I perambulated homeward, resolved that I would rectify the mistake on the morrow." In the preface to the story he remarks that he is not afraid of good and true critics. We should think not. If we should ever become so thoroughly idiotic as to pen anything like the above, we wouldn't fear the Devil." That's unkind. Perhaps the Salinas people like that sort of thing. There are people in San Francisco who like the same style of writing in Sunday's Alta.

A Duck of a Doctor.

"Dr. Smoothman is quite a ladies' doctor," observed Mrs. Faintaway. "So nice! said a lady. "Never prescribes nasty things,' said another. "Oh he's a duck!" cried an interesting young matron. "You mean a quack," growled her husband who had just seen the doctor's bill for one year's attendance.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

A very large and fashionable audience assembled last night to witness the production of Brougham's new play of "John Garth" and welcome Chas. Wheatleigh. We have no hesitation in pronouncing "John Garth" by far the best play John Brougham has ever written. The plot is as follows: John Garth, a man of very decided character and restless disposition, quits his estate in England on the death of his wife, leaving his daughter, a child of three years old, in the care of his sister, to whom he makes over all his property. He goes to South America and becomes President of a small republic, gets into trouble and is imprisoned for many years. At the end of twenty years he returns and finds that a pettifogging attorney, Gregory Deerham, has obtained possession of his property by marrying his sister and has entirely alienated the affection of his child, Minnie, whose name he has changed to Minnie Deerham. During his absence lying newspaper reports of his acts of cruelty and many crimes in South America have been read to his daughter until she believes her father to be a villain, the only palliation for whose crimes is that he was even before leaving home known as "Mad Garth." He meets Gregory Deerham and demands an interview with his child; he is introduced to her under the name of Colonel Johns and finds her mind so poisoned against her father that he has no hope of gaining her affection. Hester Deerham, Gregory's sister, believes all the ill she has heard of John Garth and warns his daughter against him. Minnie is in love with a young adventurer named Antonio Barrett, who has every desire to do what is right, but is continually pursued by his evil genius, Paulo Barretti, his father, who is thoroughly vicious, and who it appears is a deadly enemy of John Garth, and had been the cause of his imprisonment. He comes to his son to ask him for money, hears that John Garth has returned and lays a trap by which he hopes to take his life. He raises a draw-bridge over the moat round Walston Manor, but instead of John Garth, Gregory Deerham falls in and receives mortal injuries. John Garth is accused by Hester Deerham of having raised the bridge for the purpose of causing the death of Gregory Deerham, and the first act closes. In the second act Gregory Deerham, dying, makes confession of all the wrongs he has inflicted on John Garth and shows his will made in favor of Minnie Garth. John Garth burns this will thus making the property come to Hester Deerham. John Garth is tried and acquitted of the murder of Gregory Deerham, but Hester still believes him guilty and half persuades his daughter, over whom she has great influence, to believe so likewise. John Garth asks his Minnie to decide whether she will stay with Hester Deerham or go with him; she fears him and clings to Hester; he renounces her forever and sets off on a journey alone, broken-hearted and without hope. No sooner is he gone than Hester finds a letter from her late brother in which he confesses all and shows the character of the man whom she has wronged. Hester sends to the railway station to stop Garth, but he says it is too late and returns her letter unanswered. In this act occurs a misunderstanding between the lovers, Antonio Barretti and Minnie Garth. Antonio having confessed that he loved Hester before offering his hand to Minnie, she suspects him of mercenary motives; the complication is increased by the appearance of the father on the scene, and then trouble commences. In the fourth act we find Antonio, Hester and Minnie in a lodging house in Paris, having nursed Garth through a dangerous sickness. Paulo Barretti again makes his appearance, having escaped from the galleys, to which he was sentenced for life for homicide. He obtains money of his son and leaves, having first ascertained that his enemy, John Garth, is in the house. Antonio tries to induce John Garth to be reconciled to his daughter, he refuses, she and Hester enter, he disowns his daughter, but is finally softened by seeing that she is ill from long watching. He gives Hester his hand and the reconciliation is complete. Antonio Barretti, tired out, goes to sleep on the sofa; Paulo Barretti enters by the window, steals up to the sofa, supposes John Garth is there, and raises his knife to strike, when he is seized by John Garth, who enters from another room. Tableau and drop. In the last act, which takes us back to Abergavenny, the misunderstanding between Minnie and Antonio is cleared up, a misunderstanding between Hester and John Garth is happily solved by matrimony, and the curtain drops on a scene of perfect happiness. Charles Wheatleigh's acting as John Garth was quietly intense, delightfully natural, and his impersonation was strongly individualized. Every point in the character was brought out in the neatest manner imaginable and without the slightest effort. Miss Ellie Wilton played the character of Minnie Garth charmingly, and quite succeeded in gaining the sympathies of the audience; she was just a little too deliberate in her style of acting sometimes, but altogether read and acted the part capitally. Miss May Howard quite realized the character of the determined Hester Deerham, and brought out the strong points of the character very skilfully. W. A. Mestayer made a prodigious hit as Paulo Barretti, the scoundrelly father of Antonio, who prides himself on always being happy; his hard laugh was particularly effective, and altogether his impersonation of the character was a very clever bit of acting. E. J. Buckley, who had the rather spooney part of Antonio Barretti, deserves credit for his make-up and the use he made of his eyes, as well as the careful manner in which he read and acted his part. Some of the lines he had to speak were desperately spooney, and the gallery would not take them seriously, though the ladies in the dress circle who knew what stuff love-sick young men talk thought Mr. Buckley made love very nicely. Henry Edwards filled the part of Antonio Barretti very well and was good in the dying scene. Mrs. C. R. Saunders played the small part of the grasping French landlady very neatly, and Fred Franks spoke his few lines in the part of Bartholomew with telling effect. The scenery was very good, the first scene, representing the sea coast, being especially fine. "John Garth" is an intensely interesting play, Charles Wheatleigh is a refreshingly natural actor, and the entertainment now presented at the California Theatre will draw our best citizens to see it.

Alhambra Theatre.

Billy Emerson, Harry Norman, S. Holdsworth George Reynolds, and others sing in the first part. Emerson sings his new character songs including: "Don't give the name a bad place," and is never let off under four or five encores, a number of amusing acts are performed. The Kohler Brothers delight their hearers with a silver cornet duet, George and Charles Reynolds have made a great hit in their "Golden Showers," and the entertainment at this popular theatre pleases all tastes.

Metropolitan Theatre.

Another large audience witnessed the performance of "The Red Pocket-Book," last night, and enjoyed it heartily. The substitution of James M. Hardy for E. T. Stetson for the role of Maurice, was an improvement, for this reason: Mr. Stetson was too crushed, altogether, and made Maurice sometimes rather a bore. Mr. Hardie, while he showed a full appreciation of the wrongs he suffered, didn't make the audience suffer so much he didn't whine; was more manly, and, altogether gave a fine representation of the part. Harry Colton was quite at home in the role of M. De Folbert, and played it well; while George Hinckley did well as Duroma. "The Red Pocket-Book" can be played but a few nights longer; it will be presented at the matinee to-morrow.

Bella Union.

Ella La Rue in an amusing act, and new and original banjo solo. Maggie Knight in character songs, and a host of others, in a varied programme, give general satisfaction. The capital extravaganza of "The Corsair," concludes the evening's entertainment.

Theatre Comique.

Cherry Belle, Mike Quinn, Johnny Kelly, Jake Wallace and many others appear nightly in attractive specialties. Songs, dances, acts, tableaux follow one another, in rapid succession; and the audience are kept constantly amused.

The Oxford.

Miss Amelia Dean and her troupe of female minstrels, Charley Vincent the web-foot minstrel with a new budget of song and jokes, Lizzie Harmon, Fanny [illegible] and a host of others will appear to-[illegible] The burlesque of "The Red Pocket-Book," is nearly ready for production.

Platt's Hall.

This evening the Laemlein Sisters will be the recipients of a complimentary testimonial concert at Platt's Hall. These talented pianists will perform several pieces. The popular, and charming vocalist Miss Helen Dingeon will sing in both the first and second part. Gustave Heinrichs, and a quartet from the San Francisco Musical Institute will also assist. A large and fashionable attendance may be confidently expected.

Calico Ball.

We call attention to the prospectus of a grand Calico Ball, in aid of that most estimable charity, "The Ladies United Aid Society," which will take place at Platt's Hall on Monday evening next. It will be given under the patronage of the leaders of society in San Francisco, and must prove a success.

The Next Sensation.

It is said that there is to be a complimentary benefit tendered the authors of "The Red Pocket-Book" at the Metropolitan Theatre shortly, when quite a number of amateurs, members of the Board of Brokers and other friends of one of them, will volunteer a first appearance on any stage for that occasion? Who are they?

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Golden Hair.

We often hear of "golden hair," in fact that is the fashionable color now, but all are not aware that human hair is worth its weight in gold. Yet it appears that Felix Pyatt, 424 Kearny street, has such an immense stock of this costly commodity on hand, that he throws it away. The following, which appeared in the Morning Call a short time ago goes to prove this:

Felix Pyatt, for throwing human hair into the street in front of his store, will appear for sentence.

Pyatt's should be a good place to buy chignons and tresses cheap, and it is.

How Did He Know?

The reporter of the Bulletin speaking of Ike Brokaw, who murdered Bob Evans, (in the second degree) says that (when the verdict was brought in, "several of his friends of whom he had many present, felt their eyes moisten with sympathy." How the deuce did that reporter know how Brokaw's friends eyes felt? This is bosh. Too great a bosh to be allowed in a respectable paper like the Bulletin. "Felt their eyes moisten," forsooth. If he was going to be hanged, we suppose they would have blubbered.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his quiet life to quiet-life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

Cocos Island Expedition.

There is an old proverb "let those laugh that win." The shareholders in the Pacific Hidden Treasure Company have been laughed at but their persistence may meet with its reward and then they will be able to laugh right merrily. $65,000,000 is worth trying for. The next expedition to Cocos Island will start under much more favorable auspices than any of its predecessors. The following from the Alta of Sunday seems to show that the company are guided by far more certain information than spiritualistic revelations or death-bed confessions of expiring pirates:

Some of the gentlemen connected with the Pacific Hidden Treasure Company called upon us yesterday and represented that as their project of dispatching an expedition to search for the treasure concealed on Cocos Island, had been treated by a part of the press as a visionary scheme, they desired us to state to the public some of the reasons which have induced them to embark in the enterprise. They say that there are two persons in the city who declare that they know from personal knowledge the exact spot on Cocos Island where the treasure—amounting to some $65,000,000, for which so much search has been made—lies buried and concealed, having been with the parties who concealed it, and that these persons have agreed to accompany the present expedition and point out the spot. The two persons referred to are advanced in life and have always borne, both here and elsewhere good characters. They are of more than ordinary intelligence, and disclaim any connection with spiritualism, and will receive nothing and ask nothing unless the treasure is discovered.

Few doubt that the treasure is there, and there seems now to be a reasonable prospect of unearthing it. The stock of the company is nearly all disposed of.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omelettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street above the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of epicures.

A Good Old Musical Joke.

P. T. Barnum's band, in its palmy days was celebrated for doing the worst playing ever heard. Some one asked Barnum why he did not get a better. He said the idea was to have them play so badly, that everybody will pay a quarter to get inside where they could not hear the music (?). It was also profitable, as the following anecdote goes to show. One morning the papers contained an advertisement:

"Wanted—A trombone player for Barnum's Balcony Band. Apply between 10 and 2, at the office of the Museum."

So about 11 o'clock the door opened, and, a trombone entered and a man behind it.

"You want a trombone player?" said the new comer (the man, not the instrument)!

"Yes," said Mr. Barnum. "What is the place worth?" said the applicant. "Oh, about twenty-five dollars a week, I suppose." said Barnum. "Very well, I should like it." "All right," said Barnum. So all the week through the trombone was at his post. Then came Saturday, and Mr. Green, the trombone player, presented himself for his salary. Mr. Barnum handed him a paper on which was written:

"Mr. P. Green, "To P. T. Barnum,

"To playing tormbone on his balcony one week, 25 dols Rec'd pay't.

"Aug. 11, 1851."

Mr. Green read the bill and smiled, and then looked at Barnum. "Well," said Mr. Barnum, "it's all right, isn't it?" "Why said Green, "the price is right but you have made such a funny mistake. You make me the deptor, instead of you." "I see no mistake in that," said Barnum, you are the one that has made a mistake. You see, the case is this: There are a good many gentlemen in this city, who are fond of practicing brass instruments, but they cannot do so at home on account of the neighbor's objections. So I furnish them room on my baleony, a number of hours per day, where it does no harm, the street being so very noisy, and they pay me a small sum per week for keeping the organization full. You must have thought me green to hire and pay such an infernal poor lot of players. However, as you appear to have been honestly mistaken, you can pay me ten dollars this week, but hereafter I can make no deduction." Mr. Green did not pay the second week.

Ornithological.

An exchange says the favorite bird with a baby is "its little crow." It doesn't like to be troubled with the thrush, its parents like its first stork, and are heart broken when they listen to its sick quail and when it dies do not bewail all ostriches as much as they do it. We are not going to let any of our exchanges make worse puns than we can.

"Our Climate."

Of course everyone knows that we have the most delightful climate in the world in California, and especially in San Francisco. Its variety is endless. Spring, Summer, Autumn, and Winter come and go within 24 hours; we have broiling hot days at Christmas time, and white frosts in July. Scientific men claim that there is a larger proportion of ozone in the atmosphere at San Francisco than almost anywhere else in the world. This may be gratifying when we learn that ozone is a remedy for cholera, gout, rheumatism, and other diseases and is a life-giving principle, but it is undeniable that its existence in excess in the atmosphere of San Francisco adds considerably to the expenses of the tippler. In consequence of the preponderence of ozone San Francisco is the hardest city in the world to get tight in. A man may take twenty or thirty square drinks of good whisky in the course of an afternoon but still he is not tight, the ozone keeps him sober. The whisky in many cases never makes the drinker really tight, it does not upset his brain at night and then pass off with a night's sleep, it sticks in the system and and works away at the organic structure until the tippler is boxed up tight in his coffin. That's because there is so much ozone in the atmosphere. Comforting, isn't it?

Not Exactly.

Puffing and blowing are often considered as synonymous terms. You will discover a difference, however, if, instead of puffing a man up, you should blow him up.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

If "John Garth" does not have in San Francisco as long a run proportionately as it is having in New York, it will be no credit to our theatre-going population. It is a play of intense interest, and Charles Wheatleigh's acting is very fine. "John Garth," will be performed until further notice, and at the matinee on Saturday.

Alhambra Theatre.

Billy Emerson sings "Finnegan's Wake" in the first part, tells any number of funny stories and appears in "Carry the News to Mary;" In the interlude he plays in the capital sketch of "Dat's my Sister," sings a number of his best character songs and appears again in the farce of "Doctor Ourself." The Reynolds Brothers appear in their new "Golden Showers" and in the amusing act of "Bill Jones' Cousin;" Harry Norman and S. H. Holdsworth sing popular ballads, and a very bright and entertaining programme is performed.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The thrilling drama of "The Red Pocket Book," with its fine scenery and, wonderful mechanical effects must soon be withdrawn, therefore those who wish to take a last look at the sinking ship must go at once. It will be played at the matinee to-day and again this evening. T. E. Jackson and Miss Josie Langley will shortly appear in the drama of Miriam's Crime," and the fairy extravaganza of "Gossamer," respectively.

Bella Union.

After a capital first part, Carrie Chapman appears, in a fancy dance, Leon Samwells and Ed. Montague in their capital act of "The Brothers," Maggie Knight in "The Cure," Ella La Rue in an amusing act and in banjo solos, and others in a varied programme; terminating with Brough's clever extravaganza, "The Corsair."

The Oxford.

A great entertainment has been prepared for this evening. After the sketch of "Twice Married," in which Charles Vincent will appear supported by H. Merton, H. Nelson, Carlova, Evans, Cotton and Lowden; a new and original burlesque entitled "Our Own Red-colored Pocketbook" will be presented with new scenery and effects and the management assure us "with four live camels," besides Turks, cats, wild-men, monkeys, sailors, apes and other wild beasts. There will be lots of fun at the Oxford to-night.

Theatre Comique.

Feats of magic, by Cherry Belle, beautiful tableaux, screaming ethiopian farces, ballads, dances, banjo solos, and, a variety of entertainments, draw crowds to this popular place of amusement every night. Four hours of mirth and melody, for twenty-five cents, is cheap enough.

Platt's Hall.

A great entertainment will be given for the benefit of Mrs. Ernst and family and Emil Roussey at Platt's Hall this evening. It will consist of the pleasing petite comedy of "A Pretty Piece of Business," characters by Messrs. Owen Marlowe, C. Vivian, Miss Sophie Edwin, Miss Imogene Van Dyke (Miss Nickinson), and Mrs. Owen Marlowe (her first appearance); third act of "Othello" in which Joseph Raynor will make his first appearance in California; a ballad by Miss Helen Dingeon; eccentric delineations by Professor Plummer; "Shamus O'Brien" by J. C. Williamson: singing and dancing by the Sisters Darling; C. Vivian in his character songs; The Quarrel Scene from "Julius Cæsar," Henry Edwards as Brutus, John McCullough as Cassius; comic song by J. Davies; "Birdie's Lament, a new ballad by Josie Abecco; a ballad by Edmund Leathes, and imitations of Chinese characters by J. Swan. The entertainment will be under the direction of R. G. March. Prof. Nichols will preside at the piano. Such an entertainment as this must draw an immense house and realize a large sum for the destitute families.

The Laemlein Sister's Concert.

A very large and fashionable audience was present at Platt's Hall last night, on the occasion of the testimonial concert, tendered to the Laemlein Sisters, the accomplished young California pianists who have recently returned from the East. The Sisters received a most enthusiastic welcome; and performed in a manner which drew great applause. Their execution of "Homage to Handel," by Meschelles, was especially fine. Miss Helen C. Dingeon sang a Swiss song delightfully; and was, of course encored. Gustave Heinrich's performance on the clarionette, was much applauded; and, the concert, as a whole, was a very pleasing one.

Grace Greenwood's Last Lecture.

This accomplished writer and popular lecturer, will give her last lecture in this city to-morrow evening, at Platt's Hall. The subject chosen, will be "In Doors," which will doubtless draw a full house.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Intelligent Criticism.

Here is the Bulletin's criticism on the play of "John Garth:"

The piece is one of the best of modern dramas, and, unlike most plays of that school is interesting in plot, clever in dialogue, and affords scope for good acting.

What "school" does this remarkably intelligent "critic" refer to? The school of modern dramas? Does he not consider "The Lady of Lyons," "Money," "Ours" "Caste," "The Ticket of Leave Man," "The Octoreon" and a score or two of others, "interesting in plot. clever in dialogue, and affording good scope for acting?",

John Garth" is a proud self-containing man, of noble spirit, but after the style of such men, a misanthrope.

That is news. "Proud, self-containing," men of noble spirit, are generally misanthropes are they? If the Bulletin's criticisms on dramatic matters are published for no other purpose than to afford some young gentleman amateur an opportunity to learn to write, the sooner they are discontinued the better. First, "John Garth," which for weeks past has been the dramatic sensation of New York and with which everyone taking any interest in theatrical matters made himself familiar long ago by reading the New York papers was described in the Bulletin as a "comedy," and now, on its production, a quarter of a column of stuff like the two samples we have given is published.

Run Him Out.

The moral to the following told by the sufferer, is too apparent to mention. Young ladies will hereafter run their brothers out when gentlemen call.

I'm certain that I wished somebody would spank the young rascal. We talked of hills, mountains, vales and cataracts—I believe I said waterfalls when the boy spoke up, and said:

"Why, sister's got a trunk full of them up stairs; pa says they are made of hoss hair!"

This revelation struck terror into me, and blushes into the cheeks of my fair companion.

It began to be very apparent to me that I must be very guarded in what I said, least the boy might slip in his remarks at uncalled-for places; in fact I turned my conversation to him, and told him he ought to go home with me, and see what nice chickens we had in the country. Unluckily I mentioned a yoke of calves my brother owned. The word calves ruined all. The little one looked up and said:

"Sister's got a dozen pair of them, but she don't wear 'em only when she goes up in town of windy days.'"

"Leave the room, you unmannerly little wretch!" exclaimed Emely, "leave immediately!"

"I know what you want me to leave the room for," replied he, "you can't fool me, you want to sit on that man's lap, and kiss him like you did Bill Simmons the other day; you can't fool me, I jes tell you. Gem me some candy, like he did and I'll go. You think because you've got the Grecian bend that you're smart. Guess I know a thing or two. I'm mad at you, anyhow, because papa would have bought me a top yesterday, if it hadn't been for you gitten them curls, dog on yer! You needn't get so red in the face, cause I see the paint. There ain't no use in winkin' that glass eye of your for I ain't goin' out o' here, now that's what is the matter with the purps. I don't care if you are twenty-eight years old, you ain't no boss o' mine,"

A boy who had read of sailors heaving up anchors, wanted to know if it was sea-sickness that made them do it.

It is Perfectly Astonishing

Golden Hair.

We often hear of "golden hair," in fact that is the fashionable color now, but all are not aware that human hair is worth its weight in gold. Yet it appears that Felix Pyatt, 424 Kearny street, has such an immense stock of this costly commodity on hand, that he throws it away. The following, which appeared in the Morning Call a short time ago goes to prove this:

Felix Pyatt, for throwing human hair into the street in front of his store, will appear for sentence.

Pyatt's should be a good place to buy chignons and tresses cheap, and it is.

A Timely Present.

At this festive season, a dozen of SQUARZA's exquisitely flavored punches form a most appropriate present. The egg nog punch saves a great deal of trouble, and is compounded with great skill. His famous symposium is at 20 Liedesdorff, and is presided over by A. Bona, his worthy successor. U

BY THE FIRE.

Charley is knitting his brows o'er a book;
Maud is writing to Louis, I guess;
Papa is a-doze in his ingle-nook;
Guy and Maggie playing at chess;
And I, deft-fingered, ply needle and thread
At marriage garb for our darling Maud;
When the chestnuts bloom shall the child be wed
And Louis will take his wife abroad.

The flame of the fire mirthfully leaps
With a rustling flicker; my father's hair,
I see it plain, as he calmly sleeps,
Is streaked with silver here and there.
He fretted a little when Louis came
To ask that our little fair-faced pet
Should gird her brows with his love and name—
Well, it was scarcely strange to fret.

Guy will be asking for Maggie some day;
Charley will take him a wife, too, I think;
Ai di mi! and only last May
We never were dreaming of losing a link
Of the dear home-chain, were it even to add
Another link—how strange it appears!
Fie, child, how selfish to be sad,
And to wet little Maud's white robe with tears

Ah, next May! God knoweth alone
What parted hopes, or what new sweet ties:
Whichever it be, we shall have known
Wider and deeper sympathies.
We sit by the fire for a wee while yet,
But the players are putting away their chess;
And now the last stitch of mine is set
In my little sister's marriage dress.

Strnage.

Joseph Griffith, of Virginia City, Col., while visiting his wife's grave, recently, with his mother-in-law, and looking at the tombstone, fell dead across the mound that covered her who had gone before. There was no post-mortem and the mother-in-law was not arrested.

Ease and Luxury.

We overheard a lady say the other day "When I am rich, my dear, I am going to buy me a splendid team of horses and a Clarence—just like what they send you from the Occidental Carriage Stand when you want to take a drive." She evidently understood how to combine ease and luxury. The Occidental stand now has the very finest carriages in the State. There is a private carriage or coupee for wedding calls; the Clarences for shopping and ordinary calls and for the theatre and opera; the Landaus and splendid six-seat Beckaways for drives on the road and ordinary business. Leave your orders for either of these at the Occidental Hotel, with Frank Bouton, or at the stables, 1106 Stockton street. Careful and experienced drivers. G

PRIVATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE

N.E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital, London, nine years in Sacramento, and the last ten years in San Francisco, HAS RETURNED TO PRACTICE. After devoting 40 years of his life to professional practice, and the successful treatment of those CHRONIC DISEASES which it is here needless to name, he determined to retire from his profession, and devote the remainder of his days to quiet life enjoyment; but the constant applications from the suffering everywhere, to come to their relief, finally determined him to visit once more the scenes of his early triumphs, Lock Hospital, spend a year within its wards, and inform himself of all the new methods of treatment in their celebrated institution, and then give a few more years of his life to the alleviation of suffering humanity. He is again located at his old office, corner Jackson and Kearny streets, where for 10 years previous his practice as a SPECIALIST resulted in the cure of all cases brought under his care. The Doctor's motto is "honorable and successful treatment and moderate charges to all."

Very Thoughtful.

The Brooklyn Home Journal, published across the Bay says:

Don't forget the sparrrows when the snow covers their lunching places. A handful of crumbs will make a feast for a score.

As there is no snow round Brooklyn and sparrows don't live there, this benevolent appeal is charmingly thoughtful. If it be true that charity should begin at home, the Journal instead of being so anxious about a lot of foreign sparrows getting their lunch, had better say a good word for the poor little robins that are constantly being popped off by "sportsmen" who prowl round Brooklyn.

Well, What of It?

The following appears among the items of Oakland news published by the San Francisco press:

A beggar who applied to the Catholic priest for alms yesterday, and received it, departed, taking with him the good man's [illegible].

We hope the priest is not grumbling at this. If he is, he is forgetful of the Bible precept, "let him have thy cloak also."

Sweeping.

The Sacramento Bee evidently has not much faith in the present Legislature and the bills they are likely to pass. It says: "Governor Booth's veto of the bill granting leave of of absence to the Superintendent of Public Schools of Sutter county, was unanimously sustained by the Assembly. Good for Booth. Now treat all alike and vote the whole caboodle."

The Bulletin.

The Bulletin last evening contained ten well-written editorial articles on subjects pertaining to the welfare of California and the Pacific Coast. The Bulletin is by far the ablest conducted newspaper in California, and well deserves the position it holds—that of the leading journal on the Pacific Coast.

Cause and effect.

"Say, Jenes, what's the matter with your eye?" "Oh! nothin', only my wife said this morning, you'd better get up and light the fire. I told her to make it herself; that's all."

What's in a Name?

The Russian Count got into trouble on Friday night—was whipped by a butcher. It seems hard for a man with such a name as "Milky-wits" to keep out of trouble.

The Luxuries of Life.

The man who does not care what he eats, is not worth much as a man. The greatest poets in the world have glorified good living. The best intellects in San Francisco are nourished by the terrapin stews, artistically prepared Eastern and California oysters, oyster omlettes and other delicacies served under the able supervision of the genial Winant, and Charley Hacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloon, at the famous Pacific Oysters Saloon, No. 337 Bush street above the Alhambra. It is a favorite resort of epicures.

A few years ago a society was formed in New York for the suppression of story-tellers. Artemus Ward, Dan Bryant, Billy Florence, and men of that ilk constituted the active members. Their plan was, when a man commenced a story, to get up and saunter away, one at a time, leaving the unhappy man to complete his narration to the chairs and other furniture.

One day Dan Bryant so far forgot himself as to begin a story, forcibly brought to his remembrance by some incident of the occasion. Ward got up and sauntered out, whistling a melancholy tune.

One by one, the remainder followed suit, with troubled looks, and a sad shake of the head, sometimes sighing deeply. By the time Dan had reached the middle of his story he was alone. As the last man passed out, Dan turned to the picture of George Washington, hanging on the wall, and remarking "here, old fellow, you've got to hear the rest of this story; I'd like to see you get down and walk off on your ear!" completed his narrative. The Father of his Country, and Governor Posy, of Indiana, listened to him with that calm benignity so characteristic of them. It is needless to say the story extinguishers who were listening just outside enjoyed this part of the yarn, at least.

That reminds us of a story Charles Vivian tells of a comic singer, who was engaged by the proprietor of a music hall, in a small town in Lancashire. One evening there was no audience present—not a man in the house—The proprietor of the hall entered and found his vocalist sitting down, smoking a pipe.

"Why doesn't thee sing?" he asked.

"Why, sir," replied the vocalist, "there is no one in the hall, to sing to."

"That doesn't signify," cried the proprietor. "I pay thee to sing. Thee'll come for thy brass on Saturday I'll warrant thee. Sing, I tell thee." "Who shall I sing to?" asked the artist, as the proprietor was leaving the hall."

"Sing to my bloody pictures," growled the enraged manager

Ought to be Happy.

The Petaluma Crescent says:

Not only have we fine villa residences, crowning the verdure-clad hills of our future metropolis; we have all the attendants of high civilization, including "Hoodlums" and "Larakins." Now we have an oriental depository for musty clothes, which turns out the snowy linen of Beau Brummels and blue-eyed sailor boys.

What the dence blue-eyed sailor boys do in Petaluma we don't know. However that is a good tag for the paragraph.

Shakspeare's saying, "loan oft loses both itself and friend," has been proved true in millions of instances. It is not always because the friend goes off with the money and never returns. It is worse than this; he becomes your enemy. He asks you to loan him five dollars "till next week;" you do so Next week comes; he cannot pay you; he would like to pay you, but he has not the money. He apologizes to you; you assure him him it is of no consequence. He does not believe you and feels that you think less of him for not keeping his word. Next time he sees you he avoids you if possible. He is beginning to dislike you. He is sure that you have told some one that you owe him money, and have broken your promise. Now he hears some one speak ill of you, he listens with pleasant attention if you are a bad fellow it is not so much consequence his owing you money. Thus he begins to think as ill as possible in order to ease his conscience. After a while he begins to talk against you; "you are not much account," he "has heard pretty rough stories of you." He cuts you dead when he meets you. He is your enemy and yet the only cause for this is that you lent him five dollars.

Delightfully Bucolic.

We know it isn't right to make jokes on any one's name, and that the "births, deaths and marriages" department of a paper ought not to suggest jokes, but the following which appeared in the Grass Valley Union, suggests so many thoughts that we cannot let it pass.

At Grass Valley, January 27th, 1872, to Charles Mutton and wife, a Daughter.

Happy mutton to have thy lot cast in Grass Valley! Blessings on the little mutton (can't call it a "lamb" because it is mutton), and long may it flourish. We like that man because of his name, and hope that it may long before we see "Mutton" among the obituary notices, and have to write his epitaph "Dead as Mutton."
